Uncle Sam to Take Decennial Stock of His Gigantic Family Next Month

1930 Census Will Require Toil of More Than 100,000 Men and Women in 120,000 Enumeration Districts—24 Queries Listed in Individual Questionnaire.

Have you a little radio in your home? That is one of the questions Uncle Sam will ask you when he takes stock of his gigantic family next month. The question relating to radio sets, which will give an authoritative answer as to the size of the actual and potential radio audience, is but one of the twenty-four queries included in the schedule prepared to determine the 1930 population statistics.

The First Census—It is a far cry back to 1790 when the first federal census was taken merely to determine the population of several states as a basis for the apportionment of representatives. Then the books were placed in a public inn or tavern, so that everybody could ascertain whether or not he had been enumerated. With the growth of the country each decennial census has increased the number and variety of questions asked by each and every person residing here, whether native or alien. And this year's census is easily the most comprehensive yet undertaken. Not only vital statistics, but unemployment, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, mining and distribution will be covered in the survey by means of specially prepared questionnaires. The farm schedule is particularly comprehensive and covers every possible phase of the vital industry.

Excess of Males—The sex question is to be gone into very thoroughly by the census bureau. As far back as the records go, there has always been an excess of males in the population of the United States. The present census will not determine whether this condition still obtains, but will discover just where such excess obtains. In the 1920 census Nevada was the state claiming the largest excess of males, the ratio of that state then being 118 males to 100 females. Such information is indispensable in the determination of mortality rates, and in studying the incidence of disease. It will also determine just how the proportion of males in the population of any community is affected by the nature of the principal industries of that community.

Gathering Information—The gathering of the information required by the department of commerce, of which the census bureau is a part, will require the services of over 100,000 men and women. They will carry on their task under the direct supervision of 274 supervisors. Each enumerator has been required to pass a test before being appointed. As is always the case with the questions prepared by the census bureau there are always balky people who object to the nature of some of the queries and it requires enumerators of high intelligence and tact to cope with such situations and secure the desired information. Every situation and phase of the census is covered in a fifty page book of instructions that must be studied by each enumerator in addition to oral instruction. According to Mr. William H. Stewart, director of the census, women are to play an increasingly large part in this year's survey not only as enumerators but as supervisors. Twenty-four women have been appointed as supervisors, each one chosen for her general intelligence and ability to cope with the enumeration process, which will cover about 130,000 enumeration districts. The largest supervisory area is the first district of Nevada, containing 55,539 square miles, which, according to the 1920 census had a population of 59,499. It is interesting to note that the twenty-third district of New York city, which contains 2,816 acres, gave a population return of 577,988 in 1920.

Yoncalla People Here—Nathan Crow and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Crow, all of Yoncalla, were business visitors in Roseburg today.

Return From Portland—Mr. and Mrs. Cole A. Owen returned here today from Portland, where they spent the week-end visiting friends and transacting business.

Spends Week-End—Miss Floy Strader, Ashland Normal school student, spent the week-end in Roseburg and Dixonville visiting relatives and friends.

Reported Ill at Home—Miss Florence Schaeffer, stenographer at the local Pacific Telephone and Telegraph office, is reported to be ill at her home on Pine street.

Reported to Be Improving—Mrs. Horace Campbell is reported to be considerably improved at her home in West Roseburg. She has been quite ill for the past several weeks.

DECLARATION OF CANDIDACY FILED BY CHAS. L. McNARY

SALEM, Ore., March 24.—The formal declaration of United States Senator Chas. L. McNary for the republican nomination to succeed himself was received here this morning by E. M. Page, the senator's Oregon manager, and filed with the secretary of state. Asking that the slogan, "Oregon development; improved agriculture; law enforcement," be printed on the ballot following his name, Senator McNary also filed the following statement of principles:

"Continue actively to support legislation having for its purpose permanent tax reduction; practical relief for agriculture and its allied industries; adequate protection of forest products against foreign competition and conservation of our forest resources consistent with their economic utilization; enforcement of prohibition and narcotic traffic laws; effective labor and child welfare relief; educational advancement; liberal pension legislation and generous care of veterans and their dependents; reasonable restriction of immigration; improvement of Oregon rivers and harbors; federal funds for development of feasible reclamation projects; development of Oregon's commercial and industrial resources; just wages for federal employees and adequate retirement legislation."

Reported to Be Improving—Miss Nedra Clark is reported to be improving at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clark. She is quarantined with smallpox.

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

ANTLERS—Last times today "Hallelujah," all-talking, singing dancing; Tuesday and Wednesday, all-talking "Woman Trap," with Hal Skelly, Evelyn Brent, Chester Morris; Thursday, Friday, Saturday, "Rio Rita," with Bebe Daniels, John Boles, all-talking, singing.

LIBERTY—Today "Whispering Winds," with Patsy Ruth Miller, all-talking; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, "Christina," special sound effects; Friday and Saturday, "Soul of France."

"Hallelujah," which has been proclaimed by critics throughout the country as a masterpiece of motion picture artistry, opened at the Antlers theatre last night, fully bearing out its advance reputation. This all-talking, all-negro production is certainly an unusual and unique picture.

The feature of the picture to those who are musically inclined are the vocal and instrumental offerings. Of course the negro spiritual plays the most important part. Directed by the famous King Vidor who had the cooperation of Oregon's commercial and industrial resources; just wages for federal employees and adequate retirement legislation."
