Cabinet Member Began Earning at Six

Jas. J. Davis, Now Aspirant for Senate, Rose From Puddler Job in Steel Mills.

(Associated Press Local Wire)

WASHINGTON, April 25—James J. Davis may soon be writing another chapter in the life story that might well be titled "The Rise of a Puddler Boy."

If he wins the Republican nomination for the senate from Pennsylvania, Davis ends ten years as secretary of labor.

At the same time he will enter, perhaps, an interesting phase of his political career as at any time since it began when he was chosen city clerk of Elwood, Ind.

In the decade since President Harding gave him the labor portfolio, the one-time immigrant boy has become a national figure, widely known.

His voice and name became known to millions when he broke into hearty song during a radio address. Fan mail poured in.

Davis is now 57 years old. He broke off a budding political career a quarter of a century ago to take over direction of the Loyal Order of Moose, which he built up in membership from 300 to 600,000; and became a wealthy man in so doing.

Immigrant from Wales at four years of age; cow tender at 12; a puddler at 15; competent to manage a furnace of his own at 16—these are the laborious steps of the beginning of Davis' career.

The Davis family, including the five little Davises, all in a row, has moved its place, too, in Washington life.

There are Jimmy, Jane, Jean, Joan and Jewel, beginning at 14 years and going on down. The four girls dress alike, and they always help their mother entertain in the handsome Davis home.

A suit for divorce has been filed in the circuit court by Alice Forster against James Forster, alleging desertion. They were married at Duluth, Minn., May 3, 1920.

Former U. S. Marshal
Endorses New Sargon

EMORY J. SLITER

"I was a stampeder during the years of the gold fever in Alaska and spent 20 odd years in that country, serving as U. S. marshal part of the time and also as chief of police of Juneau. When I returned to Seattle in 1913, the previous years of exposure and rough living had taken their toll and I commenced to suffer with rheumatism, constipation and indigestion, that weakened and pulled me down so much that I was afraid I'd finally have to give up entirely.

"After all other medicines failed to help me I started Sargon, and that was the beginning of my present splendid health. It built me right back up, gave me a wonderful appetite without a return of indigestion, my rheumatic pains don't bother me like they did back in the good old days in Alaska. Sargon Pills have rid me of constipation for the first time in years."—Emory J. Sliter, 2321 Fourth Ave., Seattle, Wash.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

LET THE WOMEN LAUGH

Woman's brain is as good as a man's—that is the latest verdict of science, as made public tonight at Cornell university.

The finding results from measurement of the brains of numerous individuals in the famous Cornell collection of the brains of notable persons. It was made by Dr. James W. Papez, assistant professor of neurology.

"There is nothing in the outer organization of the female brain," he said, "which would make it much different or inferior to that of the male. Given the same opportunities and incentives the intellectual attainments of women need not be inferior to those of men."
