WATER SHORTAGE FOR RANGE STOCK; HEAVY PRUNE DROP

(Associated Press Local Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—The United States department of agriculture, weather bureau, in a summary of weather and crop conditions for the state, week ending August 27, that water for irrigation is insufficient in some localities that there is still some shortage of water for range stock. "There was considerable cloudiness," the report stated, "and rain fell in the northwest section and along the entire coast." The report continued: Cereals: Harvest and threshing of winter wheat are practically complete in the more advanced sections, and much spring wheat has been cut and threshed. In the most elevated districts harvest will continue for some time. Irrigated corn is maturing well, and the same is true of some well cultivated fields in unirrigated sections. Fruits: Peaches, Bartlett pears and prunes are being picked and shipped, and some early apples are on the market. There is a heavy crop of prunes in some localities. Apples are sizing well, but some sunburn is reported. Meadows, pastures and ranges: Except late cuttings of alfalfa most hay has been cut and stacked, and much baling has been done. Rains have benefited pastures locally, but most domestic pastures are still very dry and short, and range feed is becoming dry in most places. Livestock: Stock is showing some effect of short pastures, but many lambs and cattle are being shipped in good condition. Miscellaneous: The potato crop has been materially injured by lack of moisture. Watermelons and cantaloupes are being marketed in quantities and tomatoes are plentiful and of good quality. Hop picking was not materially delayed by rain.

Tragedy Follows Pretty Actress

Elaine Worth, beautiful San Francisco actress, appears to be a dangerous lady to fall in love with for her last two sweethearts have been "put on the spot" by California's underworld within the past six months. Genaro Ferris, prince of San Francisco racketeers, was writhed with bullets in the bathroom of his apartment after he and Miss Worth had been seen constantly together. After his death, Robert Chapman, her leading man, became her favorite. Now Chapman is dead and San Francisco police have a new mystery on their hands.

half holiday on Saturdays. William F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the federation, also said in making the announcement that the deficit in the postoffice department is "largely fictitious" and that this, too, would be one of the questions to be discussed at the convention. He believes a "triple system of accountability" giving financial credit to the postal service for many free or policy services it now performs, would show the deficit a myth, and contends it should not be used "as a reason for denying employment improvement to the postal workers." Postmaster General Brown, at the instance of President Hoover, is now making a study of his department with the intent of curtailing the steadily mounting deficit charged to the postal service.

America's Foresight Precludes Grief Over Young Plan Touching On Evacuation of the Rhineland

(Associated Press Local Wire) WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—As alleged and German conferees have been struggling along in the Young plan discussion at The Hague, America could well sigh with relief at one of the parley's aspects: final evacuation of the Rhineland. Departure of the last United States troops from occupied sections of Germany six years ago marked the lifting of a burden from Washington which has not returned to trouble it. Recent developments in the reparations talks, with England willing to take her remaining 6,000 Tommies out and France standing pat on keeping her 64,000 there, recalls the sudden withdrawal of the residue of American troops from Cologne in 1923. A year before the war department sought permission to bring home Major General Allen's command from Cologne. Germany's continent had divided into a third the size of a wartime infantry regiment. The smallest force at present in the region is Belgium's 2,800 men—which she, in sympathy with England, has agreed to reduce by evacuating the ten-year zone. Not since the transport St. Mihiel landed the last thousand regulars from the Rhineland at Savannah, Charleston and New York has Washington had any connection with military sanctions for enforcement of peace treaties terms. U. S. Sets Example The whitening down of Allen's force was in line with the policy of President Harding and Secretary Hughes to decrease Germany's economic burdens to facilitate a reparations settlement. France, however, insisted on military occupation of the Ruhr, to compel payments which Germany declared were outside her capacity. Into this situation Secretary Hughes threw himself. In his famous New Haven speech he pointed the road ultimately toward the Dawes reparations plan. January 10, 1923, word came of fidelity to Washington that occupation would be carried through by France. A year earlier the state department had successfully opposed the war department's desire to withdraw Allen's troops on the ground the action might have an adverse influence on the reparations problem in Europe, from which Washington stood rigidly aloof. French determination to proceed with the occupation changed the

STATE UNIVERSITY NEEDS TO BE SHOWN IN PRINTED FORM

(Associated Press Local Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—A pamphlet to be issued by the University of Oregon under the title of "Investments in the future of Oregon," was approved yesterday by the state board of higher education, which held a two-day session last night. The book explains what new buildings and what endowments are needed by the University with the idea of interesting friends of the institution in contributing to its success, financially and otherwise. Endowments for teaching and research funds, fellowships and scholarships and loan funds are mentioned in the pamphlet as needed. A resolution that training of elementary school teachers be confined to the state normal schools until a survey of all state institutions of higher education is completed was passed. No action was taken on the survey which the board plans to institute nor on the appointment of an executive secretary.

CALIFORNIA GRAPE GROWERS ASSURED INDUSTRY SECURE

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 28.—Grape growers and shippers of California today had assurances from Dr. James M. Doran, federal commissioner of prohibition, that the government "would do nothing injurious" to the industry in its investigation to determine the extent to which grape juice is being illegally put. Dr. Doran, here in connection with the investigation, addressed a group of growers and civic leaders yesterday. Declaring the grape growing industry to be one of the state's greatest, he informed the growers that the government "would administer the law with intelligence." He urged the shippers and growers to cooperate with the government.

"WILDCAT" CARTER GOES OUT IN TWO ROUNDS

LACTO-DEXTRIN

A great discovery made at Battle Creek is Lacto-Dextrin. This remarkable color food drives out the disease-producing germs from the intestines. In this way it brings back health, sparkling eyes, clear skin and radiant color. Start today to cleanse your system. $1 a can. Add a dash of sugar to the cold water at the beginning of the cooking period of stocks and soups made from veal, beef and mutton. Notice the remarkable improvement in flavor. Add a dash of sugar to sauce or gravy to be served with meat, especially if made from the juices of the meat, and notice the difference. A dash of sugar in ham and pork cookery brings out the "nutty" flavor of the meat. If sugar is added to unbaked egg-white, and the sugar and the whites beaten together, the meringue will be lighter than if the egg is beaten before the sugar is added. Sugar is supreme in making vegetable dishes delicious. Add a dash of sugar to these foods while they are cooking. The secrets of sugar lead to good cookery. Good food promotes good health.
