TODAY'S MARKETS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)
PORTLAND, July 12.—Butter and egg prices continue unchanged, with top grades of both in demand with values apparently growing firmer. The lower grades are still plentiful and weaker.
Flour prices were weaker and a reduction in price would not be surprising.
Reviewing the fruit and vegetable market, the Portland bureau of the U. S. department of agriculture says:
The market for green peas is completely demoralized, and some Oregon shippers have instructed their growers to discontinue further shipments. There has been virtually no carlot sales of Oregon peas for several days, all shipments being made on consignment. Very few live peas are available at eastern markets. Quality of loadings from this district is no longer satisfactory, due to frost and insect injury damage. Washington exceeds all former shipments each day, with a total of 100 cars loaded yesterday. Locally, good peas are available at little more than picking costs.
The market for California tomatoes declined at Portland with brokers' sales to buyers 209,250 net, 17c lower. Meanwhile, domestic tomatoes advanced a trifle. Distributors of bothhouse products reported that Portland consumed much greater amount of bothhouse tomatoes this season than ever before.
Demand for bothhouse cucumbers has almost disappeared, due to liberal offerings of cheap cucumbers from the Dalles, at less than half the price of bothhouse product.
"Controlling" from Delano, Calif., now control the market. Quality ranges from poor to excellent, with a corresponding spread in prices. The market is barely steady.
"Movement of watermelons and new transparent apples is better, at steady prices.
Appetizing assortments of Japanese including, lemon, etc., are available, in addition of several varieties of cantaloupes.

TRANSIENT FINDS THINGS SUITABLE FOR HIS COMFORT

Mrs. Laura Applegate, pioneer resident of the Yoncaua section, and widow of one of the descendants of the Applegate family that crossed to the west coast with that first wagon train in 1848, was away from her home for a day and evening last week, and during her absence an inquisitive and hungry transient visited the house in quest of food or anything that he might be able to use. He entered the home by removing a screen, rummaged through the house, apparently visiting every room in search of money, but failed to find a few dollars Mrs. Applegate had stored away for ready cash in case she needed it, and then proceeded to get himself a meal. He fried some eggs, building a fire for that purpose, helped himself to a generous supply of the lady's tempting cookies from the cookie jar, and to other bounties he found in the pantry. After dining, presumptuously the wanderer felt the need of an after-dinner nap, and luxurious cushions on the davenport gave mute testimony that the resting place was altogether satisfactory. An axe belonging to a neighbor was found in the house, and it is supposed the wanderer had intended using it for prying open a window, and when he entered took it inside with him. Mrs. Applegate acquiesces the suggestion made by friends that the man meant bodily harm to anyone who might have been in the home, and refuses to listen to pleadings of friends that she not stay alone in the home. She says such things are all in a lifetime and that she is not afraid.

4000 ACRE FIRE RAGES NEAR BEND

BEND, Ore., July 14.—Five hundred men, including 100 delegates to the United Spanish War Veterans state convention here, today formed a nine-mile-long line to combat a spreading forest fire in the Cascade foothills which already has burned over 4,000 timbered acres. Thought controlled yesterday, the fire broke over the lines in two places and raged uncontrolled into yellow pine timber. Fire fighting units concentrated near Big Springs where the conflagration seemed the fiercest. F. H. Brundage, chief of the fire control work in the north Pacific region, Portland headquarters, accompanied by the convention delegates argued forces arriving from the Klamath basin responding to calls for volunteers. Forestry officials said the fire started late Friday on Shelvin-Hixon Lumber company holdings. It was swept back and forth along the crest of Cascade foothills by changing winds. As seen from Pilot Butte, highest spot near here, residents said hills were afire. While smoke blackened men fought this fire, another started apparently from lightning. Rangers in Mount Washington foothills said strong winds had whipped the fire into major proportions during the night. In the Sisters district and the Crescent Lake country, they said, flames were beyond control although little damage was

FUNDS SET ASIDE TO STUDY DISEASE IN THIS SECTION

Federal funds to assist in making a study of prune diseases and methods of control have been provided in the budget of the department of agriculture, according to word received here today from Congressman W. C. Hawley. The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce several months ago presented a petition through Mr. Hawley asking that the federal government assist in prune disease control work, pointing out that it is one of the most important industries of this section of the country and that the returns are sufficient to justify government aid in control surveys. It is hoped that a government station can be established here to cooperate with orchardists in disease control. The amount of money included in the budget was not announced.

TILLER RESIDENT FACES BEER CHARGE

David Mish, a resident of Tiller, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Dietrich, charged with possession of beer. The officer found a quantity of mash and 6 gallons of beer in a raid on the house. Mish entered a plea of guilty upon arraignment before Justice of the Peace Hopkins this morning and was fined $50, which he expects to pay.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS
THE BYRD BEACON TOWER
Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, at outdoor ceremonies at Broadway and 174th street on June 29, dedicated the aviation beacon which will be erected on the tower of the Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal church. The basement of the new church has been completed. The building will rise 31 stories and the beacon will be visible from the air within a radius of 100 miles. Dr. Christian F. Reiser, pastor of the church, said. It will be called the Admiral Byrd Aviation Beacon.

The exercises were preceded by a parade in which Admiral Byrd rode as the honor guest. The parade was led by Company F of the 16th Infantry followed by 102d New York Engineers. Admiral Byrd rode in an automobile with Charles V. Bob, who donated the funds for the beacon. A large crowd gathered along the route and to witness the ceremonies. "For those brave men, like Nungesser, Coll and many others, who are lost," Admiral Byrd said, "and for my old friend Floyd Bennett, who sacrificed his life to go to the rescue of his fellow man, I dedicate this beacon. "The beacon will mark a milestone in the progress of aviation. It will help the surface vessels at sea and it will save many lives. Fog is still the arch enemy of aviation. Beacons of this kind will help to defeat this enemy. The cross of the beacon will symbolize humanity and the light will be a symbol of progress."

Dr. Reiser presented a copy of the New Testament to Admiral Byrd inscribed: "To Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd with the sincere hope that the 'inner light' and 'source of strength' may be constantly refreshed as you continue to bring blessings to humanity." Declaring that Admiral Byrd is unusually worthy of having the beacon named for him, Dr. Reiser said: "While he is tender and humble, he has courage and faith. Though he has 17 naval citations for valor, he yet has time to go swimming with his children. He is a consistent and outspoken member of the Episcopal church and he carries well the three Cs which are the product of broad faith in religion. They are confidence, courage and comradeship."

Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church, was among the speakers. News story from New York June 29, 1930. Wise Christian Reiser's noble dream Will find fulfillment in this gleam That lights the sea a hundred miles And wins the airship pilot's smiles. 'Twas Jesus said "Ye are the light" To guide the world and guide its right. This serving light of mighty power Deserves the Broadway Temple tower.

How meet that generous Charlie Bob, Whose heart with progress is athrob, With open hand should give the gold That will in safety airships hold! How meet to name for Admiral Byrd—All round the earth his voice is heard, The conqueror of both the poles, Who lives and breathes heroic roles!

How meet that Richard Byrd recalled Those martyr men no fear appalled, Who had the faith of pioneers, Who've passed beyond victorious cheers; And on this day of dedication Recalled the debt of state and nation To men whose names will never die— So anchored they within the sky!

'Tis beacon's in its proper place— Suggests the light of Christian grace That beams from Him whose soul is love, Who shows His light from heaven above. His shaft of light on land or sea Would guide men on to victory, Would be their sure defense and shield Till safe in heaven's landing field.
