

PROGRAM OF RACES FOR ARMISTICE DAY FETE ANNOUNCED

The sports program Monday in connection with the Armistice day celebration is being well worked out by the committee in charge. E. A. Brinson, E. Larson and H. Turner, each having a particular part to arrange, Mr. Larson, who is taking care of the races, this morning announced that there will be five events in his department. The hoop race will be for legionnaires only, with a limit of four entrants. Six boys under 17 years of age will be admitted in the roller skate race, and 12 boys under 17 years will be permitted in the 100-yard dash. The 100-yard dash for girls is free-for-all, with the limit of 12 entrants. Eight boys will be allowed to enter in the bicycle race, which will be over a straightaway course, 2 blocks long.

Entries will be accepted in the order of filing application. Registration is now underway at the Highway service station, and boys and girls desiring to participate in the contests may register there and will be entered in the order of

NO SATURDAY MEET OF LEGIONNAIRES

Due to the fact that the proposed meeting falls on a date too close to the Armistice day celebration, the proposed American Legion meets meeting announced for Saturday night, has been cancelled. It was felt that the veterans would be engaged in final plans for their celebration on Monday, and would not be able to give sufficient time to promote interest in the gathering. State officers will be in Roseburg on that day, following the district conference at Marshfield.

ROOF FIRE WEDNESDAY

The fire department was called out yesterday by a roof fire at the W. T. Hunsicker home on Stephens and Burke streets. The fire apparently started from a spark from the chimney, burning a large hole on the roof.

BLUE BLOOD AND RED

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER I.
"As long as I have strength to lift a hand," he said solemnly, "I'll give my life to make you happy."
"I'm happy now, dear."

The thought returned to him that once she had reasoned that no relationship between them was possible, because he was not making of himself the kind of man who could command her admiration. Then, it had seemed, she expected him to be an outstanding figure in the world of men.
"Do you remember when you worried about my lack of ambition?" he asked. "When you told me that I was doing nothing but manual labor and that you expected great things of me?"
"I remember," she said, and he thought he detected a first trace of unhappiness in her voice.
"Well, I've not changed much since then," he said. "I wish I could make something big and wonderful out of myself, but I don't know whether I've got the stuff in me for any kind of Big League success. The way I look at it, Marian, is that I'm just an ordinary guy—but I'm more than a million times more than any Henry Ford could. Loving you like I do is, maybe, going to be my biggest accomplishment. Do you think you could be happy with me—if I never amount to much?"
"I'll be happy," she said, with determination.
"I don't think Nature intended every man to build himself up in a ladder," Eddie explained, with halting philosophy. "Somebody has got to do the work of the world—the little things. But I've got another idea, too—it just came to me right now. Look—maybe my job is to help somebody else do the big things. Maybe I'm intended to be the father of children that will get out in the world and do wonderful things. How do we know what any child is going to accomplish? Suppose a boy does some really big thing and makes a lot of people healthier and happier or richer, don't you think that the parents that brought that kid into the world and steered him right deserve some credit? Maybe, after all, they had the most important part to play."
"That's true," Marian said, hesitatingly.
"It's got to be true—or what consolation is there for the millions of people that never, themselves, get to the top of the heap? Maybe that's our job, Marian—to help put somebody up toward the top. I'm just trying to be myself—and when I look at it that way I feel like it's an honor to get out and work with what muscle and what brain I've got to keep our civilization marching on."
She looked at him and there

Portland shows 70% increase in EIGHTS

Facts obtained from 28 representative American cities indicate conclusively that the motoring public prefers the Eight to all other engine types. Take Portland as an example: for the first eight months of 1929, new cars with list prices above $1000 showed a 70 per cent increase in Eights and a 19 per cent decrease in Sixes!

At the famous Paris Salon this fall, 44 makes of eight cylinder cars were exhibited, compared with 27 last year. Studebaker, world's largest producer of Eights, two years ago initiated this era of the inexpensive Eight with the champion Studebaker President which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes.

And today, at customary six-cylinder prices, you can choose from three great lines of Studebaker Eights—holders of eleven world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined.

Get a smart, new, thrifty Studebaker Eight—backed by 77 years of manufacturing integrity—and your car will be worth more in the trade-in markets of the future.

SUGAR MAKES FOODS PLEASANT

Good Cooks Learn to Use Nature's Supreme Flavorer

No wonder sugar used to be considered a luxury of the rich. No wonder a noted scientist says that sugar is the greatest condimental food in the world. Sugar's supreme importance to health is that it makes foods pleasant. No man, woman or youngster can live on one food alone. To eat a great variety of foods daily the year round is to promote health, and sugar adds flavor and delight to nearly every known food. As a noted scientist says, to try to eat most foods "straight" would result in a monotonous, unpalatable diet, and you simply can't get people to eat things they don't like. Try a dash of sugar on your favorite cereal. Eat healthful blackberries and other fresh fruits made delicious by a sprinkling of sugar. Profit by the experiments of four well-known women cooking experts in New York who recently rediscovered the old art of using a dash of sugar in vegetables while they are cooking in a small amount of water. Note how the vegetable colors, freshness and flavors improve. This little added sugar makes eating vegetables a joy. Remember the value of cereals, milk shakes, ice cream and other milk desserts in helping your family to eat enough milk. Remember stewed fruits, candy and cookies for the end of the meal. Slimness is no longer stylish. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.
