THE BUTLER, THE DIPLOMAT AND THE LADY

UNGALLANT and unpatriotic as it may seem, our sympathies are all with the man and the furriner in the momentous controversy at the national capital between Mrs. Milles Poindexter, wife of a former senator of our neighboring state of Washington and later ambassador to Peru and Senor Prada, charge d'affaires of the Peruvian embassy.

Mrs. Poindexter brought back with her from Peru a native butler who must have been a jewel from all accounts. He butted so well and with such grace that when he resigned after a brief term of service from the Poindexter household because he said he was under-paid the lady there-of was inconsolable.

If to defend the interests of a Peruvian citizen who has been imposed upon and exploited constitutes in your eyes a censurable action on the part of a government, I think differently, and as I am not disposed to obey your arbitrary instructions, I resign the office which I hold.

Senor Prada told the newspapers and his picture appeared in many of them, along with that of Mrs. Poindexter. The butler is still butting for Senor Prada, Washington society has a topic for dog-days talk. Good for Senor Prada!

Northwest lumber manufacturers are asking for a 25 per cent ad valorem duty on lumber similar to that which Canada has for her protection. Powerful interests in Washington, composed of a few concerns having large timber holdings in Canada, have formed a lobby and are doing their utmost to defeat this worthy move.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

THE PEOPLE'S FRIEND

A remarkable incident has lately occurred in Dallas, Texas. Miss Mildred Douglass, the city's legal adviser and welfare worker, was recently discharged. Then an eruption took place. This is the story the wires carried:

"A tide of indignation arose when Miss Douglass' job was deleted from the city payroll. Club women from organizations representing 25,000 voters confronted Mayor Tate with petitions demanding that she be reinstated. The voters held sway and Miss Douglass came back."

"During her three years' service as a humanizing influence at the city hall, Miss Douglass has averted divorces in approximately 50 per cent of domestic cases brought to her attention. Hundreds of deserted wives have sobbed their stories to her."

"She also has found time to wage a determined war against Dallas loan sharks. Hundreds of the city's poor, in financial straits and harassed by unscrupulous money lenders, have found a friend in Miss Douglass."

This Texas Portia wakes our song And fancies sweet around us throng; Her story sets our hearts on fire— 'Tis like a charged electric wire; So sympathetic is her glance It fairly sparkles with romance. She has the rare unselfish soul That fits her for her splendid role.

So many homes are torn apart Through lack of wisdom of the heart! But Mildred Douglass with her tact So soothes the nerves that have been wracked. She knits again those tender strands. All ragged—rent by careless hands; In broken homes hope springs anew. And life takes on a brighter hue.

In every town throughout the land Some Mildred Douglass ought to stand. The common friend of rich and poor To whom all drifting homes may moor. It would defeat the human sharks. Protect the homes of "easy marks". Oh, that Miss Douglass might stretch 'round. For seldom is such wisdom found!

Takes New Position— M. R. "Moose" Johnson of Portland, a salesman in this territory for a number of months for Stewart Warner Co., has resigned his position with the company and accepted the position of special representative of P. J. Cronin & Co. of Portland. Mr. Johnson was here yesterday.

with K. N. Hay, sales representative in this section, and left yesterday for a brief visit at the coast. Mr. Johnson is well known here and was a former football star at the University of Oregon, later going west as a college coach. Picnic at Milefield Park.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By Geo. McManus

The OFFICE CAT

Johnny was picking up apples under the trees and I called to him to look out for the worms in them. "When I eat apples," he called back, "the worms have to look out for themselves."

If you could read the trash that comes to a newspaper office every day you would not wonder that some editors sound crazy.

Man! If you call a man a gay dog, it will rattle him; call him a pup, a hound, or a cur, and he will try to alter the map of your face. He doesn't mind being called a bull or a bear, yet he will fight if you call him a calf or a cub. Men are queer.

Woman! Call a girl a chick and she smiles; call her a hen and she howls. Call a young woman a witch and she is pleased; call an old woman a witch and she is indignant. Call a girl a kitten and she looks rather as if she likes it; call a woman a cat and she hates you. Women are queer.

"What is the professor of mathematics so angry about?" "He was just short-changed by a huckster."

Then there is that long, long story about the girls who go to work in the button department of the skirt factory and sew on and sew on—

Breakers Ahead. First Author: You remember that article I wrote some time ago in which I mentioned the Nugget Cigarettes? Well, yesterday the manufacturers sent me a carton of them.

Second Author: What a wonderful idea! I'm going to write another right away on the Ziegfeld Polka girls!

PITIFUL CASES The woman who tried to have the last word at the Tower of Babel.

FINANCIAL NOTE The difference between a necessity and a luxury is about twelve payments.

CONNUBIAL CASUALTIES A man who marries the one girl in a million, usually discovers that he married the wrong one.

AMERICAN TRAGEDIES The woman who loved and lost didn't have the right lawyer.

OUR OWN VAUDEVILLE 1st Addict: Thanks for the opium. Good night. 2nd Addict: Don't mention it. Pleasant dreams.

Two Chicago gangsters have entered next year's Olympic games. They ought to win first prize for "Putting the Shot."

AGE OF CADS The counterfeiter who cut down on his wife's allowance because the printing press was broken.

SOCIAL ERRORS When two is company, the third is usually the dame's husband.

NULL AND VOID "The fastidious patient in the insane asylum who sends his straight-jackets out twice a week to be sponged and pressed."

YOU'RE RIGHT The honeymoon is over when the groom starts counting his change in the morning.

GOOD FOOD NEEDED TO BUILD HEALTHY BRAIN

The Growing Child Should Have Plenty of Eggs, Milk, Fruit and Vegetables, Says Dr. Copeland, Citing the Results of Intelligence Tests.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MORE and more we realize that food has the most important place in determining the state of health. In times past, food has been something merely to appease the appetite. Anything to fill the daily demands of the stomach seemed all that was necessary.

The real need of food is to supply energy, to build a healthy framework, strong muscles and red blood. There cannot be a healthy brain without an unending supply of good food. One of the most interesting facts brought to light in recent years is that low intelligence is often the result of inadequate or poor food.

Dr. John Munroe, of Long Island University, has come to the conclusion that intelligence is not entirely an hereditary possession. Several years ago Dr. Munroe made some interesting intelligence tests on 700 public school children. The homes of these children were graded according to certain food and cookery standards. Other conditions of environment were also considered. The tests covered the lives of the children through school and college, or business life. It was found that the students who lost points in these tests from year to year, were those who came from homes where the food conditions were poor, below the average.

In one experiment, two groups of ten children were taken from families of fairly high intelligence. Besides the regular meals, milk and eggs were fed twice a day to one group of ten. At the end of two weeks, such as sherbets made from fruit juices, than the heavier pies and rich pastries. They should, as a group of fact, be served the year round. Ice cream and ices are nourishing, easily digested and sure to tempt the appetite. Often they serve as an incentive for eating the plain dishes of the meal.

These are the days of the electric ice cream freezer, which are so easy to manipulate. And how much better the home-made ice cream is than any one can buy. As I write this it is a scorching hot day. I can think of nothing I should like better than a finishing touch to my dinner than a dish of home-made ice cream.

Good Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Hotel Tea DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I wish to give a luncheon party, and want to have about thirty or forty people. As my home is small I have decided to have the luncheon in the restaurant of the hotel, a large beautiful room with delightful easy chairs. I do not want to make it a bridge, but more of a fairly short tea. Could I have all the articles placed in a box and presented at the end of the affair, or what would you suggest?

2. Should I have the refreshments passed or served at tables? The hotel will provide the lunch, but what will I order that would be nice?

3. Should the hostess wear a hat? 1. Would it be proper for the bride-to-be to receive with the hostess?

YOU have planned charmingly for your tea party, and you will be able to do it very beautifully in this way. I suggest that you have one "important" table where you and the guest of honor and other close friends will sit during the tea, and on this table, as a centerpiece, have the centerpiece
