

W. B. THOMPSON, MINING MAGNATE, POLITICIAN, DIES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
YONGERS, N. Y., June 28.—Colonel William Boyce Thompson, 71, mining magnate and philanthropist, died at his home here, last night of pneumonia.
He had been an invalid for the last four years after a stroke of paralysis.
His mining interests included copper in Montana, diamonds in Africa and sulphur in Texas. He also was connected with banking, serving as a director of the Federal Reserve bank of New York from its organization in 1914 until 1919, and operated in Wall street. Flower culture was his hobby.
His activities included politics and the diplomatic service. He was a presidential elector in 1912 and a delegate to the republican national convention in 1916 and 1920. He was a personal friend of Presidents Roosevelt and Harding. He was chairman of the party's ways and means committee during the Harding campaign.
During the war he held a commission as a lieutenant colonel and for months was in charge of the American Red Cross mission to Russia.

250 YOUTHS ENROLL FOR SWIM SCHOOL

More than 250 boys and girls and adults have already registered for the "swim week" course of instruction from June 30 to July 5, inclusive. It was announced today by Dr. H. C. Church, chairman of the Red Cross committee which is handling the event.
Maynard Bell, an assistant to Jean Eberhard of Eugene in last year's course, has been added to the staff as a paid instructor. Stanley Kidder was employed in the same capacity yesterday.

The beach at Umpqua park is being sandied in order to make it more comfortable for swimmers. The water is warming up and will be in good condition when the classes start. Dr. Church thinks. Canoes and boats will be secured for use during the instruction period.

Three junior life-savers will act as guards. They are: Lindon Hoffman, Sabina Nephew and Richard Greenhaw.

PORTLAND LANDLORDS NO RESPECTORS OF "GENIUS"

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
PORTLAND, Ore., June 28.—For the second time in six months, the furniture belonging to C. P. Houston, inventor, was stacked for 100 feet along the curbing in front of the house from which he was evicted.

Houston was evicted from another house last December and was intent upon an invention he left his furniture stacked on the curbing for several weeks in the snow. The inventor told police his invention would soon materialize and there would be no more evictions.

Dayton, O., will come west this summer, providing the bill becomes a law through President Hoover's signature, to look over possible sites. A large amount of data favoring Roseburg is already in its hands and General George H. Wood, president of the board, is believed to incline toward this location.

All Looks Well.
Every bit of information which comes from Washington strengthens the hopes of local people that the home will be placed here. The fact that the entire Oregon delegation expresses confidence that this city will be chosen is encouraging. Senator McNary, to whom much of the credit goes for pushing the bill through this session of congress, is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful forces in the senate and Representative Hawley is chairman of the most important committee in the house. Both yield a large amount of influence, as does Senator Steiwer, who also has a large following.

Support of the board of governors of the national home at Dayton is important. It is this board which will finally choose the site. For many years the board has been trying to get a home in the northwest. It was not until Roseburg entered the fight and got McNary and Hawley working for the bill that anything definite materialized. Since it is admitted that this city virtually won the home, there is little doubt, backers believe, that it will be put here and the $2,000,000 appropriated be spent largely in this community.

Kuhn, had been attending the mission services for several months. Ross objected, and, it is said, became particularly bitter because on several occasions Towe called at his home to drive Mrs. Ross and Miss Kuhn to the mission in his automobile.

On April 4 Towe had Ross arrested for striking him, when he stopped at the Ross home for Miss Kuhn. A few days later Ross was arrested on complaint of the Rev. Mr. Wood for having broken up his services.

Ross was brought into court, but the charges against him were dismissed after he had been warned by the judge to stay away from the mission. Ross disappeared from his home after this trouble and Mrs. Ross said today that until last night she had not seen him in several weeks.

Historic Lost State of Franklin to Fete on Sesquicentennial

JONESBORO, Tenn., June 28.—(A. P.)—Jonesboro, oldest town west of the Appalachian divide and capital of the lost state of Franklin, will share its glamorous memories at its sesquicentennial celebration July 4 and 5.

The 1,024 residents of the town are preparing for thousands of visitors.

Here the state of Franklin was organized in 1784, only to return to its mother state of North Carolina in 1795.

Here lived John Sevier, the "Natchez Jack" idolized by frontiersmen and here Andrew Jackson was admitted to the bar and on a nearby hillside fought his bloodless duel with Wrightsill Avery.

Not long before 1770 a roving hunter built a cabin on Little Limestone creek where Jonesboro nestles among the hills. Other frontiersmen followed and in 1777 the pioneers formed Washington county.

The group of cabins on Little Limestone was chosen as the county seat and a rude courthouse was built. It was called "Washington Court House" until 1779, when the North Carolina general assembly authorized the laying out of "Jonesborough."

Pioneers flocked to the new town. Nearby was the home of Sevier, who here Jonesboro led his rittlemen in repulral raids against the Cherokee Indians.

Sevier became governor of Franklin when it was organized. North Carolina had ceded its western territory to the federal government, but congress was slow to accept. The border country, thrown on its own resources, set up its own government and named it Benjamin Franklin.

But the infant state, crippled by disunion and harassed from without, crumbled. Finally in 1796 it was admitted to the union as Tennessee. Jonesboro's Sevier again was chosen governor.

Rep. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader in the house, will be the principal speaker at the celebration. He is a native of this county.

California Visitor—George Langenberg of Porterville, Calif., is here on a visit with his mother and other relatives. Mr. Langenberg, a veteran cornetist, will be once more heard with the Roseburg municipal band in its regular concerts and perhaps accompany it to the state contest to be held at Jantzen park.

U. S. NOT TO SELL WHEAT UNDER COST, M'KELVIE STATES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 28.—The policy of the federal farm board is not to sell the wheat it controls in competition with the new crop at less than the wheat cost it, Sam R. McKelvie, of Nebraska, member of the board, told the western governors' conference today.

Without indicating the volume of wheat now controlled by the board, Mr. McKelvie said that at one time or another within the last six months, it had amounted to 75,000,000 bushels, or over half the visible supply.

This means the same as if the entire wheat crop of Nebraska were wiped out until the price of the new crop gets up to what the government wheat cost," he said.

Declaring "it would be utterly impracticable for the government to continuously take up the surplus of any crop," Mr. McKelvie said that while this might conceivably result in an increased price, it also would mean the growing of what by farmers who now are raising corn, with a consequent increased surplus.

He emphasized that the policy of the board is not to fix prices or forecast their trend and said that whatever has been done so far to stabilize the price of wheat was purely an emergency measure. Assisting the farmers in the control of their own affairs is the sole purpose of the board, he insisted.

DR. LULU PETERS DIES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
LONDON, June 28.—Mrs. Lulu Hunt Peters, eminent physician and dietician of New York and Los Angeles, is dead in London of lobar pneumonia.

Dr. Peters, who came to London recently with a delegation of about 100 American physicians to attend meetings of the Royal Sanitary Institute, died last night in a nursing home.

MARKS THINKS HE HAS EDDY BEATEN TO HEAD SENATE

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
SALEM, Ore., June 28.—The Capital Journal will say today that it has information from various apparently authentic sources that Senator Willard L. Marks of Albany has the necessary 14 pledges to elect him president of the 1931 state senate, and that his majority in pledged support probably will exceed that figure within a short time.

Marks was called by telephone at his office in Albany, and declined to make a definite assertion as to the number of his pledges, but said he was certain that he had enough to elect him.

Marks' opponent for the presidency, Senator B. L. Eddy of Roseburg, while here a few days ago, expressed confidence that he would win. Both Eddy and Marks have been working hard during the last week to line up the necessary pledges.

James Mott of Salem today announced his withdrawal from the contest for speakership of the house and said he would support Frank Loneragan of Portland. The uncertainty of the gubernatorial situation caused by the death of George W. Joseph, and the fact that other members of the Marion county delegation are pledged either to Loneragan or Herbert Gordon, were given by Mott as among the reasons for his withdrawal.

Mott is not enthusiastic in his support of Loneragan. "I feel," he said, "that progressive legislation probably would have a better chance under Loneragan than under Gordon, or, to put it in another way, I feel that progressive legislation would be less hampered by Loneragan than by Gordon."

48 SCOUTS ENROLL FOR WOLF CREEK

Forty-eight boy scouts are registered for the first Wolf Creek camp and will leave from the Junior high school Monday morning at 6:30 o'clock. Members of the Kiwanis club are taking them up.

Members of the Rotary club will take the boys up to the second camp, which begins July 14. Those Kiwanians taking their cars are: G. V. Wimberly, R. L. Whipple, C. C. Archibald, Dr. L. A. Dillard, Harry Stearns, Royce Busenbark, John Throne, Merton Krell and John Farrington. They will want to leave on time so as to get back to their places of business as early as possible. Most of the scouts will meet at six o'clock so as to cooperate with these men.

The committee unanimously agreed to an amendment providing for the consolidation of all veterans, agencies and activities. The new agency is to be known as the veterans' administration and it will include the pension bureau, now a separate government agency. The request of the American Legion for abolishment of the office of controller of the veterans' bureau eliminated.

The committee also eliminated the house provision that World war veterans who enlisted after signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918, would not be subject to benefits. About 5,000 veterans in this class who are not receiving government aid would have eliminated.

Senator Watson asked unanimous consent for consideration of the bill on Monday, but Senator Norris blocked this.

The Nebraska said he wanted to study the measure first although he might be willing on Monday to agree to immediate consideration. Watson replied if objection were made on Monday, he would move to take up the bill.

Vets of All Wars Benefit
The substitute measure reported today proposes to commit the government to a new policy toward World war veterans, it heretofore having granted compensation to nearly 250,000 veterans and their dependents, but refrained from granting pensions to veterans of other wars.

It provides a minimum pension of $12 a month to all veterans disabled to a 25 per cent degree, with a maximum pension of $40 for full disability and added pensions for those who have to have attendants. For the first time in the history of pension legislation in America a battle casualty clause is provided which would give a pension of $25 additional to veterans wounded in battle.

Within three years it will cost the government $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 and affect 600,000 veterans. The vetoed bill was estimated to affect between 75,000 and 100,000 veterans and cost the government between $181,000,000 and $400,000,000 compensation, in some cases amounting to as much as $200 a month.

PHONE SERVICE TO ARCTIC CIRCLE TO START JUNE 30

Oregon telephone users will be able to talk for the first time to points within the Arctic circle on Monday, June 30, when trans-Atlantic telephone service will be extended to all points in Sweden. It was announced yesterday by J. R. Farrington, local manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

Service to Sweden is limited now to three cities, Stockholm, Gothenburg and Malmö.

With this new "farthest north" point established, Bell System telephone-radio service will connect within the Arctic circle in Europe to nearly the fortieth parallel of south latitude in America. It includes almost the whole of Western Europe, all Argentina, ten cities of Chile and the city of Montevideo in Uruguay. The new Swedish extension will make possible a call from the Pacific coast covering over 9,000 miles.

Sheriff J. J. McGrath said both Roderick and Woodring had been questioned several weeks ago about the disappearance of cattle from neighboring ranches and that Woodring and Mr. and Mrs. Roderick had made up the three sides of the asserted love triangle. No formal charge has been placed against either Mrs. Roderick or Woodring.

Grading Stir Suspicion
Roderick's disappearance first became known May 29 when his wife told authorities he had beaten her severely and had gone away with "a red haired girl." Mrs. Roderick swore out a warrant for the arrest of her husband on a battery charge, but no trace of him was found until the well divulged its secret.

Officers' suspicions were aroused when they learned Woodring was grading a plot of ground on the an old well. Deputies then unearthed the body.

Boy Accuses Father
Sheriff McGrath said he had learned from Roderick's 9-year-old son that Roderick and Woodring had stolen cattle from adjoining ranches.

The manner in which Roderick met death was not definitely determined but officers were convinced he was killed by a blow on the head, delivered from behind. Both Mrs. Roderick and Woodring denied any knowledge of the death. Officers disclosed that Mrs. Roderick recently had attempted to obtain Woodring's release from jail.

Pressure is low over Canada and the middle western states with lowest barometers reported from the Dakotas. Light rains have occurred within the past 24 hours over the extreme northwest, and widely scattered showers in eastern sections. Temperatures are mostly seasonable except in the northwest where cooler weather has been obtained with readings this morning considerably below the seasonal average, especially in Oregon where the Pacific high pressure area is dominant. Fair weather will prevail in this vicinity tonight and Sunday, with somewhat warmer weather Sunday.
