

DECLINE OF HOME LIFE STRESSED IN CLERICAL REPORT

(Associated Press Local Wire)
NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The issue of the church and the state and the passing of the home as the social unit, with its attendant problems, are the principal subjects treated in a report on "social work of the churches" compiled by investigators for the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The report, written by F. Ernest Johnson, after several years of research, lists the problem of church an state under three captions:

"Should the church attempt to influence government on behalf of legislative proposals such as social insurance or factory legislation?"

"To what extent should the church participate in partisan political activity in order to secure the election or defeat of certain candidates for office?"

"To what extent should the church accept dictation from state in matters affecting Christian conscience, particularly with reference to war?"

Regarding modern home life the report said:

"The home apparently has ceased in most of our communities to be the unit of human association. At the base this phenomena is economic. The home once was the place where many of the life sustaining processes were in large measure carried on, such as the production of food and clothing."

"The reasons given for the lessening significance of the home are:

"The relatively advanced age at which marriage occurs; the growth of cities and the crowding of homes into apartments."

"The migration of women from the home into industry, business and the professions."

"No solution of the problem is offered. The report declared that the rehabilitation of the home 'remains an open and pertinent question.'" tons for battleships, so many for cruisers, and so on through all classes of ships.

This allotment, however, would not be binding for it is proposed to permit each nation to transfer certain (as yet unestimated) percentages of the total tonnage of one class to the tonnage of another.

Thus it is that the first actual numerical decision of the conference must be made on a point which the layman might regard as rather far removed from the vast international issues of the negotiations at London—what percentages of transfer will be permitted in this general and as yet nebulous scheme of limitation.

Hard Task Ahead
The statesmen gathered here do not regard this decision lightly nor do they expect to agree among themselves about it without long and serious debate. So far no one has mentioned audibly how large he thinks the percentage should be. It has been whispered here and there about St. James's palace that ten per cent might be favored by some and sixteen per cent by others. On apparently good authority it was said today the Americans had been considering twelve per cent.

Pursual of the text of the French compromise proposal, made public last night by the French, left the searcher for information in as much a quandary as ever. The text was an involved technical treatise with every space where figures belonged blank.

If anyone of the conference was worried today about the trials in store he did his best to conceal it in the general round of English weekend relaxation and recreation, which brought the wheels of conference activities to almost a complete halt.

The fire ate its way through the tailor shop, sending huge billows of smoke over the prison and damaging an adjoining carpenter shop. A deep pall of smoke overhung the penitentiary through hours after the fire was first discovered.

Warden Crawford advised Governor Adams at Denver of the fire and said the institution was quiet after the flames had been brought under control. National guardsmen from the Canon City unit were called out to patrol the streets around the prison.

and supervision of home-made beverages and more attention to large manufacturing of more intoxicating liquors.

Representative Fort until recently has been secretary of the republican national committee and is a close personal friend of the chief executive.

Fort's Argument
"Either we can hold down consumption by high prices and make a vast profit for the government," Fort said, "or we can hold down the profit by low prices at the risk of increasing consumption."

"What then of rebating the traffic? Well, shall it be for drink but on the premises? Of course not—that's the nation again. But if that is not to be—we'll have to drink at home, even though home drinking is one of the evils we deride in the present system."

"Well, if we're to drink at home, we can do that now—if we want it bad enough to make it. So why change the law at all unless, of course, we want hard liquor—and none of the advocates of change want that, do they? so where do we finish? Just where we started—with the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act."

Am Held Fulfilled
"Perhaps the act needs clarification on the question of home-brew—although nobody has ever been convicted for making it for home use. But, otherwise, it seems to me pretty clearly to fulfill the purposes of its adoption and to satisfy the real wishes of the American people—for the preservation of their industrial system, their property and their homes."

He advised those who want to abstain to follow prohibition, to leave enforcement to the officers of the law and return to the educational programs that they engaged in before prohibition was adopted.

3 LIVES AVERAGE PRICE OF MILLION TONS OF COAL

Every million tons of coal extracted from the earth in the United States costs on an average three and one-half human lives, and the bureau of mines has engaged in the country's most vigorous safety campaign to make the mines safe for the miners, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Eleven rescue railroad cars have been placed at strategic points to be rushed to mine disasters, and one or two of every hundred miners have been trained in mine-rescue and recovery work, while about 365,000 are trained in first aid.

NEUNER DENOUNCES CONDITIONS AT BLY

(Associated Press Local Wire)
PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 31.—George Neuner, United States district attorney, yesterday branded the payment of fines of bootleggers in Bly, Ore., near Klamath Falls, as merely a "license system for bootleggers," and promised that long term sentences would be sought for six defendants arraigned on liquor conspiracy charges.

The federal attorney said that repeated arrests by state officials of Bly citizens have resulted only in fines and that "it is time the federal government stepped in and padlocked every place convicted of selling liquor near the Klamath reservation."

"Bly is an eyecore of the district," the attorney said. "It formerly was Chiloquin, but the government cleaned that out and all the bootleggers removed to Bly, an old stage coach town and now a railroad camp."

U. S. COAST GUARD NAWS BRITISH BOAT AS BOOZE RUNNER

(Associated Press Local Wire)
SAN PEDRO, Cal., Jan. 31.—On suspicion of being a rum runner, the fifty-foot British motorship Northern Register was seized while cruising off San Nicholas island by the Coast Guard patrol boat Morris early today and towed into port.

Captain J. P. Tall, his engineer, Thomas Hansen, and Ronald N. Williams, a deck hand, were held for an investigation. Coast guard officers said a preliminary search of the ship had revealed a half case of whiskey and twenty four bottles of beer.

The officers alleged they had evidence that the boat already had landed a cargo of liquor on the American coast.

All of the men arrested are citizens of Canada and they will be detained until an official investigation has been completed.

Officers said they surrendered without offering opposition.

A "Timely" Arrival

MOTORLESS SHIP GLIDES 3,000 FEET FROM DIRIGIBLE

(Associated Press Local Wire)

LAKEHURST, N. J., Jan. 31.—An object that looked no larger than a dragon fly, attached to the whale-like belly of the dirigible Los Angeles, was released from the airship at a height of 3,000 feet today and glided to earth twelve minutes later, demonstrating the feasibility of landing passengers from airships in motorless as well as powered planes.

Today the Los Angeles rose into the air, with the glider's 125-pound pilot, Lieutenant Ralph S. Bransby, at the single control of his small plane. In picturesque array the blimps J-3 and J-4 and the "tin ship" ZMC-2 followed the larger ship into the air. They hovered about the Los Angeles in the clear sky like a fearful brood staying close to mother.

From the ground the glider was seen to nose down gracefully, seemingly without having been disattached from the Los Angeles. Clear of the airship, Barnaby, the first licensed glider pilot of the United States, leveled off and began circling the field. He could have stayed aloft for an hour or more if he had wished, he said on landing.

NEGLECTED WIFE SPOILS MAN'S RUSE

PORTLAND, Jan. 31.—W. F. Miller was in the county jail today feeling sorry for himself because he didn't stay "dead."

He is under indictment for non-support and was arrested today. Some months ago deputy constables went out to his fuel yard with a warrant for his arrest. Miller was at work.

"We have a warrant for Mr. Miller," Can you tell us where to find him," the officers questioned.

"Miller? Miller? Do you mean Mr. W. F. Miller," the man asked. "He's the fellow," the constables chorused.

"Oh, he's dead and was buried two months ago," was the reply.

The officers went their way. Mrs. Miller heard about it and was surprised. She told police. To day the police found Miller.

SUNSHINE CLUB SONG

By MRS. L. H. DUFF

We are the Northside Sunshine club.

We scatter sunshine always,
We scatter when the sun is bright,
Or rainy days and all days.

We're a jolly sunshine band,
We keep the bright sun shining,
We turn the dark clouds inside out,
And find the silver lining.

We scatter sunshine north and south,
The length of our fair land,
We scatter sunshine east and west,
Our Northside Sunshine band.

Each year we hold a big bazaar,
And sell night caps and pickles,
And when we have sold all our wares,
We count our dimes and nickles.

Then with our proceeds we proceed
To cheer the poor and needy,
We fill our baskets with good things,
And take it to them speedy.

And to the lonely and the sick
We carry Christmas cheer,
We take them books and plants
And make the sun appear.

Oh, let us keep the sunshine bright,
Wherever lives are dreary,
And let us brighten up the lives
Of persons sad and weary.

Let us work with happy hearts,
And let us not go whining,
But let us polish up the sun
And keep it brightly shining.

The above poem explains fully the work carried on yearly by the Northside Sunshine club. There are several clubs in Roseburg which have been organized for the sole purpose of bettering the city and helping those in need.

By ETTA R. THORNE

Is life worth living? We sometimes ask,
When the struggle seems to take
Every ounce of strength and courage
And our hearts seem ready to break.

Do we ever stop as we pass along
Through the city's crowded streets
And see the crippled, deformed and maimed
Who fight to conquer defeat? Do we ever think
How easy it should be for us
With health and strength and whole
To fulfill our duties that come each day
With joy aflame in our souls?

Think God for the blessings He bestows—
Rejoice that you may live
To cheer some poor unfortunate's lot,
Tho' but a kind word you give.
Oft times a smile that's straight from a heart
Intured to sorrow and grief
Renews the courage—gives a new start
From life's troubles springs relief.

'Tis better far to scatter smiles,
To give kind words—to do kind deeds,
To lessen another's many trials,
Than to follow empty crowds.
One heart that's comforted,
One home made bright,
Means more to God o'er head
Than millions spent on churches.
