GOOD-NIGHT STORIES By Max Trel

KNARF, MISCHIEVOUS SHADOW BOY, TRIES TO GET HOLD OF A FLUTE NOTE. It was a perfectly well-mannered little flute and for the most part it lay quietly in its case. There was really no reason why Mi-J Flor, Hand, Yam and Knarf—the five little shadow-children with the turned-about names—should have tried to annoy it. Of course it was Knarf's fault as usual. Every evening right after dinner the gentleman upstairs would sit down and, running his fingers over its sleek black sides, make it sing for him. It had a high-pitched tone, which sometimes sounded very close and loud, and some-

"I'll go get a note," Knarf said, letting himself into one of the openings. "Don't!" Hand called up. "Something is sure to happen." Knarf didn't heed her. He let himself down a bit farther. Unfortunately Master Knarf was not quite small enough to slip through. He remained stuck midway. In consequence a note, coming along at this moment was unable to get out, so instead of singing sweetly as a good note should, it squeaked like a rusty hinge. "What's that?" exclaimed the neighbor stopping at once, and with fear, but he wasn't discovered. Instead the man gave a sharp puff and blew the shadow-boy into the flute. "Stop blowing!" Knarf shouted. "Stop blowing at once!" Strained to relate, the wind suddenly died down. Knarf felt very proud of himself as he slowly and deliberately walked towards the top. Before beginning to look around for the notes, he poked his head out of the opening and nodded to Hand. "You see," he boasted, "when I give an order it's obeyed." No sooner did the words leave his mouth than the neighbor blew PUFF and Master Knarf went flying out of the bottom of the flute. He whirled around like a leaf, then fluttered down the stairs, and came to rest at last between the pages of an old notebook. "And that was as near to a note as he got!" LAWNS IN SOUTH PART OF TOWN ARE SURVEYED

(Continued from page 1) Along these streets are improved, and there are some very beautiful lawns both in the parkings and in front of the houses. There are also a few vegetables being grown along these streets, and a few flower gardens. Fully one half of the parkings are without attention at all, and many of them have weeds that have put lawns in the parkings have some an excellent job, and the result deserves comment. Stephens street: This is the highway through town, and should be made especially attractive. Many of the lawns and parkings are in apparently only half heartedly kept up. On the south end, beyond Burke street the condition is very poor, so car time has never been put in, and sidewalks on one side only. It really presents a very uninviting appearance to the newcomer as he enters the city from the south. Lomb street and Jackson: On the south end of these streets, so much of the territory is unoccupied that it presents a very neglected appearance. Whole mounds have grown up to weeds and tall grass, and the parking in of course, no better. There is here and there along both these streets, an improved parking, but they are so few that the general impression is not especially favorable. Main street: This is a street of contrasts. From Mosher to the top of the hill, parkings are almost entirely neglected. They are not keeping with the dwellings they front. From the top of the hill on, there are many nice lawns and parkings, but they are all on one side of the street. The other side is

Didn't Mean to Shoot

Capt. Charles Stevens, above, San Antonio, Texas, prohibition enforcement officer, fired the shot which killed Tom Chaudier, a farmer of Potosi, Texas, during a liquor raid. The officer claims the gun was accidentally discharged when his foot slipped. inocepted, and totally neglected. Then beyond these improved parkings appears a run of partially improved parkings, some fair, and some not so fair, and some that are weeds and grass. The cross streets to the above: In general these streets are not paved, and are not improved at all. There are a few exceptions to the rule. Blakely and Brockway streets are in general good, at least such above the average of this district, especially Blakely. Alleys: No detailed inspection was made of the alleys, but none are paved and the grass grows in them much as Nature intended. In a few cases tin cans and other debris have been dumped, but most of them are about as clean as alleys and back yards usually are.

Markets

(Continued from page 1) PORTLAND, Aug. 21.—Following the recent advance in bucket quotations, the price of buttermilk was advanced today to 47 cents per gallon and 49 cents delivered Portland. The truck price was not quoted. Receipt of the first carload of new crop comb honey from Idaho was reported today. It wholesales for $5 per frame of 12 ounces and $4.75 per frame of 10 ounces. It is the famous Cloverleaf brand. Heat of gold melons, somewhat of a cross between a watermelon and a cantaloupe, grown in the Dayton-Yamhill section, are on the market at 4 cents a pound. They are reported to be delicious. California Elberta peaches were selling for $1.15 to $1.25 and California J. H. Hale peaches at $1.75 Eastern Oregon Crawford peaches were held at $1.25. The Yakima crop is not due for 10 days or two weeks Bartlett pears were being offered at $2.50. Cantaloupes were $1.25 to $1.54 a crate and watermelons slightly cheaper at $1 to $1.25 a pound. A new offering at the East Side market was a load of Pigeon lettuce, which found ready sale at $2.25. Prunes brought $1 a lug, green peaches 8 and 9 cents a pound, lemons 85 to 90 cents and cantaloupes $1.25. Other prices were unchanged. PORTLAND, Aug. 21.—Milk—Butterfat cent higher; raw milk (4 per cent) $2.35 cwt., delivered Portland, less 1 per cent. Butterfat, station 47c. Delivered Portland, 49c. Butter, eggs, poultry, potatoes, onions, wool, nuts, hay, cascara bark and hops steady and unchanged.

GARDINER MILL WILL BE PUT IN OPERATION SOON

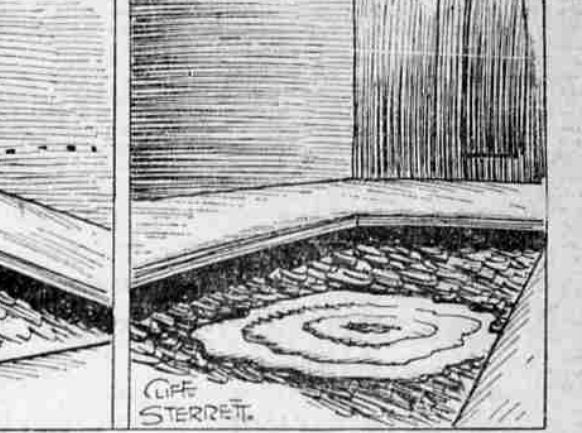

(Continued from page 1) plant will be ready for operation by November of next year. An area of 53 acres adjacent to the sawmill has been set aside for construction of the pulp plant, taking into account possible expansion. By the property purchased from the Gardiner Mill company, the new company will control the entire waterfront of Gardiner. Complete booming rights on Smith and Umpqua rivers and on Mill creek, an outlet of Loon lake and a tributary to the Umpqua, are included. Rights for a fresh water supply from Takenvich lake, three miles north of the town, have been acquired. Percy A. Copper, state engineer for a number of years, will have charge of the water detail of the Umpqua Pulp & Paper company, it has been announced. Strategic Sites Acquired About 30,000 acres of timberland are included in the transaction. In addition to the town of Gardiner and the immediate surrounding country, the holdings are at strategic locations in the Smith river and Loon lake districts. At present the government is working on the construction of a jetty at the mouth of the Umpqua, affording Gardiner a good harbor. The jetty on the north bank is practically complete, and Mr. Neroehood anticipates that large Japanese steamers can dock at Gardiner within three years. The sawmill will employ about 225 men when it is running to the capacity anticipated. The pulp plant will afford employment for about 150, it is expected, and, of course, others will be employed in the woods.

FRENCH AVIATOR TO RACE ZEPPELIN TO UNITED STATES

(Continued from page 1) Although the Atlantic has been crossed several times from west to east since then, no one had achieved the exploit of the famous American aviator in landing exactly at the point for which he set out on a flight from the United States to the continent of Europe. Zeppelin Made Ready. TOKYO, Aug. 21.—A windless and almost cloudless oriental sunset today pledged the assistance of the elements for the start of the Great Zeppelin's flight across the greatest of oceans from Tokyo to Los Angeles. Just before nightfall engineers completed the refueling of the airship. Stores, lubricants and food-stuffs were stowed away for the longest overseas flight yet attempted by any craft. The distance across the Pacific is estimated at 5400 miles, requiring about 100 hours of flying. The Great passenger list for the Pacific flight at present totals 18. Agents of the Hamburg-American line said they have rejected 40 applications for the passage at $2,300 each. Dr. Hugo Eckener, the ship's master, who treats the take-off as no more essential than departure of a ship from New York harbor, said he expected to cease on same from this date, Aug. 21, 1929.
