ROSEBURG, OREGON, FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1929.

"BILL DOLLAR"

YESTERDAY afternoon Fred Mozart, or "Bill Dollar" as he is called because of his campaign in the interest of buying at home, pasted a dollar bill on a sheet of paper and it was started out in the Roseburg business world. The reason for it being pasted on a sheet of paper is so that each person who receives it may sign. In this way it will be possible to see how many dollar's worth of merchandise one dollar will buy if it confines its travels entirely to the city of Roseburg and is not sent out of town to make a purchase. If this dollar comes to your hands, speed it on its way to other local places.

There is more to this idea than merely the opportunity of tracing the travels of a dollar. This one dollar symbolizes all dollars. If it is taken at once and carried to another city and spent, it will be of little further use to the people here. If it travels from hand to hand here at home and with each transfer gives each business house its fair profit on the transaction it will make many times its own value in additional profit for our citizens and so while it adds nothing new to the wealth of the community as a whole, it has added to the individual prosperity of many people. "What's the difference?" you might ask, "Our merchants have to send money away to buy merchandise to replenish their stocks—so the dollar I spend in town goes out of town after all." That is true so far as it goes but the fallacy in that statement is that the profit on the transaction remains here and becomes a part of our community wealth. It is placed in our banks and used over and over. If the goods are bought out of town at retail not a penny remains. Nothing is added to community wealth. A certain amount of the community wealth has been transferred to another point.

The travels of this "Dollar Bill" will serve to emphasize fully the many reasons why local people should do their buying at home. The point is just this: If each purchase made by this dollar represents a profit of ten per cent on the transaction, then ten cents has been left in the hands of a member of the community. Ten such transactions equal a total of another dollar and this profit dollar then goes on its way around town to other transactions.

Buy at home and help make your community more prosperous.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

VIRGINIA'S HISTORIC LOG

The Associated Press staff correspondent sent out this story from Madison, Virginia, the nearest telegraph office to President Hoover's summer camp:

"President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald turned back to Washington today in the belief that their intimate talks in the solitude of the Virginia mountains had cleared the way for better understanding between the United States and Great Britain.

"The first tangible result of the conversations between these two men was the announcement of invitations to Japan, France and Italy to join the American and British governments in a conference to limit their sea power further as a step toward world peace. Invitations of the invitations was sent to the London foreign office and conference is to start at London on Monday or Tuesday of the third week in January.

"A fallen oak tree their resting place, the tall sentinels of the mountain forest their only witnesses, the president and the prime minister unfolded side by side their hopes and their aspirations, not alone for an abiding unity between their own peoples but for a world united for peace."

This old oak log will live in story,
Wear an immortal wreath of glory.
The tree on Appomattox field,
Where Grant and Lee their compact sealed,
With this old log can ne'er compare—
In world-wide peace this log will share;
Two valiant nations here joined hands
To forge for peace new golden bands.

Virginia, rich in history tales
And many wondrous legend trails
That cluster round Mount Vernon's door
And Arlington's rare names of yore,
Will—if these statements win their game—
Have one to set the world aflame—
A tale to fill the world with cheer—
A tale the future will revere.

Methinks the angels hovered round
That old oak prone upon the ground—
The angels of that Christmas morn,
Who told the shepherds Christ was born,
Who sang their "Peace on earth, good-will,"
And set all listening hearts athril,
Like that will be this old oak log
To nations peering through the fog.

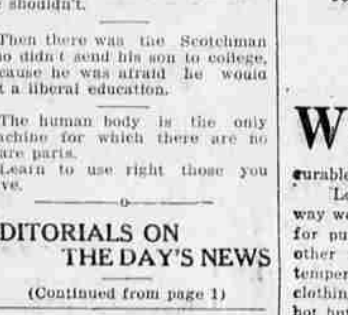

Yes, all the world is looking on
And visions peace about to dawn,
Two honest men who love their God,
Who seek for peace o'er all earth's sod,
Recline upon that old oak tree
And plan earth's coming jubilee,
The world will ne'er forget them there;
This answer to a world-wide prayer.

A fraternity pin on an evening dress. The point is that a fraternity pin is not appropriate for evening dress. Wearing a pin of this kind is a question of good taste, rather than of good form. The girl who is a careful dresser weighs very carefully the question of wearing such accessories, for they can, of course, by their conspicuous use, be inappropriate, spoil a costume.

Certainly, if the pin does not belong to your partner of the evening, wearing the pin would be especially out of order. I should certainly think that it would not make your partner hilariously happy.

Wedding Anniversary Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: A while ago you published a list in the paper giving the appropriate gifts for the different anniversaries. I meant to cut it out, but carelessly destroyed the paper. I would be very grateful if you would repeat that list. And this time I promise to save it.

READER.

I KNOW just how it happened, for I have often done the same thing about saving a paper in which was a treasure. Here is the list, with the different assignments where authorities vary:

First, cotton, paper, second, paper, wood, callen, third, leather, Fourth, silk, Fifth, wood, Sixth, iron, Seventh, eighth, bronze, Ninth, pottery, Tenth, tin, Twelfth, silk and linen, leather, linen, Fifteenth, crystal, Twentieth, china, Twenty-fifth, silver, Thirtieth, pearl, Ivory, Thirty-fifth, coral, Forty-fifth, ruby, Fifty-fifth, sapphires, Sixty-fifth, gold, Seventy-fifth, emerald, Eighty-fifth, diamond.

TWO AUTOS STOLEN IN REEDSPORT DISTRICT

Douglas county officers have assisted in locating a car stolen from Charles Ayche of ReedSPORT last Tuesday. The machine was found wrecked on a mountain road on the Lane county side of the Lane-Douglas county line yesterday. Whoever stole the car at ReedSPORT also stole another machine near the scene of the wreck and fled. The big car taken at ReedSPORT was run off the road after failing to make a turn. It straddled a log and was badly damaged.

FOOT-CARE ESSENTIAL DURING COLD SPELLS

Clothe Your Feet According to the Temperature, to Avoid the Painful Symptoms So Common in Winter, Urges Dr. Copeland.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHEN cold weather comes the feet require a lot of care. Many and many a person will have chilblains and painful feet till next Spring. Most of these foot ailments are preventable and curable.

Lots of us show little common sense in the way we dress in winter. We have a certain date for putting on the "heavy underwear" and another for taking it off. No matter what the temperature may be, we wear the same heavy clothing. We may perspire and feel miserably hot but that makes no difference. The calendar says we are in the season of cold weather and that settles it.

Thick, woolen stockings are worn from morning till night. In the warm house or barn these cause the feet to perspire and the stockings become moist. The moisture softens the skin and gets it ready to be chilled when the owner of the feet goes into the cold. Trouble is sure to follow.

The thick stockings cause the boots or shoes to be crowded and to pinch the feet. Perhaps the foot covering is too small anyhow. This leads to pressure on the blood vessels and serious interference with the circulation in the feet.

To guard against any harm that may come from cold, the first rule is that the blood must flow freely through the surfaces of the body. When you get chilled you heat your arms and chest. Why? To get the blood going in the surface.

You can see that tight shoes will prevent free circulation and prepare the way for uncomfortable happenings. These are inevitable if you fail to get the right footwear.

City people suffer less from cold feet than country folks. Most city homes have central heating plants. Not only are the rooms warm, but the floors are warm. Where the heating is from stoves the floors are cold for hours in the morning. The colder under the living room is cold and this chills the floor.

Housewives, policemen, motor men, farmers—everybody having occasion to have the feet exposed to cold should bear several things in mind. In the first place, keep the feet dry. To this end change the feet dry. To this end change the feet dry. To this end change the feet dry.

Have the shoes well fitted, but above all have them big enough. They need not be monstrously big by any means, but buy good shoes and adjust them on having them properly adjusted. Provide yourself with an extra pair, so if you get them wet you can change to a dry pair.

Have stockings of different weights so you can dress according to the temperature. Take pains not to have the stockings too short, as they are capable of confining the to the heel, and then remove the wrapping? Is it proper to carry them when dancing throughout the evening? I cannot very well wear them, for I have a corsage of artificial flowers both at my waist and shoulder.

It is proper to wear a fraternity pin on an evening dress? Many girls do in this state. I am a stranger here. The pin does not belong to my partner for the evening, however.

CONSTANT READER.

I AM sure that you will not like the effect of carrying the corsage in the wrapping—it would seem too conscious, too studied. I suggest that you take the paper from it, and carry it quite unobtrusively in your hand. Accessories of this kind should be made to seem casual, part of the general effect, and not after-thought. Carrying flowers in the paper or box in which they came certainly takes away from the feeling of harmony in clothes and their accessories.

It is entirely proper to carry the corsage rather than wear it. But the best way to do, I think, since you have flowers as decorations on your frock, is to lay the corsage on the table at your place, perhaps carrying it for one or two dances with the gentleman who sent it to you.

It is not good taste to wear

Good Manners

The Engagement Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: When meeting an acquaintance who has just become engaged, is it proper for one to ask to see her ring or should she show it?

O. T. WE should wait for the engagement to show her ring to us. To begin with, it is so much more flattering for her if she makes the suggestion. And it does not then suggest that we are perhaps treating her too personally, or that we are too impudently curious. Also we may sometime most unfortunately make this request to a girl who has no ring, and we would, of course, be so sorry for our awkwardness, which might amount to a cruelty, that we would regret ever having made such a request.

Carrying the Corsage

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I am going to attend a dance at one of the exclusive hotels in this city. Should I carry the flowers brought to me by my partner for the evening, wrapped for the supposed advantage of a college course, dishonestly achieved, are the Fagins of American sport and American higher education."

THAT is a strong indictment—an indictment so strong as to prompt this question: "who is responsible for this practice of recruiting and subsidizing athletes?"

If we are honest, we must give this answer: "The public, which demands winning teams at any cost, giving its favor to those institutions whose teams win and withholding its favor from those institutions whose teams lose, is chiefly responsible."

The public, in this country, is pretty apt to get what it wants. If it wants subsidized athletics, that is what it will get.

DR. YASUO NOGUCHI, Japanese biologist, returning from extensive studies of racial characteristics in Brazil, asserts that by beginning in time he can practically build an infant to order. By means of electrical nutrition and glandular control, he says, he can change an Indian into a negro, or a Japanese to a Caucasian.

"That is a startling statement," but here is what intelligent people would like to know: Can he take a Hottentot infant from the jungles of Africa and give it the MIND of a Caucasian—who is the product of centuries of civilization?

If he can do that, he has accomplished something worth while. If not, his discoveries are worth less.
