DISEASE BALKED BY HEALTHY SKIN. SCIENTISTS TOLD

(Associated Press Leased Wire) EUGENE, Ore., June 21.—Dr. Otto Larzell, professor of anatomy at the University of Oregon medical school, described to the American Association for the Advancement of Science yesterday discoveries that led to the identification of bacteriophage, a substance that destroys bacteria germs, as an organism.

The discovery is regarded as a forward step in the fight against disease since formerly it was thought to be a fluid or unformed substance.

Dr. Larzell also told the scientists of the discovery that the human skin possesses special immune biological properties. This discovery, made by Karl F. Meyer and his staff at Hopper foundation, also is regarded as one of the outstanding contributions in the fight against disease. The disease germs used in the studies were those of typhoid and it was found that they died when they came in contact with the healthy human skin.

Dr. Larzell told the scientists of experiments being made by Dr. Leake, Dr. Guedel and Dr. Botsford, at the University of California, who are studying the stimulating effect of carbon dioxide inhalations in cases of dementia praecox. Brief periods of inhalation of 30 per cent carbon dioxide with oxygen induce short periods of mental clarity and intelligent responsiveness in certain cases. The favorable effects last only about 10 to 14 minutes, Dr. Larzell said, but there are possibilities of more prolonged beneficial reaction.

When defalcations of $516,000 were discovered in the state treasury in 1927, Wingfield deposited a personal check for that amount in his Carson Valley bank, a state fund depository, as a loan to avert financial embarrassment to Nevada and possible unfavorable reaction on business and industry.—Associated Press story from Reno, Nevada, May 27, 1930.

George Wingfield's story makes us proud that we are in this western crowd. Whom poverty never puts to rout. Whom poverty never puts to rout. George Nixon also knew his west. Had faith, put Wingfield to the test; His man made good—he made the grade—So Nixon's faith was well repaid.

This "grub stake" word, a western phrase, Harks back to early mining days. When men were judged not by their goods, But by their wisdom of the woods. Men kept their word, fulfilled their trust; There was out here no upper crust; All men were equal, level eyed, An honest man, their greatest pride.

When Wingfield took that "grub stake" dare He promised Nixon equal share; For him to break his plighted word To such a man, was quite absurd, He won success; he had good luck, And, with the oldtime western luck, Full half he made was for his "pard"—And Nixon's faith had great reward.

The best investment is in man— It has been so since time began; For man was made for fellowship, And mutual faith gives stronger grip. In all this world there's naught so good As honest human brotherhood. Such men as Wingfield give us pride That man in man may still confide.

POEM FOR THE DAY By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

FAITH IN HUMANITY PAYS HIGH DIVIDENDS Successively cowboy, miner, "boom town" banker and hotel owner, George Wingfield, whose fortune grew from a $50 "grub stake," is now credited with being the only millionaire in the only state which has only one.

Nevada's lone seven-figured capitalist is president of 20 banks, operates a chain of hotels, owns a number of mineral properties and possesses agricultural interests.

Wingfield represents his state as republican national committeeman, is a regent of the state university and maintains the only racing stables in the state.

Twenty-five years ago he was a cowboy in southeastern Oregon.

The late Senator George P. Nixon, Winnemucca banker, put up the $50 which became the foundation of Wingfield's wealth.

It was a profitable investment for the senator, for young Wingfield, with a flair for business, eventually acquired control of the flourishing Goldfield Consolidated mine. He declared Nixon on the deal and they are reputed to have divided $30,000,000 profits.

Preferring to remain in the background, Wingfield has declined a United States senatorship.

When defalcations of $516,000 were discovered in the state treasury in 1927, Wingfield deposited a personal check for that amount in his Carson Valley bank, a state fund depository, as a loan to avert financial embarrassment to Nevada and possible unfavorable reaction on business and industry.—Associated Press story from Reno, Nevada, May 27, 1930.

DIET AND WEATHER KNOWLEDGE TOPICS AT SCIENCE MEET

EUGENE, Ore., June 20.—Dr. James R. Slonaker, Stanford University, who addressed the western society of naturalists section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today, said that if man were to reach the highest point of efficiency, the paramount necessity would be to make scientists out of cooks so that protein diet could be regulated to the best of advantage.

"The state of health of human beings, the size and vigor of their children, in fact, how people as well as animals feel and act depends largely upon the protein diet," he said.

Dr. Slonaker said that the size of the offspring is not only regulated by the amount of protein in the diet of parents, but of the proteins in which their ancestors ate too much protein is detrimental, he said, except that the offspring are larger in infancy and youth. This largely comes as a sacrifice, however, for the reproductive span is shorter and the spontaneous activity is lessened, Dr. Slonaker said.

Lieutenant V. O. Clapp of the United States navy, who addressed the meteorological division, said that pilots of mail and transport planes whose routes lead over mountains must familiarize themselves with the conditions of ice formations in order to avoid them before it is too late. In experiments conducted over the mountains of Oregon and Washington, Lieutenant Clapp found that freezing rain did not play a large part in the formation of ice. The most serious hazard, he said, lay in the rapid change of temperature when passing over high mountains. "Thorough knowledge of the topography, forecasts and warnings of ice danger," he said, "must be the pilot's aids in overcoming this serious danger."
