

PAMPHLET ISSUED BY C. OF C. BOOSTS UMPUQUA VALLEY

The News-Review commercial printing department is today preparing to deliver to the chamber of commerce and more than a score of service stations, hotels and camp grounds throughout the county one of the most attractive tourist pamphlets to be seen in the state of Oregon. There will be 25,000 copies of the pamphlet for distribution this year, and will undoubtedly prove of great value in attracting tourists to the county and holding visitors here for a longer period of time.

The front cover, printed in two colors, is similar to that of the home-seekers' booklet, recently published by the chamber of commerce, bearing a beautiful picture of Mount Thielsen and Diamond Lake.

Inside is found a list of things to see and places to go in the Umpqua valley, listing vacation resorts, scenic attractions and industrial and agricultural centers. Special emphasis is placed on the wild game of the county, and a pen drawing attracts interest to the fishing resources. The various communities of the county are listed and the principal industries of each mentioned.

The back page carries a complete road map for the Portland-San Francisco district, with the Umpqua valley indicated by colored lines.

The pamphlet is printed upon heavy, durable paper, so that it can be retained by the tourists for a long period of time. The chamber of commerce and numerous service stations are cooperating in the publication of this guide and will place them in the hands of tourists during the coming months.

RADIO CLUB STILL SEEKING SOURCES OF INTERFERENCE

A great deal of work has been done toward elimination of radio interference in the city during the past few months, according to reports from the Roseburg Radio club, but there are still numerous troubles to be taken care of. Poor connections in lighting circuits, battery chargers, heating pads, electric controls, flashing signs, electric incubators, oil burner malfunction, electrical machines and doctors' apparatus and many other such devices, electrically operated, set up disturbances if not properly controlled and regulated, according to R. H. C. Wood, president of the club. The organization is urging its members to send in reports of interference in order that further work towards elimination may be done. Radio listeners are being urged to join the club to cooperate in the effort to provide better reception.

ward they wanted their lunch brought to the idle house, the warden said "they will stay right in there and they will starve until they are ready to come out and obey orders."

A convict named Britton informed prison officials the prisoners in the idle house had enough food to last them sixty days, and they had weapons and would resist "until hell freezes over."

Despite Warden Thomas' announced determination to "let them starve," Chief Deputy Warden Woodward coaxed the men to go to the mess hall for dinner.

Mellons Throw Aid to Grundy in Primary

With the primary election little more than a month away new political alliances are forming in the republican ranks at Roseburg, Pa., as the result of W. L. Mellon's announcement that he would support Joseph R. Grundy as a candidate for the United States senate.

to succeed himself. Mellon is a nephew of the secretary of the treasury, and will also support the gubernatorial candidacy of Francis Shunk Brown, running mate of Secretary of Labor Davis, who is seeking Grundy's seat on the ticket, backed by the organization of William S. Vare. Grundy will have the backing of Mellon, former Governor John S. Fisher and part of the state machine. Former Governor Gifford Pinchot will rely on the labor votes in his campaign for governor and Brown will be backed by both Mellon and Vare.

LAST CHANCE TOMORROW FOR CENSUS INCLUSION

When the last of the matineers left the cell blocks, guards rushed in to look for any holes the men might have made in an attempt to escape and to find any weapons hidden within.

COLUMBUS, April 28.—A determined effort to bring unruly Ohio penitentiary convicts under discipline was made today by Warden Preston E. Thomas, who called in Columbus police reserves and Ohio national guardsmen to aid in overcoming the prisoners.

Carrying out his statement that "this mutiny will be put down," the warden ordered 150 policemen into the prison yard early today, and at the breakfast hour he said the unruly men in the "white city" idle house would not eat "until we have mopped up on them."

After a night of disorder in the idle house, during which prisoners ripped down cell doors because they feared to be locked in as were the 320 men who met death a week ago by fire and smoke, the prison population awoke today to face the first effort to end the convicts' campaign of "passive resistance" against the wardenship of Thomas.

Escape Means Blocked

Police who went into the prison yard were armed with pistols, riot clubs and tear gas bombs. Outside the walls the streets and adjoining buildings bristled with machine guns of the national guard.

It was expected that after the severely prisoners, housed in the dormitories had been fed, some effort would be made by the authorities to enter the idle house and overcome the matineers.

All possible means were taken to prevent any break. When a report was made that some of the idle house men had cut a hole in the roof and had hopes for an escape, a machine gun was mounted on top of the cell block. Other guards were sent to the cellar to prevent any underground escape.

About 1300 convicts were in the idle house today. Prison officials claimed a majority of these were not involved in the passive resistance campaign, but leaders of the prisoners said most of the men were participating in the campaign.

Leaders in 'Hole'

Charles (Chuck) Quinlan and Murray A. Wolfe, two convicts serving long terms and ringleaders of the "passive resistance" committee, were taken from the White city this morning.

When the Deputy Warden J. C. Woodward called the men from the idle house those remaining began boisterous and defiantly. Quinlan and Wolfe admonished them to "cut it out and keep quiet." Quinlan is serving a term for robbery and Wolfe for forgery.

Quinlan and Wolfe were removed to a dungeon called "the Hole." There he kept in solitary confinement. It was evident that "Thomas intended to weed out the 25 leaders of the revolt from the idle house and put them in the 'Hole.' After the leaders were disposed of it was felt that the other men in the idle house would submit to discipline without a fight.

The third leader of the revolt, convicts to go into the 'Hole' was Joe Murray of Watson, Ohio, who is serving one to fifteen years for robbery. Guards took him from the idle house.

Matrons Attacked

AUBURN, N. Y., April 28.—Two inmates of the women's prison at Auburn state prison assaulted a matron with an iron bar last night in a determined attempt to escape, but were recaptured in the prison yard.

They were placed in punishment cells. The prison was reported quiet.

They were Sally Joyce Richards, of Buffalo, serving 20 years to life for robbery, and Amelia Bascom, sentenced from New York and at the prison only about ten days.

They secreted a bar in their cell. With it they tried open the door of the cell. They waited in the corridor and when Matron Mrs. Mamie Benjamin passed on her rounds shortly after midnight they knocked her unconscious. She was reported to have an inch-long cut in her head.

Gagging Mrs. Benjamin, they took her keys and made their way down two flights of steps to the basement. There they crawled through a window into the yard.

With a high wall still between them and liberty the night watchman saw them and turned in the alarm. They were quickly recaptured.

298,748, while two years ago it was 317,491.

The republican registration of 284,341 is 62,162 ahead of the 222,139 of two years ago, while the democratic gain is 19,991, or 163,295 this year against $2,304 in 1928. The progressive registration this year is only 220, prohibition 703, socialist 1995 and miscellaneous 9928.

The figures two years ago were all compiled from records in the secretary of state's office, while this year, with the exception of seven counties, they are taken from reports sent in by the county clerks. For this reason there is some doubt whether the increase is actually as large as indicated. All counties show increases except Baker, Crook, Harney, Josephine, Umatilla and Wallowa.

"The so-called bargain days, when light fines are imposed as the result of pleas of guilty, clear the docket but the result distinctly is undermining respect for law."

"No conclusion appears to have been reached as to the method of accomplishing this either by the judiciary committee of the senate or by the judiciary committee of the house of representatives."

"Three: There must be extension of federal prisons with more adequate parole system and other modern treatment of prisoners. We have already 11,855 prisoners in federal establishments built for 6,946."

"The number of federal prisoners in federal and state institutions increased 6,277 in nine months from June 30, 1929, to April 1, 1930."

"The attorney general has stated that we cannot hope to enforce the laws unless we can have some point of reception for convicted persons. The overcrowding of the prisons themselves is inhumane and accentuates criminal tendencies."

Senate Slowness Cited

"Bills providing for this relief were passed by the house and are now, I understand, in course of being reported to the senate by the judiciary committee."

"Four: We are in need of vigorous reorganization of the border patrol in order to consolidate various agencies so as effectively to prevent illegal entry of both aliens and goods. Proposals to bring about such reorganization are before the committees of congress."

"Five: The District of Columbia is without an adequate prohibition enforcement law. A bill for that purpose has been introduced and hearings have been held before the senate district committee. It should contain the safeguards recommended by the attorney general."

"We have this the limits of existing legislation improved the personnel and greatly increased the efficiency of the existing federal machinery in criminal law enforcement during the past year."

"The above reforms are necessary, however, if I am to reform the high duty which falls upon the executive of enforcement of the federal laws."

ROSEBURG AND ITS ENVIRONS WILL BE SHOWN IN MOVIES

Arrangements have been completed for the making of a complete motion picture of the city of Roseburg and vicinity, according to announcements of E. A. Gross of the Umpqua Amusement company. Mr. Gross, along with the directors of the Seaside Educational Film Productions of Hollywood, have been conferring on the matter with W. C. Harding, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, as Mr. Gross wishes the assistance of the Chamber in selecting the many different sequences to be filmed.

The picture is being made through the Umpqua Amusement company and will be presented to the Chamber of Commerce after its completion for the use of the American Legion and civic bodies to boost this section and show our basic industries, as well as scenic attractions, beauty spots and sports.

There are many points of interest and beautiful places in this county that even our own people know very little about and it will be these places and outstanding attractions that will find a place on this picture.

relating to intoxicating liquors, yet the laws relating to narcotics, automobile thefts, etc., which have been enacted by the congress during recent years, also contribute to create the present conditions. This is well indicated by the fact that less than one-third of federal prisoners are due to prohibition.

"Our obedience to law, our law enforcement and judicial organization, or judicial procedure, our care and methods of handling prisoners, in relation to not only federal government but also to the state and municipal governments, are far from the standards that must be secured. These proposals, while they do not comprehend the whole which remains to be done in the nation, are a step toward lifting the federal standards which must have a general beneficial influence."

the sky, and radio signals from Mare Island naval observatory were to start the cameras clicking when the moon starts to blot out the sun.

The previous eclipse cast a shadow from 75 miles to 150 miles wide, but the present eclipse will be about 3,000 feet. For this reason Professor Moore had set up several cameras within the space of half a mile.

Near Camptonville was another party of scientists from the University of Nevada; one from Johns-Hopkins of Baltimore and a third from Pomona college at Claremont, Cal.

Stationed near Honey Lake were scientists from Mt. Wilson observatory, while nearby was the Allegheny expedition from Pittsburgh, Pa.

One of the planes used to photograph the eclipse was to take off from Mather field, Sacramento, carrying motion picture and still cameras. The plane was piloted by Thomas Fowler and Al Hutton, who carried oxygen tanks for use at high altitudes.

Captain A. W. Stephens of Dayton, Ohio, flew in another plane of the United States army air corps to photograph the moon's shadow from a high altitude over Honey Lake. Lieutenant Wallace Walthall piloted the ship.

The objective of the army photographers was to take views of the moon's shadow as it passed over the earth.

Success Assured

CAMPTONVILLE, Cal., April 28.—When the sun was half covered at 10:20 a large aperture was in the clouds through which the sky was blue and directly in the path of the sun. It was almost a certainty that the observations would be 100 per cent successful. There was a slight cloud bank between the opening through which the sun was visible and the field of blue further on. Lick astronomers said they were delighted and that it seemed almost impossible the undertaking would turn out unsuccessfully.

Roseburg residents were enabled to secure an excellent view of the eclipse of the sun today. Although the sky was partly cloudy, the sun was obscured only for short intervals, and during the peak of the eclipse visibility was good. The shadow made its appearance about 9:20 a. m. and the eclipse reached its maximum two hours later. The shadow's movement was watched by the majority of Roseburg residents who brought out smoked glasses, films and even a few telescopes with sun lens.

Crizzard for the death of her son, Douglas, who she charged was clawed to death by a tiger while the circus was playing here in May, 1929. Mrs. Crizzard alleged the boy was hired by the circus to care for buffalo but instead was assigned to water the tigers.

A Favorite Kipling Story

It is recorded of this well-known British author that he once remonstrated with a friend for having sent him a publication from which the advertising pages had been cut. "Why, you have thrown away the most interesting section!" Mr. Kipling said.

Advertisements are more interesting today than at any time since the invention of movable type. Merchants and manufacturers realize that their announcements must compete for interest with the work of the high-priced authors and illustrators.

If you are not a regular reader of the advertisements in this paper, this is a good time to cultivate their acquaintance. You will find them interesting. You will find them friendly. They show you where to stop and take considerable strain off both shoe-leather and pocketbooks.

Read the advertisements because they are interesting. Believe them because they are true. Act upon their suggestions because it will pay you in many ways. Before you pick up the telephone, you usually consult the phone book. Before you start out to shop consult the advertising columns of this paper. They will give you a direct connection with the merchandise you want.

Don't stop with reading the news and editorials. The advertising columns are equally important
