Come Into the Kitchen

By ELLA M. LEHR

"Appetite Teasers"

A worn of cookbook it was—found in a drawer along with a nutmeg grater, a little-used can opener and a baby's battered silver cup. The leaves were yellow and dog-eared, its covers frayed—the Grandmother's Cookbook! I thought of the young bride—whose "first biscuits were regular deathballs, my dear"; of the brave little mother searching for oatmeal cereal within the then new pages; of the grandmother whose ginger cookies and spicy pickled peaches bring mouth-watering memories to a new generation.

Apple dumplings, mince meat, home-made rolls, ginger cake, spiced cantaloupe, corn relish, mustard pickles—ah, the grandmother knew the secrets to a man's heart. No wonder so many marriages go on the rocks today, with delicatessen potato salad and pickles of an unknown lineage, disgracing our dinner tables.

Here with a super-abundance of vegetables and fruits—may we coax you to try these goodies of our grandmother's day? Today they are most unusual.

Spiced Cantaloupe
Select slightly under-ripe cantaloupe. Cut into sections and remove the rind. Soak the melon for at least three hours in a salt solution (1 cup salt to 1 qt. of water). Drain off the brine, pack in stone jar and pour over the fruit a pickling syrup made from the following ingredients: 1 quart best cider vinegar; 3 pints of sugar; 1 teaspoon whole cloves; 1 tablespoon of broken cinnamon stick. The spices in a cheesecloth. Add to vinegar with sugar. Boil five minutes. Place a plate over the fruit. Set one pound weight on it. Cover jar and let stand in cool place for three days. Drain off syrup. Reheat with spice bag. Put in fruit, heat well in the syrup, seal in glass jar. (This is enough for 8 qts. of a large fruit.)

Variation 1—After heating syrup to the boiling point, let boil slowly 3 minutes with spices. Heat fruit in syrup, seal at once. This seasoning is not so well done as the first method. (Enough for 6-7 pounds fruit.)

Variation 2—Cook fruit in syrup until it can be pierced by a straw. Seal at once.

Variation 3—Brown sugar may be used and the spices left loose.

Pickled Fruits
Pears, peaches and crabapples may be prepared in the same way—without soaking in salt solution, however.

Oven Pickled Fruits
Pickled peaches.—Scald 1 to 2 minutes in loosen skins, dip quickly in cold water. Skin and pack in sterilized jars to within one inch of top, adding a few cloves and bits of stick cinnamon. Pour over all the boiling syrup, (given above). Set lid on loosely. Place jars in broiler pan—with about 1 inch of boiling water, and set all in 250 degrees oven for 60 minutes for qt. jars and 40 minutes for pints. Remove and seal immediately.

Pickled pears—A small rather hard pear is best. Leave stems on. Pare if skin is tough. If large pears are used, pare, core and quarter. Scald 1 1/2 minutes, cold dip, pack. Pour over syrup and proceed as with peaches.

Corn Relish
12 ears of corn; 2 1/2 quarts ripe tomatoes; 1 quart onions; 1 quart cucumbers; 5 green peppers; 1 small head cabbage; 1 quart vinegar; 5 cups sugar; 1 teaspoon celery seed; 2 teaspoons mustard seed; 1 cup salt; grind all vegetables together except the corn, combine and cook one hour. Seal in fruit jars.

Carrot Marmalade
Wash, scrape and put through food chopper, 3 pounds raw tender young carrots. Cover with water and cook till tender. Put through strainer to make smooth pulp, or cook young carrots till tender, cut in fine strips. Add 3 lbs. sugar, the grated rind and juice of 6 lemons and cook until thick and clear. When nearly done add 3 pound of blanched ground almonds. Pour into jelly glasses, seal with paraffin. (Friend Hubby won't know it from orange marmalade.)

Alsace Conserve
(This one was given to us—and is so good that we just must pass it on.) Use equal quantities of rhubarb, strawberries and pineapple. Cut rhubarb in bits. Stem and halve the berries. Cut the pineapple, which may be either fresh or canned, into shreds. Mix fruits and measure. Add 1 cup sugar to 1 part fruit. Simmer slowly on top of range or in oven of about 300 degrees, until thick. Then add 1 pound blanched and shredded almonds. Cook 15 minutes longer. Pour in sterilized jars and seal. We do think these preserves are no trouble at all if oven cooked. Oh, how we hate the watching and stirring lest the jam should scorch—on the old hot range. Why it just makes itself in the oven—slip the conserve into the oven, adjust the heat regulator and leave the whole thing to simmer with perhaps an occasional stir of the delectable concoction. Preserves made while canning means that the softer fruits and leftovers of canning may be used for marmalade making and the like.

No housewife can have too many of these tempting goodies—strawberry jam served on crispy hot toast for the Sunday night tea beside the open fire, combined with cream cheese and served with crunchy crackers at luncheon—a bit of sweetness for the midnight snack—you know about the merits of a spoonful of honey versus the gallon of vinegar!

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

ANTLERS—Today and Tuesday, "No. No, Nanette," with Bernice Claire; Thursday, Friday, Saturday, "The Cuckoos," with the comedy team of "Rio Rita," Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey.

"NO, NO, NANETTE" is everything it was heralded to be and more. A capacity audience which saw the musical revue as a talking picture at the Antlers yesterday will testify to that.

It is a lavish screen musical comedy taken directly from the famous stage play which has been popular for many seasons in the New York theatres.

The four big scenes are filmed in color. They are the Mars, New York, Holland and Japanese numbers and the color work is splendid. Each of the color scenes cost more money than the entire original stage production.

Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray, Lucien Littlefield and Louise Fazenda head the cast and do some mighty fine acting. The choruses are well chosen and their work is outstanding.
