The Rogue Development

THE newspapers in Medford and Grants Pass do not put a great deal of faith in the announcement of the intrepid engineers, Charles H. Lee and Romaine W. Meyers that a $25,000,000 power development is projected for the Rogue river.

Regarding the announcement the Medford Mail-Tribune says:

"There have been so many glittering promotion schemes launched in southern Oregon which have never materialized that many people will be inclined to take yesterday's A. P. story from Salem, regarding a new $25,000,000 hydro-electric development on Rogue river, with a liberal pinch of salt."

A similar development project was announced once before. We had no inside information regarding that, nor do we know anything more, regarding this latest report, than was contained in the news reports.

The Grants Pass Courier, ever on the alert to boost and support any real development project is also skeptical about the enterprise.

"The Courier, so long busy at saying 'Giddap' to exploitation of southern Oregon's great mineral and timber resources must now turn about and say 'Whoa' to people who believe tomorrow will reveal the wheels turning in the gigantic enterprise. Don't begin to build your summer cottage on the shores of the new great Lake Kerby until concrete begins to go into footings for the Eight Dollar mountain dam." Thus the Courier confesses its lack of faith.

After a while good faithful fighters and boosters begin to tire. When time after time a bubble bursts and leaves nothing but memories of enthusiastic dreams, pessimists are produced. We have had a whole lot of this sort of thing in Oregon. The vast wealth is here, the possibilities are outlined by these engineers are absolutely here and the thing is entirely possible. Two things are even more essential than the possibilities. A demand for the products of the enterprise and men with capital to invest in it. Lacking these two essentials the best planned project in the world is not worth a whoop.

Memorial Day

MEMORIAL DAY in the South is Decoration day, as it is termed in the North, had its origin in the desire of the survivors of the Civil war both North and South, to pay the tribute to their fallen comrades. Annually the flag-draped mounds have become more numerous. The blue and the gray have become a thin line and two new generations have come into being, with new hopes, new ideals and new systems to abolish war. But the custom which was begun so long ago has a bolder significance now. It applies to soldiers of all wars in which we have had a part who have answered the muster call of death. It goes ever further in being observed generally in memory of our friends who have gone on. Memorial day is a day when memories push aside the thoughts of the hour and minds live again those affections of the past which no one ever would wish to forget. The softening years have covered and removed the animosities of war. The flower-decked graves symbolize the idea that for these many strife is no more, and point to the new era when nations shall no longer fight and the lives of citizens in their defense.

Moreover, the spirit of the day is such that it must perpetuate itself so long as human hearts respond to the emotion that prompts them to love and honor those whom they have lost. We may hope that never again will the sons of America be called to put on the armor, but we may take pride that those whom we especially honor on Memorial day took up arms not in conquest but in defense of our liberties and our honor. Recurring Memorial days serve to remind us of the debt. It is ours to preserve the heritage—McMinnville Telephone Register.

Oregon Editors' Opinions

Build the Signs
(Coos Bay Times)
APPROACHING the city of Astoria from the south, north, south or east, the signs constructed to lure tourists this way are very conspicuous by their absence.

Fortunately a movement is now under way by the chamber of commerce of towns most interested to mark the important turnoffs with adequate signs. North Bend and Reedsport have taken the lead and now have on deposit an amount large enough to construct and maintain for a year a full sized bill board making the entrance to this section over the Drain-Scottsburg-Reedsport highway.

Marshallfield chamber of commerce members are today on the street soliciting funds for the construction of a similar sign at Crescent City. Coquille and Myrtle Point are understood to be at work raising money for a sign to be placed at the junction of the Pacific and Coos Bay highways near Roseburg.

Tourists are a valuable crop from two angles. First they spend plenty of money in the towns in which they stop. But more important than that is the fact that every tourist is a potential settler. They are bound to be attracted to this section of the Northwest if they but once see it. That is where the signs come in for this is an "eye-minded" people and they travel the roads they are told about.

Coos county business men will do well to raise the money for the signs promptly so that they may gain the benefit of the full tourist season not just part of it.

POST-WAR SLUMP CAUSED MERGERS, BANKER DECLARES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
SALT LAKE CITY, May 28.—Mergers in banking have followed similar movements in industry in order to provide funds to care for increased business, Henry Swan, vice-president of the United States national bank of Denver, declared today in an address before the western regional savings conference of the American Bankers' association.

"Mergers and consolidations sprang up to fortify industry against the post war slump," he said. "In banking, a similar trend followed because the greater industries created by the mergers and combinations required a great mobility of funds and take care of their increased business."

Other speakers included E. W. Porter, commissioner of banking in Idaho, and W. A. Holt, vice-president of the United States national bank, Portland, Ore.

Commissioner Porter criticized the practice of installment selling of non-essentials to salaried persons, in a paper read by Willard H. Smith of Zion's Saving bank of this city.

"Young people are being lured into wasting their years of health, strength and earning power in the vain and unprofitable attempt to keep up with the Joneses," he said.

"I think it is about time for those who are interested in the banking business and in the welfare of this northwestern country to take an interest in these things."

Talks on Health

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IT is a good thing that physical education is now so popular. I am glad it is being given more prominence in the schools. Its methods of publicity bring it before the public mind.

Good posture of the body makes for good health. If you don't have good posture, and your mistakes are not corrected early, you are in danger of many ills of the body later on in life.

You may look over a group of persons assembled anywhere, in the street or any public place, and you will be astonished to find how few have good posture of the body. How many do you see who have the splendid upright carriage?

The time to teach posture is in early childhood. A child is easily taught to stand straight. Every child should be trained so that he will have a straight back and a well-poised head.

At school your child may have some daily exercises in gymnastics to teach him bodily exercise and body poise. But if you do not encourage him at home to practice the things he learns at school the chances are he will forget to apply them. What becomes habit with him now will probably last him as a habit through life.

Years of round shoulders, a bent back and slothly bodily posture bring with them weak muscles of the stomach and intestines. Indigestion and worse things are bound to follow. The lungs are restricted and cannot do their full duty.

What is the correct posture? A correct standing attitude enables you to carry a book or other load on top of the head with perfect ease. The back is straight, legs are straight, the abdomen is kept in, the head is erect and chin in.

Look at the outstanding men and women in the world. You will find good posture and an alert active body and mind. It is the man and woman thus endowed who most easily makes good in the business and professional world. The young man with a good carriage, well-poised and pleasing in personality has a distinct advantage over others in the line of applicants for the business position. Good posture gives you self-respect.

Sometimes, of course, poor posture is due to poor health. We live in a hothouse atmosphere for the most part, and too many of us get far too little exercise. Right living brings better health. Proper exercise out-of-doors builds up bodily resistance to disease. Good posture does more for you than it would seem possible.

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am twenty years old and love a fellow two years my senior. It has been five months since he quit dating me and I can't forget him. I have tried to forget in many ways but have failed. When he left my house he remarked he would be back after me when he had reached the pinnacle of manhood. He told me more than once he loved me, and he wants me when he is ready to get married, as he wants a decent and dependable wife. He asked me to always mail him a card if ever I left town, as he always wants to keep in contact with me.

Now as I am in another town should I do as he asked? Do you think I can ever gain him back without throwing myself at his feet? Please, tell me what to do. He inquires about me every time he meets one of my friends. He could get my address from them, but he has never written and I have been away three months. Should I write to him first?

ANXIOUS: The young man evidently feels very sure of you since he has placed you in cold storage until he chooses to call for you. If it will ease you any, mail him a card giving him your new address. For your own sake, I would advise you to endeavor to make other friends who will be more appreciative of your company and not put you through a period of probation as your friends gives the impression of doing.

LOVESOME: Wait until you know that there is no formula for winning anybody's love and that the love worth while and enduring is that which is freely and willingly offered.

President Hoover Will Honor War Heroes of Struggle at Gettysburg, Where 53,000 Soldiers Met Death

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 29.—While memorial services to the Grand Army of the Republic are being held throughout the country, President Hoover will bring the nation's tribute here tomorrow.

In a monument-crowned national cemetery marking the scene of one of the most sanguinary battles on American soil, the president will speak where other chief executives have come with fresh wreaths for the fallen.

Here the first three days of July, 1863, saw more than 53,000 men fall out of an embattled force of about 157,000 soldiers. The Federal army lost 23,000 of its 82,000 troops, and 30,000 men were missing from a Confederate army of 75,000.

Heroic Charge Recalled The gallant but fruitless charge of General Pickett up the hillside to the entrenched union force brought death to 3,293 officers and enlisted men out of an attacking force of 4,500. Two of his three brigadiers were killed and one wounded, while of his 15 regimental commanders, 10 were killed and five wounded. In the national cemetery of 25,000 acres which was laid out soon after the battle are the graves of 3,747 union soldiers. It became a national park in 1895.

Scenes Preserved From five steel observatories there is a view of the whole battlefield, which historians say was the scene of a chance encounter that signalled the turning point of the Civil war.

On every hand march the lines of battle, faithfully preserved by soldier and historian. Rifle pits trek long distances in all directions and hundreds of monuments and tablets, commemorating details of the fight, pay tribute to the dead.

A monument tells of the spot where Abraham Lincoln in November, 1863, delivered the dedicatory address which fame has carried all over the world.

Gettysburg lies in a valley about one and one-half miles wide in southern Pennsylvania. A beautiful rolling country of fertile farms, towering hills, rocky ravines and woody coverts stretches away from the battlefield.

The class will and proper manner, and the senior edition of the school publication, the "Orange R" will be used as programs. The exercises are being given this year a week earlier than in former years, so that they will be over by the time final examinations are held.

The class of 1930 is one of the largest to be graduated from this Roseburg school, there being 81 members to graduate.

The class extends a cordial invitation to the public to be present at its class day exercises.

ROCK CREEK FISHING BAN NOT REMOVED A rumor has gained wide circulation that Rock creek is open for fishing, according to Ed Walker, deputy game warden. The source of the rumor has not been learned, but fishermen have told Mr. Walker that they would not be arrested for fishing in the creek as it was being opened. Mr. Walker states that this is not the case, and that fishing will not be permitted on the creek.

FRIDAY BALL GAME MAY INVOLVE TITLE A baseball game which may result in establishing the state high school championship is to be played Friday afternoon, May 30, at Myrtle Creek, between the teams of the Myrtle Creek and Brownsville high schools. Myrtle Creek is undefeated so far this season and claims the southern Oregon title, as a result of defeats administered to Medford and Roseburg. Brownsville has won from all of the leading teams in the northern part of the state, so the meeting of these two high school teams brings together two of the outstanding lines of the state. The game is expected to be a very exciting contest.
