Reviewing the fruit and vegetable situation, the Portland bureau of the United States department of agriculture says:

"The market for fresh fruits and vegetables in Portland during December represented a decline of 200 cases from November volume, and is only about one-half as large as September's record of 400 cases."

"Arrive shipments from northwest producing districts were much less in December than in the preceding months, with resultant decline of 20 cases in quantity of fresh produce. The total quantity of fresh produce unloaded, only 29 cases, or less than 5 per cent. of the volume of Oregon's 29-case contribution to the total for the month of December."

"California was the source of 18 cases, or over 60 per cent. of the total. The California market for winter vegetables is still in the liberal export and local receipts of winter vegetables."

"Receipts of much greater importance as a source of Portland's supply, than the coast tabulation would indicate, still maintain a steady growth and harvesting of many vegetables, as cauliflower, cabbages, and other winter crops, throughout the entire month, which were disposed of in large quantities by local truckers direct from the farms."
