

Roseburg News-Review

Member of The Associated Press... Published Daily Except Sunday by the News-Review Co., Inc.

Subscription Rates: Daily, per year, $1.00; Single copy, 5c.

GOLF is King

GOLF has grown to be our greatest popular sport, judged by the standpoint of the number of persons who play it.

Letters From the People: Communications to the News-Review for publication in this department should be written on only one side of the paper.

DESERVING CREDIT IS TAKEN FOR SUPREMACY AT COUNTY TRACK MEET

Myrtle Creek, Ore., May 21. Editor of the Roseburg News-Review:—

It was not a fair basis of comparison for the Roseburg schools to represent themselves as winners of the Douglas county track meet.

To Prohibit "Hitch-Hiking"

A LAW to prohibit "hitch-hiking" has been passed in New York state. It is made unlawful for persons to stand at the roadside.

Sign Boards Threatened

The Oregon Federation of Women's clubs is going right ahead with its plans to abolish a referendum vote of the people on highway advertising signs.

Oregon Editors' Opinions

The greatest grief of Joseph H. Grundy over his defeat for governor will be that Pennsylvania has joined the ranks of what he has termed the "backward states" even good old, rock-ribbed, coal-streaked Pennsylvania.

There is no joy in Pennsylvania for the pure, incorruptible insurgents, for they are nominated for senate by the open support of the innumerable Vars, whom the senate drove from its doors.

Vindicated (Corvallis Gazette-Times) Mr. Joseph says he is "vindicated." Yeah? He asked for a "vindication" two years ago too.

How Does He Know? (Medford Mail-Tribune) "Agnes Powers and Clarence Ryan have announced their intention of holding hands eternally."

Maybe I'm Wrong (By J. P. MEDBURY) A COLLEGE boy went to heaven the other day and tried to exchange his harp for a saxophone.

Habitual Criminals—The fellow who was so crooked that the day he was born he picked the doctor's pocket and went through the nurse's hand-bag.

Excuse It Please—It takes a woman to add the finishing touches to a self-made man.

Supreme Egotists—The guy who would the Carnegie Foundation to give him a medal for saving his own life.

Take It or Leave It—Where there's a telephone you'll find the handwriting on the wall.

The Unfair Sex—The grass widow who had scarlet fever and tried to make everybody thing she was blushing.

Necessary Evils—Chewing gum was invented so that bespeckled husbands would have some way of exercising their jaws.

Pitiful Cases—A kleptomaniac who also has the hook worm.

Asap's Fables—"I'll get right up in the morning, the minute the alarm clock goes off."

Our Own Vaudeville—Dorothy: Mamma, what's a city slicker? Mother: A street cleaner.

Talks on Health (By DR. R. S. COPELAND)

BATHING the baby is one of the most important proceedings in infant hygiene. To do it correctly is a real art.

Most mothers go about it with the greatest confidence. Many another, particularly the young mother, starts in with fear and trembling.

There is no cure so great for the little, helpless babies given us to protect. It is this protecting care that guarantees good health in future years.

The skin of a newly-born baby is extremely sensitive. The slightest heat or cold is felt by the tender skin. It is chilled by the slightest exposure.

At first, bathing of the infant should be done by the nurse. She takes the child on her lap, and after sponging and soaping the skin the baby is gently dipped into the tub for no more than a mere rinsing.

After a few days of this method the infant can be gradually accustomed to immersion in the neck. The period of bathing is extended gradually.

Cold baths should never be given an infant. The bath is best given midway between the morning feedings.

It is important that a pure, mild soap be used. If it is too strong the tender skin will be irritated. Pure white castile, or olive oil soap is best for the baby.

After bathing the baby should be thoroughly dried. There is danger of the skin chapping unless this is done. A baby powder is used, usually in order to make sure of making the skin perfectly dry. This keeps the skin from chafing.

It is extremely important that a child shall not be left in wet garments. If it is there will be chafing and chapping of the skin and much discomfort. Wet clothing should be changed at once.

A healthy baby should have a daily bath during the first two years. The scalp should be washed daily only until the child is six months old. In hot weather, a baby may be sponged off in the early evening. This will be cooling and soothing.

Petroleum oil is often used for

BRINGING UP FATHER

© 1930, Int'l Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

Maybe I'm Wrong

By J. P. MEDBURY

A COLLEGE boy went to heaven the other day and tried to exchange his harp for a saxophone.

Habitual Criminals—The fellow who was so crooked that the day he was born he picked the doctor's pocket and went through the nurse's hand-bag.

Excuse It Please—It takes a woman to add the finishing touches to a self-made man.

Supreme Egotists—The guy who would the Carnegie Foundation to give him a medal for saving his own life.

Take It or Leave It—Where there's a telephone you'll find the handwriting on the wall.

The Unfair Sex—The grass widow who had scarlet fever and tried to make everybody thing she was blushing.

Necessary Evils—Chewing gum was invented so that bespeckled husbands would have some way of exercising their jaws.

Pitiful Cases—A kleptomaniac who also has the hook worm.

Asap's Fables—"I'll get right up in the morning, the minute the alarm clock goes off."

Our Own Vaudeville—Dorothy: Mamma, what's a city slicker? Mother: A street cleaner.

Talks on Health (By DR. R. S. COPELAND)

BATHING the baby is one of the most important proceedings in infant hygiene. To do it correctly is a real art.

Most mothers go about it with the greatest confidence. Many another, particularly the young mother, starts in with fear and trembling.

There is no cure so great for the little, helpless babies given us to protect. It is this protecting care that guarantees good health in future years.

The skin of a newly-born baby is extremely sensitive. The slightest heat or cold is felt by the tender skin. It is chilled by the slightest exposure.

At first, bathing of the infant should be done by the nurse. She takes the child on her lap, and after sponging and soaping the skin the baby is gently dipped into the tub for no more than a mere rinsing.

After a few days of this method the infant can be gradually accustomed to immersion in the neck. The period of bathing is extended gradually.

Cold baths should never be given an infant. The bath is best given midway between the morning feedings.

It is important that a pure, mild soap be used. If it is too strong the tender skin will be irritated. Pure white castile, or olive oil soap is best for the baby.

After bathing the baby should be thoroughly dried. There is danger of the skin chapping unless this is done. A baby powder is used, usually in order to make sure of making the skin perfectly dry. This keeps the skin from chafing.

It is extremely important that a child shall not be left in wet garments. If it is there will be chafing and chapping of the skin and much discomfort. Wet clothing should be changed at once.

A healthy baby should have a daily bath during the first two years. The scalp should be washed daily only until the child is six months old. In hot weather, a baby may be sponged off in the early evening. This will be cooling and soothing.

Petroleum oil is often used for

By Geo. McManus

© 1930, Int'l Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE: How do you advise a girl to attract the man she admires? For two years I have known him and although I have been in his company at parties and gatherings he has never paid any particular attention to me.

Every baby is better off if it has a room set apart from the rest of the family. It should sleep alone in a bed and in fact all through childhood it should sleep by itself.

The temperature of such a room should be between 68 degrees and 70 degrees F. and not over 72 degrees. At night it should not fall below 65 degrees during the baby's first year.

A clean, sweetly smiling baby is the most appealing thing in the world. This should be every child's heritage. A perfect skin usually denotes good health and a well baby is apt to be a happy baby.

Editorials on News

(Continued from page 1)

nated something like a MILLION years ago.

THE current theory is that man came to America only very recently—that is, within the last few thousand years.

It is rather generally supposed that they crossed over from Siberia by way of Alaska, and thence drifted slowly down the Pacific coast, through Oregon.

If this is true, the Pacific coast is the OLDEST SETTLED part of the United States, instead of the newest.

There is another theory, however, to the effect that human beings first reached America by way of the South Sea Islands of the Pacific, drifting from island to island in canoes, thus eventually reaching South America.

It is because of their bearing on these theories, and others, that fossil bones hold so much scientific interest, and that is why their finding is played up in the newspapers.

You might find a fossil bone right here in Oregon, for example that would upset all the existing theories about the coming of man to this continent.

If you did, it would be quite a story for the papers.

RUN TO LEONA FIRE PREVENTED BY POOR TIRES ON PUMPER

The Roseburg fire department was unable to answer the call from Leona Saturday night because of the condition of the tires on the big pumper, according to Fire Chief James Fletcher.

The department has followed a policy of answering calls from neighboring towns whenever possible, although these communities do not contribute to the support of the department. Had the truck been in perfect condition, Mr. Fletcher says, the machine would have been rushed to the scene as rapidly as possible.

The tires on the truck, however, are nearly six years old, and it was feared that they would not stand the trip, which would have had to be made at high speed. If one of these tires should blow out, wreck the engine, and possibly injure those riding upon it.

The condition of the tires was reported to the budget committee in the fall, but as yet the old tires have not been replaced. Tires for the huge pumper cost slightly more than $100 each.

Picnicking at Idlelyd Park—Adv.

WHERE'S EMILY? by Carolyn Wells

CHAPTER XII

"I know her by her spiritual moods, her psychic manifestations. I can say that she would do with more accurate knowledge than those who know her in her daily walks and avocations."

"Then say it!" exploded Gibby. He didn't want to encourage this foolishness, but he felt he must get every possible angle of the situation.

"Ah, that cannot be done impromptu. I would require time. Only through the mystic ecstasy may we achieve a veritable glimpse into eternity, may we become an ethereal floating part of the great All, at one with the great Over-Soul of the Universe. Earthbound, we can do nothing, but once taste Nirvana—"

"Cut it out, Swami," begged Gibby, not rudely, but as one who can stand no more. "I just wanted a little sample, just to get the drift, you know. I've got it, so don't waste any more on me."

Lal Singh looked at him with a face of mild reproach, but Pete described a baleful gleam in his eyes, and he couldn't help wondering if the Hindu had anything to do with Emily's disappearance.

But the idea was too fantastic, and he put it aside in favor of more practical theories. "I haven't had enough, Mr. Singh," Nell Harding told him. "I wish you'd instruct me further in your fascinating philosophy. Come out on the veranda with me and give me a little lesson."

"The two went off, and Gibby said to Aunt Judy: "What do you know of that Scum?" "Oh, my!" said Aunt Judy, shocked at the speech, "I don't know much, to be sure, but you mustn't speak like that! He's a holy man!"

"Holy caterpillar!" Pete snorted. "He's a first-class fake. I don't say there aren't true and sincere theosophists, but I never happened to meet any. And, take it from me, this Lal Singh isn't one of them. Who is he?"

"Why, I don't know," Aunt Judy spoke helplessly. "He's a friend of the Penns." "Mrs. Penn, or both?" "Mostly Polly's friend, I guess. But Jim Likes him, too." "And Emily likes him?" "Oh, they're all crazy about him. He has made a hit in the place, and he's invited everywhere, and all the best people go to his meetings and lectures."

"Of course they do! Well, he's no Swami, to begin with, and I doubt if he's a Hindu at all." "What of it?" asked Betty. "Who cares anything about him? He didn't kidnap Emily, did he?" "Maybe he did," said Gibby, thoughtfully. "You know he's bound, bent and determined to get money from her—a lot of money— isn't he, Aunt Judy?"

"Yes," came the somewhat reluctant reply. "But she has made a bequest—"

"Bequest nothing! He wants it now. What price his abducting her for ransom?" "I can't think that, Pete," Aunt Judy smiled. "But be careful, he may overhear your flattering opinion of him."

"No," said Gibby, "he and Neil have gone to the arbor to sit. I saw them pass the window when they first went outside. I suppose she's drinking in his mystic babble and pretending to understand it."

"Well, it won't hurt her," and Aunt Judy resumed to the subject nearest her heart. "Why do you suppose Rod doesn't come back?" "Because he has no report to make," said Pete sadly, and then they all sat silent for a time.

"P. S. I cannot find pleasure in anyone else's company, all I want is him." "BROWN EYES: The young man is as well able to write as you are. If he is desirous of continuing the friendship, he will communicate with you. Perhaps he is the wisest of your first decision, and feels that you are both too young for a love affair."

GROUP WILL STAGE REPLICA OF TRIAL On Monday, June 2, at 8:00 p. m., the salient features of the dramatic murder trial, "Who Killed Earl Wright?" will be reproduced in the Odd Fellows hall at Oakland, Oregon. Twenty-four Oakland and Sutherland people will participate in the presentation of this trial.

The following Oakland and Sutherland people will participate: Prosecutor, Dr. R. E. Penn; Judge, Rev. F. L. Young; defendant, Ray Pittman; bootlegger, C. W. Hartley; Mrs. French, Mrs. Wilson Hartshorn; coroner, W. Castor; bailiff, Rev. Thomas C. Robinson; sheriff, George W. French; reporter, Margaret Anderson; widow, Miss Olive Merritt. Twelve local men and women will serve as a jury.

Rev. R. E. Close of Portland will take the part of the defense attorney. There will be no admission charge. An offering will be taken to promote the prohibition work in Oregon. Children are welcome but must be accompanied by and sit with their parents.

On Tuesday evening, June 3, at 8:00 p. m., the same trial will be reproduced in the Community hall, Sutherland. The above mentioned people will take part in the presentation of the trial in Sutherland.

U. S. EMPLOYEES NOW $57,665 WASHINGTON, May 27.—United States army of civil workers now numbers 57,665. This is the number under civil service according to the annual report for the fiscal year of 1929-30, and represents an increase of 18,250 over the previous year.

CHAPTER XII

"I know her by her spiritual moods, her psychic manifestations. I can say that she would do with more accurate knowledge than those who know her in her daily walks and avocations."

"Then say it!" exploded Gibby. He didn't want to encourage this foolishness, but he felt he must get every possible angle of the situation.

"Ah, that cannot be done impromptu. I would require time. Only through the mystic ecstasy may we achieve a veritable glimpse into eternity, may we become an ethereal floating part of the great All, at one with the great Over-Soul of the Universe. Earthbound, we can do nothing, but once taste Nirvana—"

"Cut it out, Swami," begged Gibby, not rudely, but as one who can stand no more. "I just wanted a little sample, just to get the drift, you know. I've got it, so don't waste any more on me."

Lal Singh looked at him with a face of mild reproach, but Pete described a baleful gleam in his eyes, and he couldn't help wondering if the Hindu had anything to do with Emily's disappearance.

But the idea was too fantastic, and he put it aside in favor of more practical theories. "I haven't had enough, Mr. Singh," Nell Harding told him. "I wish you'd instruct me further in your fascinating philosophy. Come out on the veranda with me and give me a little lesson."

"The two went off, and Gibby said to Aunt Judy: "What do you know of that Scum?" "Oh, my!" said Aunt Judy, shocked at the speech, "I don't know much, to be sure, but you mustn't speak like that! He's a holy man!"

"Holy caterpillar!" Pete snorted. "He's a first-class fake. I don't say there aren't true and sincere theosophists, but I never happened to meet any. And, take it from me, this Lal Singh isn't one of them. Who is he?"

"Why, I don't know," Aunt Judy spoke helplessly. "He's a friend of the Penns." "Mrs. Penn, or both?" "Mostly Polly's friend, I guess. But Jim Likes him, too." "And Emily likes him?" "Oh, they're all crazy about him. He has made a hit in the place, and he's invited everywhere, and all the best people go to his meetings and lectures."

"Of course they do! Well, he's no Swami, to begin with, and I doubt if he's a Hindu at all." "What of it?" asked Betty. "Who cares anything about him? He didn't kidnap Emily, did he?" "Maybe he did," said Gibby, thoughtfully. "You know he's bound, bent and determined to get money from her—a lot of money— isn't he, Aunt Judy?"

"Yes," came the somewhat reluctant reply. "But she has made a bequest—"

"Bequest nothing! He wants it now. What price his abducting her for ransom?" "I can't think that, Pete," Aunt Judy smiled. "But be careful, he may overhear your flattering opinion of him."

"No," said Gibby, "he and Neil have gone to the arbor to sit. I saw them pass the window when they first went outside. I suppose she's drinking in his mystic babble and pretending to understand it."

"Well, it won't hurt her," and Aunt Judy resumed to the subject nearest her heart. "Why do you suppose Rod doesn't come back?" "Because he has no report to make," said Pete sadly, and then they all sat silent for a time.

"P. S. I cannot find pleasure in anyone else's company, all I want is him." "BROWN EYES: The young man is as well able to write as you are. If he is desirous of continuing the friendship, he will communicate with you. Perhaps he is the wisest of your first decision, and feels that you are both too young for a love affair."

GROUP WILL STAGE REPLICA OF TRIAL On Monday, June 2, at 8:00 p. m., the salient features of the dramatic murder trial, "Who Killed Earl Wright?" will be reproduced in the Odd Fellows hall at Oakland, Oregon. Twenty-four Oakland and Sutherland people will participate in the presentation of this trial.

The following Oakland and Sutherland people will participate: Prosecutor, Dr. R. E. Penn; Judge, Rev. F. L. Young; defendant, Ray Pittman; bootlegger, C. W. Hartley; Mrs. French, Mrs. Wilson Hartshorn; coroner, W. Castor; bailiff, Rev. Thomas C. Robinson; sheriff, George W. French; reporter, Margaret Anderson; widow, Miss Olive Merritt. Twelve local men and women will serve as a jury.

Rev. R. E. Close of Portland will take the part of the defense attorney. There will be no admission charge. An offering will be taken to promote the prohibition work in Oregon. Children are welcome but must be accompanied by and sit with their parents.

On Tuesday evening, June 3, at 8:00 p. m., the same trial will be reproduced in the Community hall, Sutherland. The above mentioned people will take part in the presentation of the trial in Sutherland.

U. S. EMPLOYEES NOW $57,665 WASHINGTON, May 27.—United States army of civil workers now numbers 57,665. This is the number under civil service according to the annual report for the fiscal year of 1929-30, and represents an increase of 18,250 over the previous year.

know, the thing to do is to call in the police." "I quite agree to that, and I think it should have been done sooner. However, Mrs. Bell is distinctly opposed to it, and so we'll have to wait for Rodney Sayre's return. He was opposed, also, but I think his common sense will make him agree to it. He doesn't particularly like the Swami, but he doesn't dislike him as much as I do. Can't we get a line on that bird at once, without waiting for Rod?"

"I don't know. He was here this evening, wasn't he?" "Yes, talking twaddle about mysticism and things." "Really? I wonder she put that codicil to her will."

"He probably hypnotized her into it. Who in Hilldale knows him best?" "Oh, the Stevensons, I guess. They introduced him here. Want to call them up?"

"No, I think I'll go over there. Are they easy people to talk to?" "Delightful. But, I'd keep the matter quiet a little longer, don't you think? The search party may bring some news."

"Can't wait, I've got to move. If Rod comes home, call me at the Stevensons."

Feeling the imperative need of action, Gibby went to the Stevensons' house. He went cross-lots, and though the road was a new one to him, he had a fine sense of direction and went straight to his goal.

He thought as he plodded along that this must be the very road Emily had traversed when she started for the hospital. At least, it was the road she meant to take, whether she had ever done so or not.

She had certainly not reached the hospital, and who could know just where she had changed her course? (To Be Continued Tomorrow) Copyright 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HEALTH RESORT HOTEL IN WASHINGTON (Associated Press leased wire) STEVENSON, Wash., May 26.—The Moffett Hot Springs hotel, a health resort, burned to the ground today with a loss estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000. Fourteen patients were removed from the building safely, and most of their personal effects was saved. The fire is thought to have started from a spark on the roof. The hotel was run by a group of Vancouver, Wash., business men.

Eat barbecue sandwiches and live forever, Brand's Road Stand.

COOK WITH GAS AND ENJOY LIFE MORE "Instant Heat" SOUTHERN OREGON GAS CORPORATION 340 N. Jackson Phone 235

Drink Pasteurized Milk Whatever your diet, balance it and make it more digestible by using Pasteurized Milk—itsself a wonderful LIQUID FOOD and enjoy all the benefits of a perfect meal—you will feel better—you will be better. Roseburg Dairy and Soda Works PHONE 186 The Cleanest Place in Town COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF

TURKEYS Feed the feed that makes the winners—CROWN. Try the worm medicine that is recommended by Idaho Turkey Growers' Association. Farm Bureau Cooperative Exchange Roseburg Myrtle Creek Oakland AGENTS FOR L. & H. Electric Ranges John Deere Plow Co. Hood River Spray Co. Hoosier and Milwaukee Pumps Sutherland Spray Co.