

STUDY BUSINESS PROBLEMS MADE BY GLENDALE C. OF C.

(News-Review Douglas County Special) GLENDALE, July 10.—Industry, especially by the use of modern machinery that produces more goods than ever with a big saving in labor, was largely blamed for the present business depression by Rev. J. K. Howard, in a talk before a special meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday evening. Agricultural communities, he continued, are much more prosperous on an average than communities that depend entirely on some one industry. Mr. Howard concluded his talk by suggesting that a concerted effort be made locally to increase the number of home owners on small tracts of land in this part of Cow creek valley. Several methods of securing publicity for Glendale and Cow creek were suggested but no action was taken because of the very small attendance. It was decided to hold another meeting Monday evening at the city hall. Because of the very small attendance no action was taken on any of these proposals at this meeting, which had been called by President Eberle especially for the purpose of discussing local business problems. It was decided to hold another meeting next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, at the city hall.

GLENDALE DOGS DUE FOR TAXING

(News-Review Douglas County Special) GLENDALE, July 9.—Dogs days are here again according to George P. Ollinghouse, city marshal, whose duty it is to collect the Glendale dog tax which became due July 1. The Glendale dog ordinance decrees a license is required for all dogs within the city limits. The tax is $3.00 per year for male dogs and $5.00 a year for female dogs, payable semi-annually. Dog owners who fail to pay the city dog tax are subject to fine or imprisonment or both. The city dog tax is in addition to the license fee for dogs collected by the county which, under the general laws of 1929, is collectible by the assessor. The county license fee is $2.00 for male and $3.44 for female dogs per year. Delinquents are reported to the sheriff for collection. Failure to pay this tax also subjects the owner to fine, or imprisonment, or both. In addition to the city and the county license fees the Glendale dog owner may also pay the regular personal property tax on his dog if he deems his dog has value enough to be listed with the assessor on the regular personal property tax rolls. However, this is optional. The property tax amounts to approximately five cents for every dollar of assessed valuation a dollar tax for approximately every $20 worth of dog. Persons having valuable dogs usually list them with the assessor as well as doing it helps to establish a value at law in event the dog is maliciously or accidentally killed by others. According to the tax rolls there isn't a dog in Glendale that is considered worth listing by its owners.

FUNDS ALLOTTED TO IMPROVE FORESTS

An increase of $100,000 has been allotted for 1930 improvements on the 22 national forests of Oregon and Washington. The total set up for 1930-31 for permanent improvements, outside of roads and trails, on the national forests is $200,500. These funds are to be spent for a variety of purposes, such as maintenance and construction of telephone lines, fire lookout houses and towers, ranger stations, firemen's shelters and cabins, barns, tool houses, water systems, and fences. Material, labor, and all details of this construction work are handled by the forest supervisors of the national forests concerned, and not by the regional forester in Portland. The amount will be spent for the repair and maintenance of existing structures and also for new construction, and the projects are in the nature of permanent forest improvements which the U. S. forest service is developing on the national forests for better protection and administration of these public forest properties. Each of the 22 national forests in Oregon and Washington shares in these funds, based on carefully worked out plans and estimates. The approximate amounts by states are $75,000 for the 8 national forests of Washington and $115,000 for the 14 Oregon national forests.
