ROSEBURG, OREGON, SATURDAY, JAN. 11, 1930.

A WORTH WHILE SHOWING

IF YOU attended the chamber of commerce dinner last evening you heard Secretary W. C. Harding read the report he has made of the activities of the past year. The report is published in full in this newspaper today and it is worth reading and studying whether you heard it last night or not. Some thirty-six items are listed and all of them mention specifically some real accomplishment and it is readily apparent that all of the items are of a thoroughly practical and useful nature. President Marsters, Secretary Harding and the board of directors worked hard and have a great deal to show for their efforts. Furthermore, and of great significance to those who are members of the chamber, the money that was paid to carry on the work was exceedingly well spent. Every cent was accounted for and best of all, the bills are every one paid and a balance remains in the bank. The conclusion must not, under any circumstances be drawn that the chamber of commerce had more money than it needed last year. The Roseburg budget of slightly more than six thousand dollars last year was not nearly as large as it should have been for a city of this size. The encouraging thing about the financial statement rendered by Mr. Harding is that our chamber officers and directors this year not only accomplished a great deal but they kept expenses within income and had a few pennies over. The first principle of good business management is that you must not spend more than you take in, so measured by that standard, our chamber of commerce last year was managed on a strictly business basis. If, as should be the case, a substantially larger budget is raised for 1930, we can rest assured that it will be carefully and well expended and that we will be given a heaping full measure of value for each dollar.

Confidentially, and not for publication, it is more than likely that announcements of several more candidates for the republican nomination for governor will be forthcoming within a few days. It is getting to be about time for all active campaigns to get under way because the election is only about four short months away.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

FOOD FOR THE SOUL

This interesting story came from Hamburg, Germany, in the autumn of 1923:

"Albert Einstein has made music and literature alternate interests to natural science. The works of Tolstol, Gerhart Hauptmann, Kleist and Schopenhauer are among his most valued and enjoyed possessions. He is fond, too, of sailing and rowing—in fact is a great lover of nature. Eminent when with simple, unassuming people, when he travels he chooses the lowest class available. The now abolished German fourth class is said to have been his favorite. "As to clothes he dresses for choice in the plain garments of a German artisan. "He lives in the quiet Bayrische quarter in Berlin, working on his revolutionizing theories and practicing on his beloved violin in an attic room above his home. "Genial and natural to all, friends and strangers alike marvel at the simplicity and versatility of this famous savant."

How good to see on what they feed—
These whom the world is quick to heed—
This Albert Einstein, man of power,
With brain where science comes to flower!
'Tis music's sweet ethereal rain
That buoy his mind beneath its strain.
'Tis literature that feeds his heart,
And makes him strong to do his part.

How happy are these simple tastes
That help rebuild his mental wastes
That come from wear and tear of brain!
They soothe his great soul's ache and pain.
Communing with these simple folks,
About whose ways there is no hoax,
Rebuilds the strong and steady nerve
That gives him strength again to serve.

'Tis that melodious violin
That helps this scientist to win;
It speaks to something in his soul
That calms the spirit, makes it whole;
It lifts him up above himself
And all this world of greed for self;
It feeds an unseen inner man,
Gives keener eyes with which to scan.

These Titan souls with whom he plays
Who nourish him on weary days,
Are chosen with a vision rare,
For each one has his wealth to share.
They give both mind and heart a meal
That holds him on an even keel.
Yes, Einstein's food's a sweet surprise—
No wonder that he soars the skies!

GOVERNOR NORBLAD FIRST TO PURCHASE PROMOTION STAMPS

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 10.—Governor Norblad today became the first purchaser of a book of Oregon advertising stamps, which will be attached to all letters going from the executive office to distant points, informing the world of Oregon's resources. At the same time the governor approved a plan of the state chamber of commerce which proposes to sell about 6,750,000 of these stamps to the people of the state, to be attached to envelopes carrying their correspondence. According to W. G. Ide, manager of the state chamber, officials of that organization believe a stamp worth of the stamps can be sold. This will be sold at $1 a sheet. From the money returned by the sales $224,000 will be used to wage a publicity campaign and $175,000 for national advertising. National, domestic, scenic, recreational and all other advantages of the state will be advertised by the stamps. Mr. Ide said that nearly all chamber of commerce and similar organizations in the state have endorsed the sale of the stamps.

Good Manners
By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Fraternity Pin Versus an Engagement Ring.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
After a girl has received a "frat" pin, it is necessary for her to have an engagement ring before she can announce her engagement. Your column has settled many of our little disputes, but this is the first occasion I have had to write to you.

2.—Please comment on my hand-writing, stationery and letter form.

ALTHOUGH, somewhat casual, a fraternity pin sometimes is more or less considered a symbol of an engagement, this is by no means always true. And it would not take the place of an engagement ring.

In other words, if the girl is to receive an engagement ring she had better wait until she receives it before she announces her engagement. She should not make this announcement and exhibit a fraternity pin as the sign of her engagement.

And, by the way, one of the worst social crimes that you can commit in the eyes of a fraternity man is to "frat" a girl just because she is "frat." It just wasn't done!

3.—Your handwriting is exceptionally good. I think too good for such casual one-sheet paper. Why not give your writing the back-ground it deserves—conventional two-sheeted paper of the shade and texture of the kind you have. Then your letter will look like a social letter, not like a business or professional letter.

Also it is best form not to abbreviate on the envelope or in the heading. And it is best, too, not to use "I remain," instead of saying, "Thanking you, I remain," say, "Thank you very much. Very sincerely yours."

(Mrs. Beeckman may be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

HE WHO LIVES WISELY WINS BADGE OF YOUTH

Everyone Wants to Look as Young as He Is and There's Only One Way, Says Dr. Copeland, Supply the Body with Purity and a Vigorous Circulation.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

INSTEAD of obtaining good hair and a good complexion from Nature's store, we try to purchase all these at the chemist's.

Those who live wisely have no trouble with their digestion and other functions of the body. Proper nourishment, exercise and the out-of-doors, supply them with purity and a vigorous circulation.

Hair, teeth and finger nails have the same physical origin. Their quality depends on the general health. The strength and permanence depend on the kind of heart you have and the consequent purity or impurity of the blood.

The scalp is supplied with blood, which comes upward from below. Spreading out in fanlike fashion the tiny blood vessels go to every part of the skin of the head. Every hair has its blood-vessel. The growth and strength of each individual hair depends upon an unending supply of blood.

Now, of course, if you have weak heart action, the heart does not send the same forceful stream of blood to this remote part of the body that it would if it were a strong functioning member. Perhaps you have observed that when you are a bit "run down" your hair is apt to fall out more than usual. If the scalp is not kept clean enough, the hair falls out.

Men should not wear tight, heavy hats if they want to escape baldness. If the head covering is tight the blood vessels are kept from sending the life-giving elements to the hair.

There will be falling out of the hair. The hair must be kept clean, just as every other part of the body is. If the hair is oily, then frequent washing is necessary. To keep the scalp in good condition. If the hair is dry apply a trifle of oil to the scalp.

We find that the blood stream carries nourishment to every cell of the body. Likewise, it carries away with it the waste of these cells. It is probable that the blood carries certain products of the glands of the body.

These wonderful glands, called the "ductless glands," are not yet completely understood, but we do know that their mission is very important. It is supposed that when one does not function properly it reacts on all of the others. Delayed action of one affects others. Among the effects of disturbed gland action are the marks of age, including gray hair.

Everybody wants to look young as he is. But let us not forget that while youth is a fine thing, gray hair is a badge of honor. It marks a man or woman as one who has come to years of discretion. It is sure, but also it softens and makes beautiful the countenance, causing us to forget the lines of the face.

Answers to Health Queries
MISS M. Q.—Are yeast cakes good for pimples?
A.—No. They are helpful in correcting constipation.

J. J. W. Q.—What will reduce the legs?
A.—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general. Exercise such as walking, running and dancing.

MRS. H. Q.—What do you advise for gout?
A.—First, consideration must be given to building up the general health. Hot fomentations are useful in reducing gout. Fresh air, sunlight, well-ventilated sleeping room, good food and a placid mind are essential to the cure. The simple internal medication should be prescribed by the family doctor.

Clara Bow Appears at Anters

A scene from "The Saturday Night Kid," the little red-head's picture which opens at the Anters Sunday.

Clara Bow's Latest Has Young Cast

James Hall, Jean Arthur and Frank Ross Among Those in Anters "Talkie."

YOUTH has its fling in Clara Bow's all-talking picture, "The Saturday Night Kid," for as usual the dazzling little bon-fire from Brooklyn is supported by a cast of popular young players.

There are James Hall, who played with her in "The Fleet's In," Jean Arthur, who was seen most recently in "The Greene Murder Case"; Frank Ross, youthful young Long Island realtor whose singing voice won him a screen contract; Eddie Dunn, also seen with Miss Bow in "The Fleet's In"; Leone Lane, Jean Harlow and others.

The play concerns the lives of the boys and girls who work in the big department stores of the metropolis and it is plentifully supplied with that picturesque "language" known as "Americanese." Miss Bow is the hard-working little shop-girl, serious-minded but glowing with "pep," who falls in love with James Hall, young clerk who is advanced to an enviable position—that of floor-walker. Clara's young sister, Jean Arthur, observes Hall's apparent ability to advance to his position in the firm, and decides to win him for herself.

There follows a series of stirring sequences in which the love-bat barely escapes the perils of rocky villainies many times. But the finale is one that satisfies the millions of ardent Bow fans.

"The Saturday Night Kid" comes to the Anters theatre for a two-day run beginning Sunday.

A REAL treat is in store for theatregoers next week. That treat is the appearance of the famous Duncan sisters, Vivian and Rosetta, in "It's a Great Life." These two noted stage favorites are among the latest to leave the legitimate stage for the talking screen. This is their first picture in which they can sing and wisecrack as they have done on the stage all around the world. Dave Dreyer, whose "Me and My Shadow" and "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder" swept the country last season and Ballard MacDonald who wrote "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," supplied the special songs for this picture.

EDITORIALS ON THE DAY'S NEWS

1700 years ago. So rising from the lowest to the highest place is no new thing in the world. It is really surprising how few really NEW things there are.

GETTING back momentarily to this Maximin, it is related of him that he was eight feet tall.

that he could drink seven gallons of wine and eat 40 pounds of meat in a day, could break a horse's leg with his fist, crumble stones in his hands and tear up small trees by the roots.

He, in his turn, was murdered when the Roman army fired of him.

THIS fearful dominance of the Roman army, by the way, was in the minds of the wise founders of the American republic when they
