POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

CHILD HEALTH DAY

Whereas the congress by joint resolution has authorized and requested the president of the United States of America to proclaim annually that May day is child health day; and

Whereas all the states of the union, together with Alaska and Porto Rico, through their health officers, medical societies and other agencies of good will, with their support of their respective governors, are now actively supporting organized child health programs; and

Whereas the White House conference for child health and protection, composed of groups distinguished in all the vital phases of child life, is mobilizing knowledge in practical application for submission to the country at large; and

Whereas, while applied science and invention have given us world leadership in mechanical processes, we shall fall short of our highest aspirations if we fail to practice all that science can give in service of our fundamental asset—our children; now,

Therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate May 1 of this year as child health day, and I do invite all our people and all our agencies interested in boys and girls to assist every reasonable effort of their communities to make this day a day for organization and co-ordinating interest in child health.

Our children have the right to be born in health, to be well throughout babyhood and the preschool years; to be surrounded with moral and spiritual inspiration; to work and to play through primary school with well minds based on well bodies; to enjoy and to profit to the utmost by their higher schooling because of wholesome habits of thought and deed; to graduate into adult life, strong in body and inculcated with the sense of fair play and of responsibility, for the rights of others.—From President Hoover's Proclamation, April, 1926.

In this sweet season of the year When all the earth is shouting cheer, When flowers, springing from earth's sod, Are breathing fragrance unto God, 'Tis meet that we should render thanks For childhood's joyous hopeful ranks Which greet their life with morning face, And fill the land with smiling grace.

The future rests in childhood's hands— If they are great the nation stands. If we shall train them to be strong, They soon will sing the victor's song. To build them up in stalwart health Is to insure the nation's wealth. For, to its joy or to its sorrow, 'Tis they must rule the world tomorrow.

'Tis ours to guide youth's steps aright To train their pinions for the flight; They face an age far more complex Than did our childhood efforts vex; They need a keen and virile mind Their way through life today to find. 'Tis ours to give them vision clear That they may find the things most dear.

'Tis ours to guard the public schools Where youth will learn its living rules, To see that back of muscles firm There lurks no vicious social germ, That back of keenest scholarship There is a steady moral grip. That long with highest mental tone Their souls shall breathe the true ozone.

Tea in vacuum! Just like your coffee! It is just as vital for one as it is for the other, to prevent the evaporation of the fragrant volatile oils that give them both their flavor. Science has been longer discovering how to do it for tea. It requires a special process—so far a Schilling secret. Try it, and find what you have been missing all these years.
