Attractions AT THE MOVIES

ANTLERS—Today, Friday, Saturday, "The Rogue Song," with Lawrence Tibbett, entirely in technicolor.

LIBERTY—Today, "Girl of the Port," with Sally O'Neil; Friday, Saturday, "This Mad World."

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, known as the greatest living baritone, and the first American to reach the topmost position in operatic circles, is now blazing a new trail, for he is the first major opera star to be featured in a talking picture. "The Rogue Song," all-talking drama of the Caucasus, filmed entirely in technicolor, with Tibbett as the star, will open tonight at the Antlers theatre. Tibbett sings songs ranging from those of operatic caliber, with a symphony orchestra accompaniment, to simple love ballads.

He rides at breakneck pace through varied adventures, while brilliant ballets, magnificent mountain scenery, and other interesting details are reported to make this picture one of the most elaborate productions of the year.

The Alberta Rasch Ballet, in a spectacular all color number with a hundred girls, dance to special music written by the modernistic composer, Mimitri Tomkin.

Despite the elaborate music, ballets and color, it is said the picture is not "high-brow." Lionel Barrymore directed it as a drama of adventure, love and romance, with the music a part of, rather than the principal factor of the drama.
