

AMERICANS HOLD
OWN IN BRITISH
GOLF TOURNAMENT

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
SANDWICH, Eng., May 15.—George Von Elm and George Voigt finished the first half of their Walker cup golf foursomes match with Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered two up.

Bobby Jones, American captain, and Dr. C. E. Willing of Portland, Ore., were five up at the end of the first eighteen holes of their four-somes match, with T. A. Torrance and Rex Hartley of England.

Von Elm and Voigt fought a great battle with Tolley and Wethered. The Americans took a one-hole lead at the third hole but the British pair squared the match at the sixth and they were all-even at the turn.

Tolley and Wethered went into the lead for the first time at the tenth when the Americans needed five, but Voigt and Von Elm squared the match at the thirteenth. Then the Americans won the fourteenth and fifteenth in succession to go two up. Wethered and Tolley needed six on both holes. The last three holes were halved, leaving the Americans in possession of a two-hole lead at the end of the first half of the match.

A spectacular rally enabled Don Moe of Portland, Ore., and Roland Mackenzie of Washington to lead Sir Ernest Holderness and J. A. Stout, one up at the end of the first 18 holes. The Americans were three down at the thirteenth but played great golf from then on to finish the first half of the match in the lead.

The fourth American pair, Harrison R. Johnston of St. Paul, and Francis Outmet of Boston, also led their British opponents, William Campbell and John Nelson Smith, at the halfway mark. The Americans had a lead of three up at the end of the first 18 holes.

COLLEGE YOUTH
NABBED, TRYING
TO EXTORT $3000

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
LOS ANGELES, May 14.—Because of his desire to obtain money with which to continue his schooling at the Pasadena, Cal., junior college, Bernard Swalley, 21, of Birmingham, Ala., today is held in the county jail charged with attempting to extort $3,000 from Mrs. F. W. Emery, widow of a wealthy San Marino, Cal., oil and lumber magnate.

Swalley was arrested when he appeared to collect the $3,000 at a spot designated in a typewritten note in which he threatened to "shoot, gasb or burn to death" the widow unless she complied with his demands. He offered no resistance when police surprised him digging in the ground for the money, and admitted authorship of the extortion notes.

Although three other youths, Leo Trimbley, 21, Jack Harback, 21, and Sylvester Bertram, 24, were arrested and are being questioned in connection with the case, police said Swalley assumed full responsibility for the alleged extortion plot.

After turning the notes over to police, Mrs. Emery left for a trip to Europe. Thoroughly frightened by the notes, however, she became ill in New York city and is now reported under the care of physicians in that city.

STATE MARKET
AGENT'S LETTER

School for Warehousemen.
Standardizing Preserves.
Wheat Conditions and Price.
Chairman Legge's Remedy.
National Grange Office.

By SEYMOUR JONES
A grading and testing school for all warehouse managers and operators is being held at the wheat growing centers of the inland empire under the direction of the federal department of grain inspection, the Oregon state grain inspection department and the Oregon State college extension service. The warehousemen are taught the grading of wheat and how to put samples through for test, and are given a general practical instruction in these lines. The course includes two or three days in a place and covers the upper country quite thoroughly. The principal men participating in it are R. E. White of the Pacific coast headquarters of the federal grain supervision; C. W. Wright, chief inspector and A. V. Butts, inspector of the state grain inspection department, and G. K. Landers, U. S. district supervisor.

The National Grange, says the Bulletin, is giving its support to the Reed-Jones bill, which proposes to establish definite standards for jams, jellies, preserves, fruit butters and similar products so rapidly coming to the market. No legal standards for such products are now defined, except by department rulings, which prove unenforceable, and the Grange believes that the enactment of definite standards with legal machinery for their enforcement will result in raising the quality of preserved fruit products, thereby protecting the consumer, and by increasing the consumption, will be directly beneficial to all fruit growers. Many practices of adulteration and misbranding have crept into the preserve industry and the sale of low grade and otherwise inferior products has reached such proportions that the Grange insists that congress must protect alike the consumer and producer.

Grain prices continued to decline in futures during the past week and reached new low points for wheat and corn, but yesterday wheat took an upward turn stimulated by adverse crop reports from southwestern states. Following statistics are gleaned from recent government reports: The acreage sown to winter wheat in Oregon last fall was 326,000 acres, but since then 54,000 acres have been abandoned through various causes, leaving 272,000 acres, the yield of which is estimated at 19 bushels per acre, or 5,168,000 bushels. This compares with 13,712,000 bushels harvested last year and with a 5-year average of 17,454,000 bushels. In the United States 43,434,000 acres were sown last fall and 38,675,000 acres are left for harvest. The yield is estimated 25,070,000 bushels, compared with 378,336,000 last year and a 5-year average of 547,785,000 bushels.

Chairman Legge of the federal farm board proposes the following question and explanation: "If growers get more money by raising four bushels of wheat where they are now raising five why should they destroy the market by raising the extra bushel? A 20 per cent reduction would make the tariff effective, but the 10 per cent we are now suggesting would in our judgment put the trade on a fairly healthy basis. If farmers are going ahead trying to produce an additional surplus on the basis that some way will be found to take

200 FARMERS OF
OREGON SCHOOLED
BY O. S. C. RADIO

CORVALLIS, Ore., May 15.—More than 200 farmers in Oregon are going to night school every Wednesday—by radio. These farmers are enrolled in a soil improvement course started several months ago by Dr. W. L. Powers, chief in soils at Oregon State college, who started the plan over the college station KOAC as an experiment with a bare half dozen "students."

The course proved so popular that farmers from all sections of the state registered and now, in addition to listening regularly, receive especially prepared circulars each month on the subjects discussed.

To this radio class Dr. Powers is distributing the results of the soil survey of nine million acres of Oregon land. He is also giving the findings of 20 years experiments including crop rotation and irrigation tests which show possible profitable returns from supplemental irrigation on a half million acres in Willamette valley.
