WHAT OUR NAVY IS FOR

WHEN the airplane carrier Lexington, largest vessel in the United States navy, was ordered to Tacoma some weeks ago to supply electrical power to that city it was because an emergency existed due to drought and a consequent dry-up of city water. In the emergency the measure was justified. Navy department and fleet officials had little stomach for so prosaic an assignment and they moved rather slowly. Finally the Lexington did get on the job and the emergency was relieved.

The Tacoma incident seems to have given rise in some quarters to agitation for having naval vessels make their major peacetime activity one of supplying electric power to cities. Some far-sighted persons, according to the United Press Washington correspondent, "had visions of warships stemming up to city piers and furnishing cheap electricity." Added to the agitation of some who hoped to obtain cheap navy power for certain localities was the more captious din raised by many who think navy people enjoy more prestige than is good for them and they ought to be put in their places as servants of the people, represented, of course, by the critics. "Our citizens pay for the navy; let the navy make itself useful," was their attitude.

Now the navy people come forth with some facts from the other side, being perhaps able for the first time to make their voices heard above the clamor for service. They point out that the Lexington with a complement of more than 2000 officers and men aboard, costs the government $1,000,000 a year to maintain, while a steam power plant capable to supply Tacoma's needs in an emergency would need but 100 men and could be operated at a mere fraction of the cost of operating the Lexington in a similar capacity. So while for the emergency the use of the Lexington at Tacoma was justified there could hardly be justification for making frequent or even occasional use of warships for such a purpose except in emergencies. The navy in peacetime is the ounce of war prevention that is worth more than the later pound of cure. That and keeping itself fit and ready in fleet and personnel is the navy's peacetime job. A warship is more valuable as a symbol of power than as a power plant.

All members of the American Legion who are interested in helping to form a glee club in the Legion are going to meet in the club rooms in the armory tomorrow night. No musical program is quite so enjoyable as singing by a group of male voices. There is ample talent in the local post of the Legion and it is to be hoped that the plans for forming the glee club will be carried out.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

THE SOURCE OF PERSONALITY

When the house of representatives decided a few weeks ago to add one more member in the committee on foreign affairs, it was a foregone conclusion that the new member was to be. In fact, it was said that the place was created in order to obtain the services of one of the most important committees of the house, of Irish origin.

Woman's suffrage is no longer a novelty. Nevertheless, there is still a certain amount of curiosity and interest centering about women who are elected to official positions. When one is chosen, in addition to displaying in a few months an unusual amount of ability, he or she is to be the daughter of a man who is to be the political lion of a generation, it is not natural that she should attract even more than the usual amount of attention.

Do there are the very things that Mrs. Owen desires for herself. Proud as she is of her sex and her percentage, she cannot see why the fact that she is a woman and the daughter of William Jennings Bryan should play any part in her political career. Certainly she played no part in his selection to represent her Florida district in the house. She made a vigorous campaign for office and received the nomination because the voters believed she deserved it.

Yet an amusing fact is that it is difficult to forget who and what she is. She is a woman, the daughter of William Jennings Bryan, and she is a politician. But at the same time she has those piercing eyes that make her a politician in her own right and the intellectual that give her a certain authority in her own right.

This story has my fancy caught; Ruth Bryan Owen wakes my thought. She'd build a career that's all her own, Build by her work, and that alone. I fully realize her pride— My feeling's clearly on her side; Yet, after all, it can't be denied; We all have help our vote to lend.

Trace back the strains that make her past; There's William Jennings Bryan—first. And then there is the mother strain, As sweet and lovely as a dream. They met and joined in wedded love With benediction from above. Ruth Bryan Owen is the flower Of that rare union fraught with power.

And then again from Mother Eve There came that strange mysterious weave Of strands that woven make her sex. That always is the problem's "X." Then Ruth became a gallant beauty And knew a husband's loving pride; She won the grace of womanhood, And dared the heights of Motherhood.

Ruth Bryan Owen starts right there To climb her individual star. The gods have been so kind to her, No wonder she set wheels a-whirl! Methinks she's likely to go far— Althinks she's a shining star! She has the wings for lofty flight; We'd speed her toward the beckoning height.

ANTLERS—Today and Wednesday, Liuna club booster show, "Marianne," all-talking, featuring Marion Davies; Thursday, "One Unholy Night," all-talking; Friday and Saturday, "Charming Sinners," with Ruth Chatterton, Cliff Brook, William Powell and Mary Nolan, all-talking.

Marion Davies Scores Hit as Singer in New Talking Picture.

"Just you—just me..." You'll be humming that plaintive melody when you walk out of the Antlers theatre after beholding Marion Davies in her first feature length talking picture, "Marianne," which is to be offered to night and tomorrow under the auspices of the Roseburg Lions club.

A brand new flock of song birds are in this sparkling romantic comedy in which Miss Davies sings with a captivating charm that is certain to win for her even greater popularity than she now enjoys. ...and that's saying a lot.

The "Just you—just me" number slips into the picture so unobtrusively that you are not quite sure it is a song until it is picked up by off-stage orchestration. Robert Z. Leonard, who directed the musical-inlike, dove-tails his song numbers right into the dialogue and action.

And there are some other rare-fire songs, such as "Hang On to Me," "Sugar," "Blondy" and, of course, a "Marianne" theme song that is potent with tuncful dramatics and weeps.

In the picture Miss Davies plays the part of a French peasant girl who falls in love with an A. E. F. dromedary, but justifies her happiness when her former soldier-sweetheart returns blinded from the war.

Included in the supporting cast are Lawrence Gray, Cliff (Kokete) Key, Edwards, Deany Rubin, Robert Edison, George Baxter and others of note. All deserve special praise for the capable and entertaining way in which they present their characterizations.

Maybe I'm Wrong

By J. P. MEDBURY

According to marital statistics, ten thousand women were left waiting at the church last year, and a lot of them are still there. One girl hung around so long she became an old maid.

She expected to be a June bride, but when the following November went by she began to worry.

But she isn't going to let the groom make a fool out of her. She says she'll wait a couple of months more and then go home.

Foot Misery Caused by Neglect

Most Foot Ills Can Be Traced to Childhood, Says Authority, Urging Properly Fitted Foot-Gear.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D. U. S. Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOTHING can hurt much more than an aching foot. It is a pity so many persons have tender feet. If these members were properly cared for in infancy and early childhood there would be less foot trouble in later life.

Shoes and stockings are important factors in promoting foot comfort and health. Little feet go running and jumping, skipping and climbing all day long. It is any wonder that they get tired and ache at night?

School shoes for children should be well-fitted, not too tight, and not too loose. They must be just right, or else they are all wrong. There should be plenty of room for the toes.

Stockings should be sufficiently long. This is necessary so as not to bind the foot and toes. The toes should not be crowded by the stockings. Quite as often the trouble may be traced to short stockings as to short shoes.

Children's shoes should be long enough. It is important not to crowd any part of the foot. The heels of the shoes should be kept straight, not worn over. The posture of the foot is ruined if the heels are not flat.

Don't put high heels on a young girl. They throw the body out of the correct posture. When she is older she will have to decide for herself, but in childhood, do your part to start the youngster right.

Children often have tired and aching feet at night. Much comfort will be given by bathing the feet for ten minutes in hot water to which salt has been added. Bathing the feet often is good for everyone. The toe nails should be cut straight across. It is bad to cut the corners, next to the side of the nail.

Have your child's feet examined once in a while by a good chiropodist, or podiatrist. It is just as important as to see the dentist.

Correct posture makes for good health. Correct shoes help good posture. Everybody should know that foot exercises are useful. They bring foot health. Standing on the toes, standing on the edges of the feet—these exercises help to make the feet strong and capable.

PENSIONS FOR WORLD WAR VETERANS FORESEEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Chairman Johnson of the house veterans committee, after a call on President Hoover, said today that all legislation dealing with veterans was in need of complete overhauling, and that it was only a matter of time before a policy of pensioning World War veterans must be decided upon.

Every girl ought to have a few alternatives. It's up to the groom to be punctual if he wants to be elected.

Good Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

The Salad Silver DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: I have found you to be an excellent as well as an informed judge in matters concerning etiquette. In view of this, I am submitting a dispute to you which I am sure you will settle satisfactorily for both parties.

1. A salad fork should be used with a knife and fork. 2. Are salad forks used today in the better restaurants and hotels?

THANK you for your appreciation. I either is correct. If the salad is simply cut in separate leaves or lettuce, for instance, usually the salad fork is convenient to use for eating it. But nowadays, when the salad is a complicated one, such as hearts of lettuce, or lettuce, or slices of pineapple or some other ingredient that is not easy to manage, we have been given by the silver manufacturers, the convenient salad knife. And increasingly we find, for use in the salad course, both the salad knife and the salad fork.

2. Yes, and salad knives, too. Evincing Poor Taste DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: I have been going about with a young girl for about eight months and during that time we have become very good friends. At Christmas time I gave her a present, which I thought was the proper thing to do. She in return sent me a card.

During the past month we have not been such good friends and haven't come out with each other. I have heard from friends of hers that she intends to send some sort of birthday gift, as my birthday is some time next month. Shall I accept this gift or not?

WONDERING. I SUPPOSE that you will have to accept it, if she really desires to give it to you. Not to accept it would be an insult. I am sorry that she is going to show such poor taste in giving you a present, when she showed such good taste in sending you a card at Christmas time, instead of giving you a present.

WINNING STREAK OF HUSKY BASKETEERS HALTED BY O. S. C.

COVINGTON, Ore., Jan. 28.—In one of the most spectacular basketball finishes ever seen on the local court, Oregon State stopped the northern division conference leading University of Washington team's winning streak, 21 to 22, here last night. Coach "Blain" Gill, after recovering from an attack of pneumonia, directed the Oregonians personally. Washington's defeat (Ore. 22, Wash. 21) in the first place, with Washington State. The game was fought throughout, being tied seven times in the first half while ending 18 to 14 in favor of the visitors. Grayson ran wild in the last half and set six lay-ups to give State an eight point lead. This was wiped out as McClary and Garrison tallied four times for the Huskies. With a minute to go Grayson again cut the Oregonians in the lead, which they held to the end. A second game will be played here tonight.

DRAIN WEATHER SETS NEW RECORD

(News-Review Douglas County Special) DRAIN, Jan. 28.—The weather conditions of the past three weeks have left a record, which for intensity, exceeds anything of the kind during the past 25 years that record has been kept here. Beginning with the seventh of the month the minimum temperature each day has been below the freezing point. The total snowfall, which began about the twelfth was about nine inches but did not exceed five inches at any one time. The lowest temperature reached was seven above on the 21st, but was not below 12 above at any other time. The alternate thawing and freezing formed an ice crust of from one to two inches which, to a large extent, still remains but the past two days have been much warmer and it is believed that the storm has spent its force.

DRAIN

(News-Review Douglas County Special) DRAIN, Jan. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Phillips of Vancouver, Wash., have been here during a part of this week visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Delk.

CANTILLON STILL ALIVE (Associated Press Label Wire) HICKMAN, Ky., Jan. 28.—"Ponzo Joe" Cantillon, baseball veteran, carried on his battle with death this morning, hours past the time doctors predicted it would be possible for him to remain alive.

Will power alone kept the veteran alive, doctors said, as scores of messages came from notables in the sport world.

His only rational moment since his condition took a turn for the worse Sunday brought back memories of his old days and he struggled to tell a yarn about Babe Waddell, pitching ace who he is credited with discovering, before he lapsed once more into coma.

Attendants this morning said Cantillon had passed a very bad night and gradually is getting weaker.

FEDERAL EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM TO BE CHANGED SALEM, Ore., Jan. 28.—The committee appointed by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur to study education in this country hopes to make changes in the federal educational system that will result beneficially for all the people of the United States, says O. D. Adams of Salem, who has just returned from Washington, where he attended a meeting of the committee. Adams is state director for vocational education.

"Of 36,000,000 young men and women from 19 to 24 years old," said Adams, "20,000,000 have left school to seek employment in the commercial and industrial activities of the country. While there are plenty of statistics concerning those who are in school there is little reliable information about those who are out of school."

people have been raising profitable poultry for a good long time. We doubt if the owners of this poultry ever heard of any of the feeds sold in this neck of the woods. That's pretty plain proof that paying poultry can be raised on other than just one make of feed.

But for all of that, HERE IS SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT. EVERY YEAR FOR EIGHT YEARS THE SALES OF UMPQUA POULTRY AND DAIRY FEEDS HAVE MADE A LARGE INCREASE. In 1929 a lot of poultrymen who never before raised poultry, made a 100% success with their flocks, Umpqua Field Service helped to do that.

We can help you, too, and save you money besides. See Mr. Gurney at the mill any Saturday, and he will gladly help you get started right.
