FILM CO. CANCELS CAMAS MT. PLANS

The Oregon Trail is apparently going to end at Los Angeles instead of Roseburg. The Fox Motion Picture company last night issued order to Geo. J. Shaw, who has been arranging for a location at Camas valley and at other points near Roseburg, to return at once to Hollywood, stating that the east had been called in from Jackson Hole, Wyoming, where the main portion of the picture had been filmed. The work in Wyoming has taken so much time that it has been decided to finish the picture at the studio instead of on location. Mr. Shaw was informed it is possible that local sets will be used for films to be made later, as the representatives were greatly impressed with the scenic possibilities of this district.

FRUIT HEAVIER IF NEAR BEE STANDS, EXPERT DECLARES

The importance of bees in cross-pollination of fruit blossoms was emphasized by H. A. Scullen, bee specialist at Oregon State college, at a well attended meeting of beekeepers at the Busenbark Brothers farm at Melrose, Friday afternoon. A much heavier set of fruit is usually secured in orchards located near an apiary, according to Mr. Scullen. Many Douglas county orchardists could profitably keep a few swarms of bees even though no honey was produced for sale. Sweet clover and hairy vetch are good honey plants for this section, but a need is apparent for a good plant for bee pasture during the late summer and autumn months.

Mr. Scullen urges producers to adopt standard equipment, secure good queens, preferably home raised, to limit swarming and to prevent introduction of disease. Short talks were also made by J. C. Leedy, county agent, George Anderson, county bee inspector and Fred A. Goff.

The Douglas County Beekeepers' association re-elected officers as follows: Fred A. Goff, president; George Anderson, vice-president; both of Melrose; and Joel Fenn of Melrose, secretary-treasurer. The association passed a resolution favoring a strict enforcement of the state law providing for a license on bees in order to support a county bee inspector.

"FIRPO" MISSING; LENHART WILL SUB

(Associated Press Leased Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., July 12.—The mysterious disappearance of Guido Burdell, light heavyweight fighter of Burke, Idaho, more familiarly known as "Young Firpo," had his manager and the Portland boxing commission in a state of excitement today. Firpo was to have met Nate Brown here next Tuesday in a ten-round headliner, and was to have fought in San Francisco July 27. Bobby Evans, his manager of a week, says the boxer simply dropped from sight. Evans paid $2500 for him last week. Fred Lenhart of Spokane has been signed to fill Firpo's place on the card here Tuesday.

Shaw, at 74, Will See Publication of First Novel, Written in 1882

(Associated Press Leased Wire) LONDON, July 11.—George Bernard Shaw will be 74 years old July 26, and his first novel soon published.

It is called "Immaturity," and written just 48 years ago when the noted playwright was 25 years old. "I hawked it around to every publisher imaginable and they all turned it down. Some would scarcely look at it," Shaw said. "But, somehow, it has been able to read it again with interest. . . . now, mind you, with all my experience. . . . so it must have been good 48 years ago. It is a nice respectable novel. I wrote it before I had Karl Marx, before I bothered with politics, before I was a socialist."

The dramatist takes the greatest care of his health. Wood chopping is his favorite exercise, then walking. He may often be seen about his country estate with a gleaming axe on his shoulder and his white beard flying in the wind. He eschews all meat eats only vegetables and fruits. He gets as much sunlight as possible and already he has become a legend at Cap Antibes, France, where his tall, almost nude, figure is seen for hours at a time prone on a raft enjoying his sun baths, or walking about in a monkish looking dressing gown. No man in London is more adept at getting a taxi after the theater than Shaw. He is out of his seat in a jiffy and while the rest of the audience is still standing at attention to the strains of "God Save the King," the 74-year-old socialist probably is well on the way home. Shaw's pointed pen has jabbed so many people that it isn't surprising when some of them jab back. The Royal Academy of Art, which he has often belabored, refused a few months ago to hang his portrait by John Collier, although accepting a companion picture of Aldous Huxley by the same painter. Collier said he considered the rejected picture the better of the two.

To this day, Shaw is never so happy as when taking pot shots at some revered English institution, casting aspersions on the British national character or ridiculing some empire folio.

His comparison of Lenin with George Washington was one of his most severe digs at the British. He accused them of treating both of these men alike, crucifying them while alive and canonizing them when dead.

Between criticism of England and the United States he attacks his own Irish with zest.

JIM'S STRAWBERRY PATCH

W. TAYLOR COOPER
Jim Jimson started a strawberry bed. He'd grow his own fruit from then on, he said. Why should he buy berries with hard earned pelf. When he might just as well raise 'em himself? Jim's arbor is dead as a door-nail now. For, one rainy day, six shouts and a howl. The few plants in the fence when he was away. And rooted and rambled around all day.

An old red rooster and his whole harem Scratched for three hours with no one to scare 'em. Time the shoats, sow, rooster and hens got throneh. Why, there wasn't none left for Jim to do.

It looked so tough, he turned in cattle. The few plants left, soon gave up the battle. No more on his farm a strawberry patch. For hogs to root in and chickens to scratch.

So, when they have short-cake at Jim's home now. They get the cream from his old Jersey cow. The berries, he buys at the village store. Jim says: "It don't pay to raise 'em no more."

GISSY FEET
Where've you been, O Gipsy Feet All the livelong day— In some fairland retreat While I've been away?

Your tangled curls have caught the sun In silken nets for me, And now 'tis shining in my arms As all the world can see.

Your dewy lips have touched the rose And stole its velvet red For I can feel it in your kiss Tho' not a word you've said.

Your wond'ring eyes have looked so long At flower faces fair That now I see their lovely souls All sweetly mirrored there.

Wearily, little Gipsy Feet, Pinafores and brown, Have you travelled far today Up the hills and down?

Searching in the fields for flowers, Playing in the sands, Gathering Nature's precious gifts With busy little hands.

Snuggle closer, Gipsy Feet, So no one else may hear— I've a secret, darling one To whisper in your ear.

O, I could search the shops till dark, And search the town for aye, Nor find one treasure half so dear As you, at close of day.

GALLANT FOX TOP FAVORITE IN RACE TODAY FOR $70,000

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 12.—America's richest three-year-old race purse—the $70,000 added Arlington classic—today furnished an apparently easy short cut to the champion three-year-old, Gallant Fox, in his drive for a record as the greatest money winning horse of all time.

Victory in today's mile and a quarter, worth approximately $70,000 to the winner, would bring the winnings of the sensational son of Sir Galahad III-Marguerite to around the $300,000 mark and with a striking distance of the earnings record of the great Zev. And victory today, even with some of the country's best three year olds opposing the Fox, seemed assured.

There were a few who thought Gallant Knight, second to the Fox in the Kentucky derby, might lead off the champion in his try for a sixth major 1930 stake.

Not P. show horse in the Churchill Downs feature, received some consideration as did the three fillies, Snowflake, Alcibades and Dustmell, but the general feeling was that Gallant Fox would have to break a leg to lose. Overnight odds were 2 to 5 but were expected to reach as low as 20 cents to a dollar.

WATER DISTRICT SEEKS INJUNCTION

SALEM, Ore., July 12.—Claiming damages, the central Oregon irrigation district has filed an injunction suit in the circuit court at Bend to block enforcement of an order by State Engineer Luper transferring water of Deschutes river used at Cline falls for power development to the Arnold irrigation company for irrigation purposes. A hearing will be held at Bend Tuesday.

The ditches of the central Oregon district are located mainly between Bend and Cline falls. The Arnold company, which is a mutual organization of farmers, has ditches south of Bend, constructed to water about 3500 acres. However, because of low water in the river, the acreage is now without irrigation, and the engineer's order is made as an emergency measure. The Pacific Light & Power company is also made a defendant.

Liberty—Last times today, "Playing Around," with Alice White.

THE filming of motion pictures in color reaches its greatest effectiveness in "No, No, Nanette." First National's lavish screen musical comedy which the Antlers theatre has booked for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, according to newspaper and magazine critics wherever the picture has been shown.

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

The colors, it is said, are a delight to the eye and the scenes look as natural as they would outside the theatre. Players lose the "shadow" effect of black and white photography and look as real as people seen on the street. "No, No, Nanette," in fact seems to represent the perfection of the Technicolor process.

Four of the biggest scenes ever made for the screen have been filmed in color for "No, No, Nanette." They are the Mars, New York, Holland and Japanese numbers. The audience reaction to these dazzling sequences, filmed on the largest sound stage in the world, built at the First National studio especially for this picture, is described as startling and lasting. Each of these scenes cost more money than the entire original stage production, on which the screen version is based.

"No, No, Nanette" features Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray, Lucien Littlefield, Louise Fazenda and a tremendous cast and chorus.
