ROSEBURG, OREGON, SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1929.

TOM NESS and his wonderful family are leaving Roseburg. Tom has moved up a step to a position of larger responsibility with his company. He is climbing rapidly and will go much further. But what a loss his leaving is to this community. One of the hardest hitting boosters that we have, Tom has some remarkable achievements to his credit. Too numerous they are to mention here, but all will remember that only recently Roseburg turned out almost to a man and helped Glendale stage a big celebration. Tom Ness handled Roseburg's participation in that. Mrs. Ness, too, has been a community leader in women's affairs. A wonderful organizer, a dynamo of energy and always cheerful, Mrs. Ness will be terribly missed here. It is with the deepest regret but with heartfelt good wishes that Roseburg people see the Ness family depart for Marshfield.

You might pay rather close attention to the news of the big commercial contracts which Soviet Russia has just signed with big American industrialists, if you're interested in the workings of the communistic experiment. The news may turn out to be extremely important. Heading the list, of course, is the fact that Ford is to establish a factory in Russia to produce 100,000 cars and trucks a year, and that Russia, pending completion of this plant, is to spend $30,000,000 on Ford cars in the meantime. Noteworthy also is the fact that American engineers will build Russian steel mills, bring her coal mines up to date and supervise the construction of a $100,000,000 hydro-electric plant, the largest in the world. These items indicate a number of things. Automobile factories, new steel mills and vast water plants can be expected to modify communism considerably, before they get through. Incidentally, a country that can sign such contracts ought to prove an excellent market for American exporters to cultivate.

Mayor Hoover's offer of a tract of land west of town to be used as a garbage dump is sincere and commendable. There is a very serious question, however, as to whether or not this tract should be used for the purpose. That is a question that must be decided by the city's duly elected officers. The fact is that the garbage dump smell is just as bad now as it has been for the past several years and is no better since Mrs. Duff wrote the letter to this newspaper—nor is there any very tangible prospect that it is to be better very soon. Why must Roseburg people be forced to endure a condition of this kind? Why has not a way been cut through the obstructing bar in the river so that the sewage can drain into the main channel of the river? When is some action toward relief going to be taken?

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

THE LION HEART

"It is not what happens to you in life that matters; it is the way in which you face it."—Dr. J. Lloyd George.

What an illustration! Lloyd George is of the faith of that saying! Things happen to him, but they do not crush him. At the time of the Boer War his name was an anathema. But in the great struggle for existence in the World War, and after, how all Britain idolized him! His indomitable soul made him the hero of the "English thinking" world.

This lion-hearted man from Wales
Has strength to weather stormy gales.
Intrenched, himself, in truth and right,
He walks by faith and not by sight.
The things that happen on life's road,
To him, are but a friendly goad;
They do not change the route he goes—
He sets the course, not friends or foes.

He's like a lofty signal tower—
A man to trust in crucial hour.
He's not a shifting weather-vane,
Who's always counting loss or gain;
He stands, unflinching, for his cause,
Can face abuse, can bear applause,
And through it all he is the same—
In patience can abide his fame.

Through many long and stormy years,
Through shouts of praise and bitter jeers,
He rode war waves of wind and tide—
The wildest steeds a man can ride.
Held Britain facing toward the front
And kept her strong to bear the brunt;
Despite the noise of party cries,
He steered through fog to clearing skies.

Here's inspiration for our youth,
A chance to learn a wholesome truth;
The safest thing a man can do
Is to himself and God be true.
The clouds may darken for awhile,
But in the end the sun will smile,
Whatever happens, be a man;
Trust God to carry through His plan.

STATE PRESS COMMENT

AIRPLANE MILES PER GALLON

(Medford News)

Tex Rankin's dawn to dusk, non-stop flight from the Canadian to the Mexican border Monday was a success, and commanded the interest it deserved. The plucky Portland flier not only spanned the length of the nation in the excellent time of 13 hours, 7 minutes and 49 seconds, but consumed only 75 gallons of gasoline in the long flight.

The distance, as the crow flies, or as Rankin flew from Canada to Mexico is over 1300 miles, so that the total gasoline consumption reveals that the swift plane in which he made the flight made an average of about 18 miles to the gallon.

The average airplane consumes about three times as much gasoline as the automobile, but the plane used in Rankin's flight made the trip on a smaller amount of gasoline than the average automobile would take it, indicating that designers and manufacturers are rapidly nearing a point where they will be able to provide aircraft which can be operated almost as cheaply as the automobile.

CHANGE PEPS YOU UP MENTALLY, BODILY

New Scenes and New Faces Bound to Take You Out of a Mental Rut and Improve Your General Health, Says Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A CHANGE from the ordinary routine of our lives brings with it many good results. A temporary change from city to country, or from country to city, as the case may be, will effect the mental attitude for the rest of the season. You may travel only a mile from home, but you will have different scenery, new faces and places to think about. A day or a month or a year away from the familiar surroundings is sure to take one out of a rut.

Mental discord wastes a tremendous amount of vitality. A discordant mind usually arises from some mental condition. It may be worry, fear, anger or continued ill health. Such conditions all have the results upon the body. They disturb the organic functions, especially those of elimination.

Experiments have shown that mental discord will so affect the digestion that the assimilation of food is practically stopped. The food eaten at such time ferments. The poisons and waste materials resulting from this fermentation which should be eliminated are kept within the body.

Good health is often largely determined by good digestion, and a proper, happy state of mind. The benefits of an otherwise happy vacation may be spoiled by over-eating or the eating of improper food. Do not eat too heartily. Make it a time of real physical recreation, a time to increase your bodily vitality and your mental poise.

Many undermine their health by thinking about it. Having set out to enjoy a vacation, be happy, enter into all the fun possible, learn how to play and forget your troubles. While in nature's playground, where every green thing abounds, look about you and enjoy the many diversions at hand. A study of nature is a very interesting pastime.

Did you ever study the subject of "trees"? Or the flora and fauna of the section where you are spending your vacation. And such things as the geological formation around you? Think health instead of disease. This will have a marked effect and in time you will be physically restored to good health. Cultivate the right mental habits. Learn how to live. If you follow the commands of nature you will have abundant health.

Good Manners
By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Bride Announces the Marriage.
DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I have learned many things of value from your column and I would appreciate your kindness very much if you would solve the following question pertaining to a marriage of a dear friend of mine, which is to take place in the near future. Her home and parents are in Canada and she lives with her cousin and husband. Mr. and Mrs. John Allen. Would it be correct for her to have her marriage announcements printed to read "Mr. and Mrs. John Allen announce the marriage of their daughter to Mr. and Mrs. John Allen?" Is that wording correct in this case?

1. She is going to be married in an Episcopal church with only a few friends to witness the ceremony. Does she have an attendant or not?
2. She will be married in a large dress. Should she wear her coat during the ceremony?
3. Does a bride carry anything in her hands during an informal ceremony such as the above mentioned?

4. Is it customary for the groom to take the guests to luncheon or dinner following the ceremony?
E. M. W.

UNLESS for some reason she does not wish to have her parents announce the marriage, she should have their names appear on the announcements. And it will be true even though it is impossible for them to come to the wedding.

2. Usually the bride has one attendant under these circumstances, but it is not necessary for her to have one unless she wishes.
3. If her costume is an ensemble, yes. Otherwise, just as she wishes and finds comfortable.
4. No.
5. Just as she wishes.

When the Bride Has a Stepfather.
DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I am about to have the following wedding announcement engraved and I would like to have your advice concerning it.
Mr. and Mrs. Allen have the honor of announcing the marriage of their daughter to Mr. and Mrs. John Allen.
On Saturday, the first of September, at 11 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, the wedding of their daughter to Mr. and Mrs. John Allen will take place.
1. Should I use the name of the city and state in which I live, or in which I am to be married?
2. Since I have a stepfather, my last name is different from his, therefore, before my name, should I use the "Miss" or not?
3. I. H. USE the marriage announcement, the name of the city and state in which you are to be married.
2. Use the "Miss" before your name; that is the rule when the name differs from that in the first line.
A Card With a Shower Gift.
DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: If I am invited to a shower given by an intimate friend, and to which I cannot go, is it or is it

By SEYMOUR JONES

Production of wool in the United States has shown a material increase during the last 7 years. While the 302 million pounds of wool shorn in 1923 was only 1 per cent above 1922 it was about 20 million pounds above 1927, and about 30 million pounds, or 36 per cent above 1923, the last low point in United States production. The small increase in wool shorn this year was due to the lighter average weight of fleeces. The number of sheep shorn was four per cent larger than in 1928. Consumption of wool by reporting mills in the United States, according to the bureau of the census for the period of January-June, 1929, amounted to 232 million pounds, grease equivalent. This was 28 million pounds greater than the total for the same period of 1928, and about 26 million pounds larger than the 5-year average for the same period. Consumption in June, 1929, was 10 million pounds larger than in June, 1928.

The Federal Farm board received many insistent appeals last week to buy up the surplus wheat and store it in order to stabilize the market and stop the speculative gambling and uncertainty, but the board declined and decided to await the perfecting of the machinery of the Farmers' National Grain Marketing corporation, which is designed to handle such emergency.

The board also announced: "If the farmers can be induced to hold back their shipments past the conversion period, the effect of stabilization will be accomplished and the farmers generally will be benefited by the slower marketing movement."

The wheat raisers of the Willamette valley are selling their new grain to the mills and warehouses more generally this season than in past years. The uncertainties of the last year have made them doubtful about holding over for better prices and they are accepting the $1.13 to $1.20 per bushel which is now prevailing. Considerable wheat has been coming into Portland the past several

Ready for School Campaign
A great many parents take advantage of determining accurately the physical condition of their children before sending them to school. These parents are to be congratulated for their foresight in having their children fit to enter school. If your child has not had a thorough physical examination, you do not know the condition of your greatest asset—the health of your child.

The attention of parents is called to the youngsters who are to begin school in September. At one time a visit to the outfitter for new suits, shoes and hats was thought all that was necessary. Now, the first thought should be, is the child physically and mentally fit to attend school?

Pre-school child health examinations are being held all over the United States. The purpose of these examinations is to discover conditions that need attention, that would handicap the child, or would make him susceptible to disease if left unremedied. The physician pays particular attention to the general health as indicated by weight, posture, heart and lungs, hearing and vision, throat and nose, and teeth. When corrections are needed, the parents are urged to go to their family physician for advice and treatment.

You want your child to enter school well and strong. The progress of his school program is dependent chiefly upon his health. Physical defects make mental progress difficult. You doubtless know that diseased tonsils, decayed teeth, impaired vision and hearing will handicap the child in school. Three out of four children who enter school have correctable physical defects. It is important that your child have a good physical examination. Make an early appointment with your physician. Present a copy of his report when the child enters school.

Now is the time to get ready for school. In order that your child may enter school physically fit he should have a health examination. The doctors of this state are co-operating in a plan to see that every child is in good physical condition.

This summer the way can be smoothed a little by attending to some necessary matters. Every child should be vaccinated against small-pox before he is sent to school. The administration of tox-inantitoxin is equally important and is becoming a routine in some counties. The physical handicaps of the child should be determined. All defects that can be remedied should be attended to before school opens.
