Fresh Schilling tea. Tea in vacuum! Just like your coffee! It is just as vital for one as it is for the other, to prevent the evaporation of the fragrant oils that give them both their flavor. Science has been longer discovering how to do it for tea. So far it's a Schilling secret. Try it, and find what you have been missing all these years. Iced Schilling Iced Tea is far more refreshing than any other because it is fresh to begin with. Black tea (orange pekoe) is best. So are TEA BAGS instead of loose tea. Schilling packs both in vacuum.

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

ANTLERS.—Today, Friday and Saturday. "The Isle of Lost Ships," a sea romance packed with hair-raising thrills.

LIBERTY.—Friday and Saturday. Alice White in "Playing Around."

FILMING a marine hinterland of seaweed, dead, floating ships; submarine scenes above and below the surface; shipwreck on a big liner and drama on the mysterious Sargasso Sea—that's a real problem for the film sound experts.

In fact, it is the greatest to date, according to Irvin Willat, who filmed "The Isle of Lost Ships," coming to the Antlers theatre today for three days.

That you might hear as well as see this big special produced by First National Pictures, Millat and a veritable army of technicians worked for months on sea and land on sound problems alone. The tremendous technical presented in themselves, but they were insignificant in comparison to the complexities of sound.

Imagine a crowded liner plunging through a rough sea; the collision with a derelict; crashes and screams and orders shouted through megaphones; the mad rush of passengers on the decks! Imagine the sounds, as well as sights, on a huge, crippled, drifting liner, deserted by all but three persons. Then the problem of sound in an island of dead ships, the Sargasso Sea's central eddy where derelicts of many centuries collected and were made into a floating island and ship's graveyard by the men—and a few women—who had floated in on them! Finally, escape during a gun battle on this unique island, via a submarine.

DRUM CORPS WILL GIVE DANCE JULY 19

Another benefit dance for the American Legion drum corps will be given at the armory July 19, according to an announcement made this morning by Frank Hills, chairman of the dance committee. The previous dances given for the drum corps were very popular and the proceeds will aid greatly in the expense of sending the drum corps to the state convention at Baker, where the veterans will host for the 1931 convention in Roseburg.
