EARLY ACTION ON ROAD SURVEY PLEDGED

Editorials on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS
WHEN you think of a telegraphic dispatch, you think instinctively of a little instrument about the size of a cigar box, with one side left open, clicking its message in the slow Morse code to the educated ear of a human operator.

When you think of an answer to a telegram you think of this same operator pounding it out on a key with the trained second finger of his right hand.
You think thus because of habit.

YOU would find it interesting to pay a visit to the telegraph room of this newspaper.
You will find there two machines about the size of a small electric stove. To the accompaniment of whirring motors, these machines type messages on an endless roll of paper at about the speed of a good stenographer.

They are operated from the sending end by a perforated paper tape which is fed into the sending machine.

AN EVEN more astonishing machine will be in use in newspaper establishments before long.
It will connect these automatic telegraph machines with the linotype machines on which the type is set, so that the operator sending, perhaps, from New York, will actually set the type in the composing room of the News-Review, here in Roseburg.

This one operator, possibly thousands or miles away, will set the type in the composing room of EVERY NEWSPAPER connected with the circuit.

IF YOU are of middle age, you think of a newspaper press as a machine into which an operator feeds sheets of paper one at a time, to be printed slowly and later folded either by hand or on another rather slow machine.

The press on which this newspaper, which you are now reading, is printed takes paper in an endless belt from large rolls at one end and turns out finished newspapers, all ready for the carriers, at the other end.

It is controlled entirely by an electrical mechanism operated by controls under the fingers of the press foreman.

THE press on which the Roseburg newspapers were first printed produced about a thousand papers per hour.
The press which prints this newspaper which you are now reading will produce three thousand copies.

"Red" Cagle Dismissed From West Point

MARRIAGE IN SECRET JUST MADE KNOWN

Cadet Football Star Took Louisiana Girl for His Bride at Gretna in August of 1928.

Action, First Denied, Now Admitted—Demand for His Resignation Is Compelled With.

(Associated Press Local Wire)
WEST POINT, N. Y., May 13.—Cadet Christian Keener Cagle resigned today from the United States military academy after presenting a certificate saying that he was married. The resignation was requested by Major General William R. Smith, superintendent of the academy, and was forwarded at once to the war department at Washington.

Information concerning Cagle's marriage in Gretna, Louisiana, Aug. 25, 1928, contained in an Associated Press dispatch, was the first detailed evidence received at West Point. It was understood that following an investigation of rumors, Cagle had explicitly denied being married.

Marriage by any cadet is strictly prohibited by the regulations and, after every leave or furlough, is obliged to sign a certificate guaranteeing he has done nothing in violation of the rules.

It was recalled Cagle over-stayed a Christmas holiday furlough in 1928 and was disciplined by assignment to three months extra guard duty.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—Records in the court at Gretna, Jefferson parish, Louisiana, today revealed that Christian Keener Cagle, the "red head" army football star, and

KIWANIS MAGAZINE BOOSTS ROSEBURG

The current issue of the Kiwanis magazine, which goes to every Kiwanian in the United States and Canada, carries a two-page spread devoted to the activities of the Roseburg Kiwanis club. The story, furnished by the agricultural committee of the local club, deals with the farm program which has been carried on locally.

The Roseburg club several years ago started a program of meeting with the granges of the county in joint programs, and the results were such that clubs all over the country have written for information on how the work was carried on. The Roseburg club is known among all the clubs of the organization for its agricultural activities.

The Kiwanis magazine, in devoting so much space to this endeavor, is giving Roseburg some excellent publicity. The article is illustrated with pictures of the farm picnics and grange meetings.

KILLER OF CABMAN BELIEVED INSANE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—A first degree murder charge was placed today against J. Warren Dutton, 36, wealthy Mendocino county rancher, following the death last night of 26-year-old Robert Arnolde, taxi-driver, shot five times by the rancher while riding in the youth's cab.

The apparently unprovoked attack occurred early yesterday as Arnolde was driving Dutton up Powell street to a fashionable Nob Hill apartment. Without warning, Dutton drew his revolver and sent five bullets into the youth's body. Young Arnolde collapsed and the cab crashed into a building. The rancher fled, but surrendered a short time later.

At police headquarters, Dutton described the shooting and became hysterical. He struggled furiously when officers attempted to put him in a cell, ripping a telephone from the wall and shouting threats.

Hours of questioning failed to elicit a coherent story and the reason for the attack still remained unexplained.

Dutton's wife, the former Katherine Fletcher of San Rafael, brought suit for divorce at Ukiah three months ago, charging mental and physical cruelty. She was admitted as a patient at the University of California hospital a few days ago. Dutton is a member of the pioneer Solano county family which founded Dutton's landing.

Casper Ornbach, San Francisco attorney who is associated with Dutton in the Greenwood ranch on the Greenwood coast, said Dutton would enter a "not guilty by reason of insanity" plea when Arraigned. Dutton, he said, was a frequent sufferer of hallucinations and probably was the victim of one when he shot Arnolde.

OSLO, Norway, May 13.—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, famous explorer and humanitarian, died today. He was 68 years of age.

The far-reaching effect of all his works was indicated by numerous honors and decorations bestowed upon him by countries in all parts of the world.

In 1889 Dr. Nansen married Eva Sars, a noted singer and daughter of Professor Michael Sars of Christiania university. They had five children. Mrs. Nansen died in 1907 and twelve years later the

Courthouse Sacrificed to Fury of Texas Mob

Telephoto at top shows courthouse at Sherman county, Texas, after being fired by a mob last Friday in its effort to get a negro who had confessed to assaulting a white woman—the wife of a farmer. Lower photo shows firemen fighting the blaze, with the mob at the left in the background. The courthouse was valued at $60,000. Owing to the fact that troops who attempted to protect the negro were attacked by the mob, the official inquiry now in progress is of military character. Twenty-eight alleged participants in the attack have been arrested. The negro, George Hughes, 41, died in a vault in the courthouse, where officers had placed him in their attempt to protect him from the angry crowd which stormed the buildings for hours. The mob finally fired the building and later obtained the negro's body from the ruins and burned it in the negro settlement. Then the mob wrecked three blocks of homes in the negro quarter of the city.

COIN READY IF DISTRICT PLAN WINS

County Court Willing to Advance Money to Start North Umpqua Task.

Boundary Lines Drawn for Proposed Area Needs Close Attention at Election.

In the event the voters decide at the polls Friday to form the North Umpqua highway improvement district, it will be possible to get the survey started this year. County Judge Walter S. Hamilton declared today.

The county court is ready to take the same measure with the North Umpqua district as were provided for the Drain-Reservoir project. When the district is created and the amount of the tax to be levied is determined, the amount now being set for 2 mills, the county court will advance to the district the sum of money that would be raised by this tax. This is not to be taken permanently from county funds, but is merely advanced to the district to expedite getting the project underway. The county will reimburse itself for the funds advanced when the district tax is collected.

This will make it possible, if the district is created to get a survey made during the coming summer and to secure estimates on the probable cost, so that work can actually be started the following year, provided the cooperation basis can be arranged. Ample time will be given, under this arrangement, to get all preliminary work done in time for actual construction during the summer of 1931.

Hard Task for Judges
Several of the voting precincts are divided by the boundary lines of the proposed super road district, making the task of the election judges a difficult one. A district who is entitled to vote and who is not, in several places the line passes through farms, where a part of the land is included, so that the owner who lives just outside the line will not be able to vote, although his land will be taxed.

The west line of the proposed district follows the north-south line between ranges 5 and 6 west, and a line at Roseburg to take to the territory inside the city limits.

The northern Edenhower district in a peculiar manner. The line, striking due north from the river, crosses the Pacific highway just north of the Bywater store, passing east of Camp View, crossing the highway.
