While the police do not interfere ordinarily with serenaders, they do take a hand when the situation demands. Consequently Juan is now in jail.

BORAH QUESTIONS WISDOM OF BOOST IN SUGAR TARIFF

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Senator Borah, Idaho, asserted in the senate today he could not see how a higher sugar tariff would benefit domestic producers as long as imports were not taxed from the Philippines.

Borah, a leader of republican independents whose stand as a group on the sugar tariff has not been disclosed, interrupted a speech in favor of higher duty by Senator Ransdell, democrat Louisiana, to say he wanted to be shown how an increase would help American beet sugar producers with huge free imports coming in from the Philippines and with the possibility of increased Philippine production.

Ransdell said he doubted whether the Philippines could enlarge their product to a great extent and added he did not regard that phase "with anything like the dread" he had for the Cuba situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—R. L. Purdon, sugar expert of the commerce department, told the senate lobby committee today he had been asked by Walter Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries, to try to work out a sliding scale duties in the pending tariff bill.

Purdon said he understood several government departments had been asked by Newton to work on a sliding scale, to ascertain if it was practicable.

Purdon added that he worked out several different sliding scale proposals and Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee, asked him what became of them.

"I still have them," he replied, as a laugh rose in the audience.

Purdon added that he understood his proposals had been transmitted to Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee through the white house.

Later, he said, he was asked by Smoot to discuss the sliding scale with representatives of sugar interests in an attempt to work out a satisfactory sugar tariff.

A sliding scale was considered by Smoo but the plan was dropped when opposition developed.

Questioned about a "highly confidential" memorandum sent by William H. Baldwin, New York publicity man, to Junior Owens, secretary of the American bottlers of carbonated beverages, Purdon said the information might have been obtained from him.

He added that nothing in the memorandum could be considered as confidential.

The bottlers' association has been conducting a campaign against a high sugar duty in the tariff bill.

CONTRACT LET FOR $6,000,000 UNIT OF DAM ON COLUMBIA

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SEATTLE, Jan. 9.—A contract involving the expenditure of $6,000,000 this year has been let by the Engineers Public Service corporation to Stone and Webster Engineering corporation to construct the first unit of a $15,000,000 hydro-electric project at Rock island on the Columbia river, near Wenatchee. This was announced here today by William H. McGrath, vice-president of the Puget Sound Power and Light company.

Federal license was issued and accepted Monday for the construction of the dam by the Washington Electric company, a subsidiary of the Puget Sound Power and Light company, which in turn is a subsidiary of the Engineers' Public Service corporation.

Taking advantage of the present low water on the Columbia, work will be started at once in construction of coffer dams on the power house side of the river, McGrath said.

It was estimated that the first unit of this project will take about three years to complete, the initial generating capacity being approximately 80,000 horse power. Provision will be made in the power house for additional units that will be added as needed until a maximum of 240,000 horse power has been installed.

The site for the state's latest and largest hydro-electric development is about 13 miles south of Wenatchee where the bed of the Columbia river is broken by rocky islands of basaltic formation.

GIRL POISONER IN PENITENTIARY MAY GET LIBERTY

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Jan. 9.—Formal order for the release of Miss Ruth Garrison, Seattle girl who poisoned Mrs. Douglas Storrs, wife of her lover in 1918, will be prepared at once for submission to Judge A. W. Hawkins, Frank Sharpstein, the girl's attorney said today, following receipt of Judge Hawkins' ruling on the habeas corpus hearing last week.

If the judge so orders the girl will be released from the penitentiary, even though Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin of King county appeals the ruling, as the state law prevents holding a prisoner in the penitentiary during an appeal, Sharpstein said.

Miss Garrison was hopeful today, but on the advice of her attorney, was silent.

Judge Hawkins' ruling that the Walla Walla court was eligible to hear the case left the question as to whether the girl deserved freedom to be decided.

LOCAL RADIO CLUB STARTS DRIVE FOR CLEAR RECEPTION

An active effort to eliminate radio interference is to be launched immediately by the Roseburg Radio club, plans for the work having been made at a meeting of the executive board last night. The first step will be a canvass of the city for members. All homes in the city will be visited Saturday, and questions will be asked to secure information needed by the club. Non-set owners will be visited as well as homes where radios are now in operation in an effort to determine whether or not the poor reception conditions have any influence in preventing persons from purchasing radios.

Where members are signed at the annual fee of $1, trouble cards will be issued. The members are asked to mark down on these cards the time interference is encountered and the nature of the interference. Doubtless many of these reports will coincide, so that the trouble shooters will be able to have definite information upon which to operate.

The funds secured from the membership drive will be used to employ radio experts with sensitive sets, equipped with direction finding devices, so that they can locate the source of noises interfering with reception. The city ordinance provides ample means of controlling these conditions when they are once uncovered.

Activities of U. S. Coast Guard Directed by Stern Ex-Professor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—A physically compact former teacher, given to saying things succinctly, is Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard.

Papers on his desk jiggled as taps of an emphasizing finger punctuated remarks about his now famous statement that the coast guard will not use "amiable gestures" in stopping liquor smuggling.

The Billard pronouncement dropped into the restless sea of controversy over prohibition enforcement, caused widely varying comment here and brought a new focusing of national attention on the coast guard, its works and its men.

"The coast guard is indoctrinated with the idea of doing any job given to it—expeditiously, efficiently, and fairly," Admiral Billard said.

"Preventing liquor smuggling is the most difficult task that ever or any sea force, for that matter, has confronted the coast guard.

"We are going and we have gone about this thing strictly within the law. If somebody gets hurt, we regret that. But we cannot help it if they violate a fundamental law of the country which we are charged with enforcing."

Doing its job well is religion with the coast guard and its commander sees the task of preventing liquor be accomplished to keep the history of smuggling as something that must be a historic record of the service free from failures.

The most important duty of the service, in peace times, is saving life and property at sea, and in 1929 it rescued from peril or saved the lives of 4,375 persons.

Admiral Billard, directing the widely spaced forces against liquor smuggling, was named commandant of the coast guard in 1924, just 30 years to the day after he entered the service as a cadet. His sea-wrinkled eyes have seen plenty of service.

There was the time when the U. S. S. Aphrodite, of which he was in command, bumped a mine in the North Sea and her stern crumpled. But she made port. Her commander was awarded the navy cross for service in European waters.

Admiral Billard left a teacher's desk to enter the coast guard. He was commissioned an ensign in 1895. He has served on all the coasts of the United States and in Alaskan, Hawaiian and West Indian waters.
