

GOVERNOR AND 25 TEXT BOOK FIRMS FACING CHARGES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
 FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 20.—The Franklin county grand jury, which yesterday indicted Governor Flen D. Sampson, today handed down indictments against 25 textbook companies, incorporated in 13 states, charging them with making gifts to members of the Kentucky state textbook commission.

Trial of Governor Sampson on a charge of receiving gifts from publishers of text books, who were seeking to have their books adopted for state use, was set for Oct. 2 by Circuit Judge Ben G. Williams today.

The indictments were returned yesterday by the Franklin county grand jury which for three weeks has been investigating the affairs of the commission. Various state departments. The charge made is a misdemeanor, punishable on conviction by a fine of not more than $1,000 or a jail sentence of not more than six months, or both.

The commission is charged under the statute regulations its functions with making an adoption of uniform texts for the schools of the state. Representatives of the more than 50 publishers submitting bids are known to have provided sample copies, the numbers running into the hundreds, to the commission members, and two of those indicted admitted to reporters that they sold their copies after examining them.

Governor Sampson declined to comment, other than saying he desired an immediate trial.

SMUDGE HOLDS DOWN TOLL OF FROST INVASION

left by the threshers, and this was lighted when the temperatures dropped to the danger point. In the Dillard region smudge pots, heaters and straw supplied heat enough to protect a crop.

Other growers seeing Mr. Williams' activities took the same precautionary measures, with only a few exceptions, and as a result there was a very light loss, the damage being confined almost entirely to the fields where the growers neglected to smudge.

Additional Service Needed
 The great need for additional weather bureau service to aid growers of fall products was plainly shown last night. Mr. Fletcher recently appealed to the weather bureau for assistance in compiling frost data, but due to the lack of funds the request was denied. However, realizing the great need that exists, he compiled during the summer months, after a great deal of labor, a very accurate chart from such meagre data as he could secure locally, and from this record has been predicting minimum temperatures, striking last night's low point with absolute accuracy.

Mr. Williams has been keeping in close touch with the weather bureau and immediately responded to the warning issued last night.

He admitted this morning that he did not believe the prediction was accurate and was not expecting frost, but "decided" when the warning was issued to play safe and so made preparations to meet the emergency if it should arise. The weather bureau predicted that when the temperature began dropping below the danger mark he called out his crews and started a heavy smudge, which resulted in the saving of nearly $12,000 worth of melons in one patch.

Preparations are being made today to protect the fields again. Straw is being hauled and piled, smudge pots are being made ready and heaters are being provided, as Mr. Fletcher is predicting low temperatures for tonight.

Because of the growing importance of the melon industry in the Umpqua valley an effort will probably be made to secure frost data in connection with the weather bureau before next season. The local observer is badly handicapped in making his reports and warnings due to the lack of information regarding conditions in other parts of the country. A special service is provided for offices where frost data is compiled, but so far the Roseburg office has not been able to secure these daily reports, due to the inadequate finances of the department.

Umpqua valley melons, however, are gaining such a wide reputation that the market justifies a much greater expansion of the industry. Next year the production is expected to be more than double the volume of this year, so that the value of the crop will be an important factor to the county, and in view of this situation it is believed that frost data service is necessary.

In many of the localities the weather bureau has men especially appointed during the fall season to look after the frost data and issue predictions. In fact, this is done at Medford and several other places in Oregon, and growers believe that the importance of the melon industry in the Umpqua valley justifies similar recognition for this locality.

PARALYSIS CAUSES HALF OF CASES OF CRIPPLED YOUTHS

A very interesting article regarding infantile paralysis appears in a recent issue of The Parents' Magazine, conveying some important information concerning diagnosis and treatment. Approximately one-half of all the crippled children in the country, it is stated, owe their disability to this disease. While the disease is comparatively new, it is said, enough has been accomplished to show that it is caused by a germ, and is often carried by persons who themselves are unaffected, but transmit the disease to others.

"The onset of the disease," the article states, "is usually quite abrupt, with fever, headache, and a gastro-intestinal disturbance, constipation, drowsiness and a desire to be left alone. While these symptoms as a rule are fairly constant, they are not at all unlike those seen in many of the ordinary upsets of childhood. As a rule the child seems more prostrated than one would expect with the fever, which is usually not over 102. The face is flushed, the expression anxious and there is frequently a pallor about the nose and mouth to account for the child's condition. The pulse is as a rule unusually rapid. There are often tremors or twitchings of the muscles, an uncertainty in movement of the arms or legs. The most suggestive sign is a stiffness of the spinal column. The impression one gets is that the child is attempting to hold the spine erect as if it were painful to bend it; the head may be tilted forward on the neck, but it will be noticed that the neck is held rigidly."

The action of the spine, it is stated, is best tested by having the child sit up in bed and bend forward.

ward and try to place its head on its knees. The normal child can do this easily, but if affected with infantile paralysis will try to bend from the hips and hold the spine straight. Stiffness of the neck and spine, it is said, is the most significant symptom, and in such cases a physician should be called without delay.

NON-SUIT ORDER GIVES VICTORY TO SAWMILL OWNER

O. E. Cook, sawmill operator at Drew, who was arrested on a civil complaint filed by the Douglas Creditors' association, was released from custody this morning when Justice of the Peace C. F. Hopkins granted a motion for non-suit.

Cook, according to the charge brought by the Douglas Creditors' association, borrowed money and gave a mortgage on a specified amount of lumber as security. The note was not paid, it was claimed, and when the association sold the lumber to the Coen Lumber company, it was found that there was only about 18,000 feet instead of 25,000 feet as previously stated.

They charged the defendant with converting the remainder to his own use.

The defense, after the plaintiff's evidence was submitted, moved for a non-suit on the grounds that the evidence failed to show conversion, if any, on the part of Cook, the claim being upheld by the court. Notice of appeal was given.

TRIPLE SLAYING MARKS POLITICAL FIGHT IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 21.—The first serious trouble in connection with the national presidential election to be held in November occurred here last night when three men were killed, another probably fatally wounded and three less seriously wounded in fighting between supporters of Joe Vasconcelos and Pascual Ortiz Rubio, presidential candidates.

The clash occurred at the Avenida Hidalgo and San Fernando park, two blocks from the office of El Universal, a newspaper which has been the center of political controversy during the last few days. Police reserves quelled the disturbance.

Parading supporters of Vasconcelos encountered Rubio enthusiasts. A shot was fired and the trouble grew to proportions of a riot. One of the dead men is German Del Camp, 23, a student orator. The other two fatalities were unidentified workmen, who died of their wounds. Two of the injured persons are workmen and the other a former army officer.

SCHOOL TEACHER LEARNS ABOUT LAW FROM CHICAGO COP

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
 CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A school teacher is not above the law but Miss Victoria Vascha, who is one, thought she was.

She ran by a red light. Officer Joseph Finn halted her. She poked her head out, shouted: "You can't arrest me, I'm a school teacher," and stepped on the gas.

The policeman pursued. He leaped to the running board of Miss Vascha's machine and finally forced her to stop. The school teacher gazed at his uniform, his police star, the holstered pistol and began screaming for police.

Finn explained he was an officer. That was why he wore the uniform. He rubbed a sleeve over his star, polishing it. He threw out his chest. Miss Vascha continued to call for police.

About that time a patrol wagon load of policemen arrived. They got out and she got in. She was still convinced that school teach-

PASTOR DEMANDS QUIET GETS UNDERTAKING ROOM

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 20.—To satisfy an eccentricity of one of the pastors attending the annual Illinois conference of the Methodist church, he has been given a room at Dawson & Wilkoff's undertaking parlors, where he is assured "quiet with no disturbance."

The pastor, who enjoys singing, wrote to the conference entertainment committee requesting that he be given quarters where he could do as he pleased with no disturbance. After a general scratching of heads, Rev. Leonard A. Stidley, of Decatur, suggested the undertaking room at the funeral parlors was reserved for the delegate.

There he is staying, quite unmolested.

BRITISH LIQUOR SCHOONER SEIZED

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
 NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 21.—The British auxiliary schooner Vinces was seized with a cargo of liquor of an estimated value of $50,000 off Montauk point early today. The seizure was made by the coast guard patrol boat C. G. 290, in command of Boatswain A. C. Cornell of this city.

Deputy Collector Jeremiah Dillon of the customs service decided that the boat was seized within New York jurisdiction and that it would probably have to be taken to New York.

The cargo of alleged contraband is represented by about 1,000 cases of assorted liquor. It was learned that this apparently represented only part of the original cargo aboard the ship.

POLICEMAN'S ACCUSER FACING DRUNK CHARGE

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
 PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 21.—Bramblett Jaymes, elderly, who filed charges of brutality against A. M. Landers, Portland policeman, following Jaymes' arrest in which the patrolman is said to have broken three of Jaymes' ribs, was in jail here today on a charge of intoxication. He was held without bail.

Jaymes was to have appeared before Mayor Baker yesterday afternoon to argue his case against Landers. Several policemen spent several hours searching for Jaymes when he failed to appear at the appointed hour of the hearing.

Landers arrested Jaymes on a bogus check charge. Jaymes declared Landers handled him so roughly he was forced into a hospital for medical treatment.
