Large Audience Enjoys Recital Presented by Pupils of Miss Scott

A delightful musical affair was given on Monday evening of this week at the Methodist Episcopal church, South, when Miss Naomi Scott presented her violin pupils in recital, assisted by Wm. J. Gonier, popular local tenor. The pupils showed good technique, the same qualities were well brought out, and interpreted remarkably well the well known selection from popular composers. A large and appreciative audience attended the recital.

Wm. J. Gonier, tenor, again secured an outstanding success as solo artist. One song solo group presentation was delightfully sung and warmly applauded. Several favorite arias from operas were presented. His voice was rich and had ample range, which brought out the dramatic values, which were freely produced. His vocal and histrionic work in "Manon," as the elder des Grieux showed thoughtful artistry. "Then You'll Remember Me," from "The Bohemian Girl," was also artistically sung.

The program included: "Fiddle Mine" (Melismar), La Von Baker; "Allegretto" (Daseh), Lois Jean Alderson; "May Song," (Leighton), Tommy Lockwood; "The Linden Tree," (Schubert), Ralph Heater; "Minnet in G No. 2" (Beethoven), Earl Crawford; "Valse" (Brahms), Fanny Lu Wilmberly; "Andantino," (Lemare), Max Short; "Serenade," (Schubert), Wm. J. Gonier; "Conzetta Op. No. 4," (Danbe), Alfred Eddy; "Sweet Reverie," (Tschalkowsky), James Donald Leedy; "Serenade" (Dvign), Mary Wood; "The Happy Farmer," (Schumann), Albert Wright; "Cradle Song," (Hauer), Althea La Raut; "Le Reve de Des Grieux" from Manon, (Massenet), Wm. WEAPON USED IN MURDER OF LINGLE BECOMES HOT CLUE

(Associated Press Lead Wire)

CHICAGO, June 21.—The gun used to slay Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter, had become today a vital clue in the hunt for his assassin.

Frank Foster, a dapper gangster of vacillating allegiances, was the original owner of the pistol, police revealed today; and Foster has disappeared.

Unmistakable efforts had been made with a file to destroy the serial number stamped upon the weapon and thus prevent police from tracing its ownership. But the file failed. Acid, microscopes and infinite police patience finally revealed that the number was.

The weapon, police have established, was originally in the sporting goods store of Pete von Franz, who has been involved in the investigation of other gang killings, particularly the St. Valentine's day massacre of last year.

Foster, the police believe, disposed of the gun prior to the Lingle murder June 9. They want to know to whom; and they have started a countrywide hunt for Foster to that end.

Foster, they said, was formerly a leader in the north side gang banded together under the joint chieftaincy of George (Bugs) Moran and the Aediles. But Foster deserted the Moran-Aedile outfit and enrolled under the Capone banner.

Police believe Foster learned it was his gun that killed Lingle and that he figured the town would be "too hot" for him, even though he had no part in the killing. So he fled.

Discovery that Foster originally owned the gun led to a new police theory: that the killer, or killers, planned not only to kill Lingle but to involve Foster as well.

Substantiating this, police said, are the stories of witnesses that the slayer instead of flinging the pistol aside, placed it almost deliberately on the concrete floor of the Illinois central subway in which Lingle was killed.

Poets' Corner

THE BUILDER
W. TAYLOR COOPER
(In memory of my father, a carpenter and minister of the gospel.)
He was a builder, his trade he plied
Throughout all the nearby country-side.
An honest workman; 'twas ever found,
The houses he built were staunch and sound.
Still standing, many of them today,
But with time and change must pass away.
Yet stands a monument of his past,
Enduring as long as time shall last.

For he labored in another field,
Where the fruits of toil are souls that yield
To the higher call that sets men free,
The call of the Man of Galilee.

Ambassador of the risen Lord,
He proclaimed the riches of His word.
When men were tempted to go astray,
He pointed them to the Shining Way.

The years passed on and there came a day
When the saw and hammer idled lay.
His voice was stilled, to be heard no more,
For the Builder's working days were o'er.

Hands once busy, are mould'ring to dust,
The tools of his craft are red with rust.
He needs them not, for in fairer lands,
He dwells in a home not built by hands.

As names grow dim on Life's written page,
So his will fade with the passing age.
But when all memory of him has gone,
In other lives he will still live on.

UMPUQUA RIVER
Umpuqua, fairest river of the vale,
Sweetly thy limpid waters wind
T'wixt trees and shade and love-
best isles,
By hills and rose-clad banks confined.

Onward thy rippling wavelets murmur,
Nor care what men their music hear,
And blithe to all and harsh to no man
They sing aloud that none should fear.

Lovers on thy hilltops nigh sundown
Tell that divine old time refrain
Of love and hope and home children:
The dream that span mankind's domain.

The vines at even, the wealth of Douglas,
Their shadows on thy bosom cast,
And smile upon this rose—the city
Where peace and love shall bloom and last.

peared voluntarily and where he was under oath and could have been cross-examined.

"George Holden Tinkham"

Cannon's Move Awaited

Canon last week announced he intended to take action for libel, both civil and criminal, against newspapers printing editorials, cartoons, and news dispatches which he considered a defamation of himself.

He indicated he had retained his counsel to study the possibility of bringing such action. Whether he would do so as a result of Tinkham's latest assertions was a subject of speculation at the capitol today.

In his speech in the house which prompted the Cannon challenge, Tinkham said the bishop had violated the corrupt practices act by failing to report the disposition of $48,500 given him by E. C. Jamieson of New York for promoting the anti-Smith campaign.

Echo of Lobby Quiz

A statement in the house address that until this sum is accounted for Cannon "will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses" was not contained in his signed statement just published.

This phase of the Cannon-Tinkham controversy arose from the churchman's refusal to answer questions on his political activities at the time of his appearance before the senate lobby committee.

Bishop Cannon at his office said he had nothing to say for the present in regard to the Tinkham statement.

One of the first to be transported from the footlights to the silver sheet is "Paris," the musical play which starred Irene Bordoni on the stage last season.

It has been made into a First National and Vitaphone picture, with Miss Bordoni starred, and it marks the first appearance of this popular stage favorite in motion pictures. "Paris" comes to the Antlers theatre for three days starting Sunday.

Playing opposite the star in this gay, luring comedy of the French capital is Jack Buchanan, English stage star who has been featured in New York and London musical shows, and especially in the famous Chariot's Revue, which has played successfully on both sides of the water.

Others in the notable cast are Louise Closser Hale, who played in the stage version of "Paris"; Jason Robards, stage and screen favorite, who was a member of the original "Lightnin'" company; Zasu Pitts and Margaret Fielding.

Miss Bordoni and Mr. Buchanan both sing and dance in the picture, and special songs were written for the screen to augment those of the stage version.

Clarence Badger directed "Paris" which was adapted for the screen by Hoppe Loring from the stage play by Martin Brown.
