

STRENGTHENING OF DRY LAW WILL NOT STOP, DORAN SAYS

Continued War on Liquor Traffic Necessary for High Living Plane, He Declares.

Thinks Aridity Has Saved 100,000 on Highways in U. S.—Moonshining in Dixie Wanes.

ROSEBURG, Jan. 16.—Continued maintenance and further strengthening of the prohibition laws will be the principal factor in maintaining the present high standard of living in the United States, Dr. J. M. Doran, United States prohibition commissioner, told the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at their annual luncheon here today. The luncheon was held in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the ratification of the 18th amendment.

"Any discussion of our national prohibition policy that attempts to relate the method or manner of the handling of the problem of alcoholic liquors, as in effect prior to the world war, to the present situation ignores the one great fact of the tremendous change in application of power to industry that has taken place in that period of time," Dr. Doran said.

"Mourners" Answered

"If the United States were back 25 years," he added, "much might be said of the desirability of local option, as the various communities and states were not so dependent upon each other as at present."

"Taking cognizance of the 'wet' meetings to mourn deaths resulting from enforcement of prohibition," Doran said, "while we are lifting services and while we are considering the people who have lost their lives in the program of the government to enforce the law, we must remember that 100,000 more people would have been slain on the highways last year than were, had it not been for prohibition."

Rum Industry Wanes

After ten years of prohibition, enforcement authorities say they find mountain moonshiners on the run with improved running gear. "None, in the old stone jug, hidden in the stump, long a trademark of the hill fraternity. A variable tin container, such as tin bootleggers use, has usurped its place."

"Changes have come to the entire 'mountain dew' industry. If the north Georgia hills are an index, according to Howard P. Wright, deputy prohibition administrator here.

"Piramas still flourish on many hillsides, but federal agents are not targets any more, says Wright. The guns from the moonshiners' cooperative telegraph system to warn 'shiners that prohibition agents are guests of the countryside.

"In every moonshining district there's a lookout," Wright explained. "When he sees strangers who might be prohibition agents he runs out back of the shed and fires a gun in the air."

"The hill operators near do the same, and run. In a few minutes the alarm has spread through the whole district and every still is deserted.

"We seldom have any trouble, however, except to catch them on the run."

Smaller Equipment

Stone furnaces still are disappearing from the hills and copper stills are being moved, it is getting the play, said Wright.

"Home distillers that several years ago ran as high as 250 to 300 gallons capacity have been replaced for smaller, more mobile

TO PLAY PIPE ORGAN CONCERT AT CHURCH HERE

JOHN STARK EVANS

The first public recital on the gift memorial pipe organ at the First Christian church is to be played Friday, January 24, by John Stark Evans, assistant dean of the school of music at the University of Oregon. Mr. Evans is one of the most noted organists on the Pacific coast and has played scores of concerts in the northwest. His programs are diversified and are always very interesting to all music lovers. In cooperation with the senior high school, the church is arranging to start the concert at 8:15 p. m. In order to give time for the basket ball game, to be played that evening against Marshfield, the time for the game being advanced to 7:15.

outfits of from 50 to 75 gallon capacity.

Even the automobile, stranger to mountain moonshining in pre-prohibition days, has changed.

The runners tried large cars at the outset, but now small cars are in vogue, with loads seldom more than 50 gallons.

NATIONAL FORESTS HOLD GRAVES OF 56 INDIAN WAR VETS

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 16.—Fifty-six graves of early day Indian fighters, prospectors and other pioneers are known to exist in the national forests of Washington and Oregon, according to recent reports made to District Forester C. M. Graeber, Portland.

These graves are those which have been observed by forest officers in the course of their regular field work with no particular search being made.

This information is being compiled by the forest service for all the national forests of the west which originated with a request from the Arizona Pioneers' Historical society. In a resolution passed recently this society stated that no "honor can be too great to bestow upon the men and women who braved Indians and hardships" and "the graves of many of these people are scattered over the forest reserves and are getting harder to identify each year."

The resolution asks for federal appropriations to be used for marking such graves.

Fourteen of the national forests of Oregon and Washington report pioneer graves definitely known and worthy of marking. The Applegate district of the Greater national forest leads with 10 and the McKenzie bridge district of the Cascade national forest is second with 9. Fifty-one of the graves are reported from Oregon national forests and only 5 from Washington national forests.

COOPERATION HERE FOR THRIFT WEEK, STARTING TODAY

The Roseburg Business and Professional Women's club is cooperating in the national observance of Thrift week, a national educational movement, nationwide in scope, the object of which is to help the individual and the family to think straight and act wisely in the use of money. The movement was initiated and is fostered by the national Y. M. C. A., with forty-eight national, commercial, educational and religious organizations cooperating in its observance.

The week is being observed from January 17 to 23, starting on the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, one of the world's greatest exponents of thrift.

The Business and Professional Women's clubs all over the country are taking an active part, holding meetings within their own organizations, and in many places sponsoring public meetings. They also encourage other organizations to do voice programs to the same point; urging members to make a budget, record expenditures, maintain a bank account, carry life insurance, own a home, invest in securities, pay bills promptly and otherwise establish a firm financial basis for individual and family finances.

SUN TAN DECRIED IN UKASE ISSUED BY BEAUTY EXPERT

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Sun tan as a complexional attribute has been scratched as an entry in the "what-the-well-made-up-women-will-look-like" sweepstakes of the 1930 summer season.

The American association of cosmeticians and hair artists looks after such things. A while back the Browning boats of old man sunshine were being bathed as great stuff, physically and from the point of outlook.

The A. A. of C. and H. A. now finds, however, that sun tan really is sort of mud color. It's apt to make a lady look dirty—crass though the adjective sounds.

It was Ruth D. Maurer who issued the ukase against the sun shade. What this country needs next summer, said Miss Maurer, speaking after a meeting of the association's directors, "is complexion of strawberry and cream." She spoke of feminine skins of "radiant, transparent cleanliness" as being highly desirable.

LOCOMOTIVE DIVES INTO SNOW BANK, KILLING TWO MEN

WALLACE, Idaho, Jan. 17.—Ice covered rails today were believed to have caused the wreck of an ore-bladen Northern Pacific freighter at Lookout, east of here yesterday, killing two men and injuring a third.

Louis E. Erickson, 45, a brakeman who was pinned under the engine until today, was killed outright; Charles E. Campbell, 50, the engineer, was crushed and burned so badly that he died enroute to a hospital, and C. A. Swant, 38, the fireman, was only slightly injured. All three men resided in Missoula, Mont.

The wreck occurred on a horse shoe curve of a four per cent grade while the train was going down hill ahead of 22 freight cars loaded with ore for an east Helena smelter. The engine dived into a snow bank, pinning the men under it. Campbell and Swant extricated themselves, but Erickson was jammed.

Members of the crew said the train got beyond control and was hurtling down the grade. The engine and first two cars broke from the rest of the train, speeded on ahead of the loaded cars and hurtled clear of the track on the sharp curve. The rest of the train rolled on past, stopping at an incline two miles further on. The caboose was cut loose from the train and stopped 1,000 feet past the wreckage.

A relief train sent from Wallace to bring the injured to a hospital crashed into a delivery truck on a crossing here, demolishing it. The driver escaped unhurt.

GAS KILLS FOUR PERSONS; 2 OTHERS MAY NOT SURVIVE

(Associated Press Local Wire)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16.—Lack of oxygen in a room in which a gas heater was burning, was declared by physicians to have been the cause of the death of four persons in a residence here today. Two other persons in the room were overcome and attached of the emergency hospital where they were taken believe they will die.

The dead: Mildred Lund, 35; Dorothy Sorro, 4; Salvatore Sorro, Jr., 18 months old; John Aquillo, 22.

At the central emergency hospital physicians used inhalators in an effort to save the lives of Andrew G. Gapsin, 30, and Mrs. Mary Sorro, 27. Mrs. Sorro is the mother of the two children killed.

Dr. A. Berger, calling to treat one of the women, discovered the six lying huddled on the floor. He had knocked at the door and receiving no answer, became suspicious and forced his way inside.

All windows and doors in the room in which those stricken were found were closed. A gas heater was on and burning full force. Dr. Berger immediately called an ambulance. All except Mrs. Sorro and Gapsin were dead on its arrival.

"I prefer Snow Flakes—they have a delicious flavor and are always fresh and crisp." —Miss ELIZABETH DONALD, Portland cateress (at left).

... because they are always fresh and oven-crisp . . .

Successful cateresses serve Snow Flakes with their appetizers. These dainty, flaky soda wafers have a delicious true-wheat flavor, a sparkle of salt, and an oven-crispness that insures the thorough enjoyment of cocktails, soups and salads.

To maintain uniform goodness of Snow Flakes, we own and operate our own wheat fields in a favored Blue Stem district of Eastern Washington, and mill this choice wheat ourselves, by a controlled process.

Then, that you may enjoy to the utmost this appetizing, true-wheat flavor, we have perfected baking and distribution methods so Snow Flakes always reach you fresh, oven-crisp.

We bake Snow Flakes daily in our six great coast baking plants. We pack them fresh from the ovens in tight sanitary cartons, seal their flaky crispness in heavy wax wrappings. As a final protection, we sell them under our definite "Guarantee of Freshness." Get Snow Flakes today! You'll like the economical family-size package.
