Portland Police Like Durant Cars

In the early part of 1928 the Portland police department put in commission 15 Durant four roadsters, and during the past two years those cars have been driven from 55,000 to 70,000 miles each, being in constant service twenty-four hours a day, according to a statement just issued from the Portland distributor for Durant. This statement, a copy of which is in the hands of the L. R. Chambers Motor Co. of this city, goes on to say that the Portland police department has now just replaced those roadsters with new 1930 model Durant coupes. They have given such entire satisfaction that it was deemed best to make no change in make, despite the fact that other distributors of popular priced cars were in the field in an endeavor to get the business. The men using these cars for the past two years all were insistent that the Durants had given such universal satisfaction that it was unwise to make any change. Practically all of these Durant roadsters that were in the service for the two years have been purchased by men on the police force there for their private cars.

CALIFORNIA PUTS O. K. ON NORTHERN RAIL EXTENSION

(Associated Press Local Wire)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—The California state railroad commission yesterday air mailed to Washington its brief supporting the proposed 200-mile railroad line to connect the Great Northern and Western Pacific rail systems.

The brief, which followed up arguments made at an interstate commerce commission hearing here last November, enumerated eight points in favor of the proposed line from Klamath Falls, Ore., to Klamath Falls, Calif. These were:

1. That the Southern Pacific forms the only present rail connection between California and the northwest, a situation without parallel in the United States between comparable industrial and agricultural centers.

2. That only 1.3 per cent of California's area has competition in rail service to the Pacific northwest, the remaining area being dependent solely upon the Southern Pacific.

3. That granting the present petition would give 19.9 per cent of the state's area competitive rail service to the Pacific northwest, but increase railroad mileage only 35 per cent and total investment only 12 per cent.

4. That the cost of the rail link would be small compared to the many advantages it will give the rail-using public.

5. That the link would improve the existing position of a comparatively weak railroad, the Western Pacific, and should not impair the ability of the Southern Pacific, the principal protestant, to perform its service to the public.

6. Without the proposed link the Southern Pacific would be forced to double track a portion of its Shasta route by 1936 or 1937.

7. That the construction would make large timber areas accessible and benefit California lumber consumers.

8. That the new line would stimulate movement of California agricultural products into the northwest through removal of certain existing rates and division barriers.

Oral arguments on the case are expected to be heard by the I. C. C. in Washington in April.

LEEDY TO SPEAK AT GRANTS PASS ON ONION CROPS

County Agent J. C. Leedy left this afternoon for Grants Pass where he will spend several days in group of producers of that locality with reference to onion growing. There are a number of bulb growers of that locality who are frustrated that the bulb industry is not sufficient to provide satisfactory incomes, and they are organized for that work, they desire to engage in other activities in which the same equipment can be used. Onion growing is one of the side lines that is being encouraged, and Mr. Leedy has been called upon to speak on this subject. Mr. Leedy is one of the outstanding onion growers of the state, having been engaged in that work for a number of years, and being the owner of present of two large farms in the northern part of the state where onions are grown as the major crop.

FIGHT FANS EAGER FOR PENDERGRASS AND GIBSON BOUT

No boxing match of recent months has occasioned as much interest as the fight to be staged tomorrow between Comet Gibson and Austin Pendergrass, both of Roseburg. These two boys are well known here and the fight has been long waited by fans.

Gibson and Pendergrass have long been local favorites. Both are very clever, fast boxers, carrying hard wallops and able to absorb punishment. Neither has been boxing publicly in late months, but have been keeping in good training. Gibson, a member of the national guard company, took the championship of his class at the summer encampment last year.

Fans have been clamoring many months for a fight between these two boys. Promoter Ward, however, refused to match them because of a disparity of weights. During the last six months, however, Pendergrass has been growing rapidly, and has now reached Gibson's weight, so that there will perhaps not be more than two pounds difference between the boys when they step into the ring tomorrow.

Both have a large partisan following, and their match is expected to bring out one of the largest crowds to attend a card in Roseburg.

Their 8-round bout, featuring the card, will, however, be only one of a group of bouts promising more action than has been seen for a long time in this city.

The semifinal between Joe Corbett of Eugene and "Red" Hansacker of Roseburg promises to be a terrific slugging fracas. Corbett holds a decision over Tiger Dunn, while Hansacker holds a draw. Hansacker and Corbett have each demonstrated an unusual ability to give and take punishment, so that plenty of action is assured.

The special event between Young Dunn of Roseburg and Paul Laird of Coquille is another match which will excite lots of excitement. These two boys fought a whirlwind draw in the last card, and have asked for a return engagement over a 6-round period with the provision that the winner is to take the entire purse.

Jim Franco, one of the older Franco brothers, will appear in a preliminary against Kid Maley of Sutherlin, while Pat Franco will fight Kid Hooker of Cottage Grove in the opening match of the evening.

21ST ANNIVERSARY OF KIWANIS BRINGS PRAISE FROM HEAD

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Kiwanis International was fifteen years old yesterday, January 21. Its birthplace was Detroit, where a group of business men held the first Kiwanis meeting back in 1915.

From one club the organization has grown until at present there are 1819 clubs with a membership in excess of 102,000. Clubs are located in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Illinois, president of Kiwanis, in a special message to the membership Tuesday stressed the need of the organization taking a greater recognition of the present day social problems. "Kiwanis has made a splendid contribution to the community life of the United States and Canada," he declared. "But as a service organization we need to have the thought deep in our consciousness that we still face great social problems."

Fred C. W. Parker, of Chicago, executive secretary, announced that the organization has a sound structure and an excellent outlook for 1930. "Kiwanis has leadership that is unusually devoted and efficient, a membership that is stable and intelligently loyal to the organization, objectives that challenge most worthwhile and timely activities, and achievements in civic service and community betterment, that are remarkable in scope and volume," he stated.

Activities for clubs during the coming year will include: Underprivileged child assistance, instruction in citizenship, development of business standards, urban-rural relations work, vocational guidance and placement for students, and many other diversified endeavors. During 1929 over 35,000 individual social and civic activities were accomplished by all the clubs.
