Lower Rates

ALTHOUGH the exact result, so far as we are concerned, of the latest ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission regarding freight rates, is not entirely clear, there is apparently a reduction in rates for this point.

A. F. Harvey, who is the rate expert for the Public Service commission of Oregon, says that the reduction for Roseburg as the result of the ruling would amount to 23 1/2 per hundred pounds on what is termed first-class freight items. In other words no more than double the water freight rate between Portland and San Francisco can be charged for shipping first class commodities from San Francisco to Roseburg. The water rate on first class is 72c which makes our rate under the new ruling $1.44 as against $1.77—an enormous saving on freight for us. Ours was the greatest saving of any point in Oregon.

The ruling just given is one of the results of a battle of nearly twenty years. This fight has been waged recently by the formation of the Western Oregon Traffic association of which Roseburg is a member. We have contended that the rule regarding rates known as the "fourth section clause" should be enforced by the Interstate Commerce commission. This rule says that railroads must not charge more for hauling freight between intermediate points than between terminal points on the same line. This section has been disregarded on the Pacific coast and its enforcement has been vigorously opposed. The railroads may be considered the winners by the present order of the commission which permits them to charge as much as double the port to port rate for shipments to intermediate points. So far as we are concerned, though, we are given relief. The rates for shipping certain commodities from San Francisco to Roseburg have been three and four hundred percent greater than the cost of shipping the same articles from San Francisco to Portland. Now the increase can be only one hundred percent.

George W. Hill, youthful president of the enormously successful American Tobacco company, issued a statement the other day concerning the earnings of his company. Concluding a recital of some very impressive figures he said: "It may interest you gentlemen to know that we sincerely attribute a large measure of the prosperity of the company to the assistance that newspaper advertising has given us."

The American Tobacco company will spend nearly two and one half millions of dollars in newspaper advertising next year.

45,000 Reasons in Oregon and Washington

(Portland Journal)
THERE is a reason for the telegram sent to Washington, D. C., by Colonel Greeley of the lumbermen protesting against the importation into the United States of Russian lumber, convict-cut.

That reason, cited in the message, is the presence in Washington and Oregon of 45,000 forest workers out of jobs because of reduced demand for lumber.

Siberian lumber is a major cause of a 40 per cent shrinkage in Japan's lumber purchases from the Pacific northwest. Problems of bankruptcies and unemployment also complicate the Japanese situation.

Wood substitutes have something to do with the smaller consumption of lumber in the United States. But the disposition to build apartments and flats instead of detached homes, which use chiefly lumber, is even more serious.

Certainly, if it is the policy of the administration to relieve depression by the distribution of over-concentrated wealth through employment, there will not be an order to admit convict-produced lumber from Russia and thereby rob more men of their jobs.

STATE vs. private ownership seems to be taking a leading part in the formation of a platform and the selection of a candidate for governor. Let us hope that the best man for the whole state is selected and that in making the selection that not too much pressure is brought to bear by ultra-tuna of any sort. It is time that a real leader is selected, one who will bring Oregon to the forefront.—Cook Day Harbor.

The Power of the Press in Reverse

(Medford Mail-Tribune)

MOST people agree with Mark Twain that while there is a great deal of talk about the weather, there is little action. This is only another way of saying that what anyone says about the weather has very little effect on it.

Here and now, we challenge the truth of this belief!

On Thursday afternoon last we handed the local weatherman a nice bouquet, and maintained that the present summer was the best in 20 years—the coolest, the most comfortable, the furthest removed from extremes of any kind.

The very next day the obnoxious weather man boosted the mercury in these parts up to 99 officially, and about 103 unofficially.

About a year ago, we remarked upon the perfect weather then prevailing, incidentally declaring this a "perfect picnic land, where May until September one could be certain of a cheery sun in a cloudless sky."

The next day it rained, and lightning started a total of 17 forest fires.

Last December, being rather low on editorial material we again tackled the weather, pointing to the delightfully mild winter, the inspiring spectacle of playing golf a few days before Christmas, contrasting same with the tragic situation in North Dakota where three farmers and several hundred cows had frozen to death in a blizzard.

The next day it snowed, the day following it froze and the day after that local plumbers were 24 hours behind schedule on water pipe thawing.

These are facts, related only from memory. Had we time to go over the files we could present a mass of evidence that would be simply overwhelming.

The idea that what we say about the weather has nothing to do with what we get, is one of the most erroneous impressions that a frequently deluded people have ever held.

We maintain (again reverting to the editorial "we") that what we say about the weather absolutely determines what we get,—in fact determines the rainfall, sunshine, temperature and humidity of the entire valley.

If we want sunshine we have only to praise another million dollar rain; if we want rain we have only to eulogize a climate that gives us unlimited and uninterrupted sunshine. Controlling the weather as far as we are concerned is as easy as falling off a fence.

If we liked we could give the final clinching proof of this complete power over the elements, simply by adding to this editorial one complaining about the heat—slightly camouflaged of course by extolling the health giving and purifying influence of a cooler winter atmosphere. No doubt about it,—there would be at least a light frost before sunrise tomorrow morning.

But that's the rub. Editorially speaking, we never like to complain about the weather. In this climatic garden of Eden!

We hold no brief for Tom Kay as a gubernatorial candidate but must profess admiration for his bold announcement that if he is chosen by the republican committee, he will build his own platform and will not submit to dictation in this regard.

Temperatures ranged from 50 to 110 degrees throughout the middle west and east yesterday. Even Portland sweltered with 92 degrees. While on Coos Bay 75 degrees was the maximum temperature. How lucky we are.—Coos Bay Times.

A Roseburg cherry picker was shot the other day because the shooter took him for a flock of wild pigeons. It is beginning to look as though everybody will have to wear red hats in order to prevent some enthusiastic sportsman from mistaking him for something or other and giving him both barrels.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

The second street reaction to a pair of extremely abbreviated overalls being worn by a young woman trying to keep cool seems to be that she looks well in them and everybody else looks well at them.—The Dallas Chronicle.

COCHRAN WILL BE HONORED AT PICNIC

A picnic, which is to be held next Sunday at Station's grove in Garden valley, will be attended by many residents of Douglas county, especially in Roseburg, Wilbur and Oakland.

It is to be given in honor of J. H. Cochran of Medford, by his former pupils of the Wilbur and Oakland schools, where he taught for many years, more than twenty-five years ago.

This is the third picnic to be held by this group of old students and their families and other friends of Mr. Cochran.

This year more than a hundred invitations have been mailed to former pupils by a committee in charge.

While invitations have been mailed to former pupils, all friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cochran are invited to attend. Coffee and lemonade will be furnished.

NEW SOLUTION OF FARM RELIEF OUT

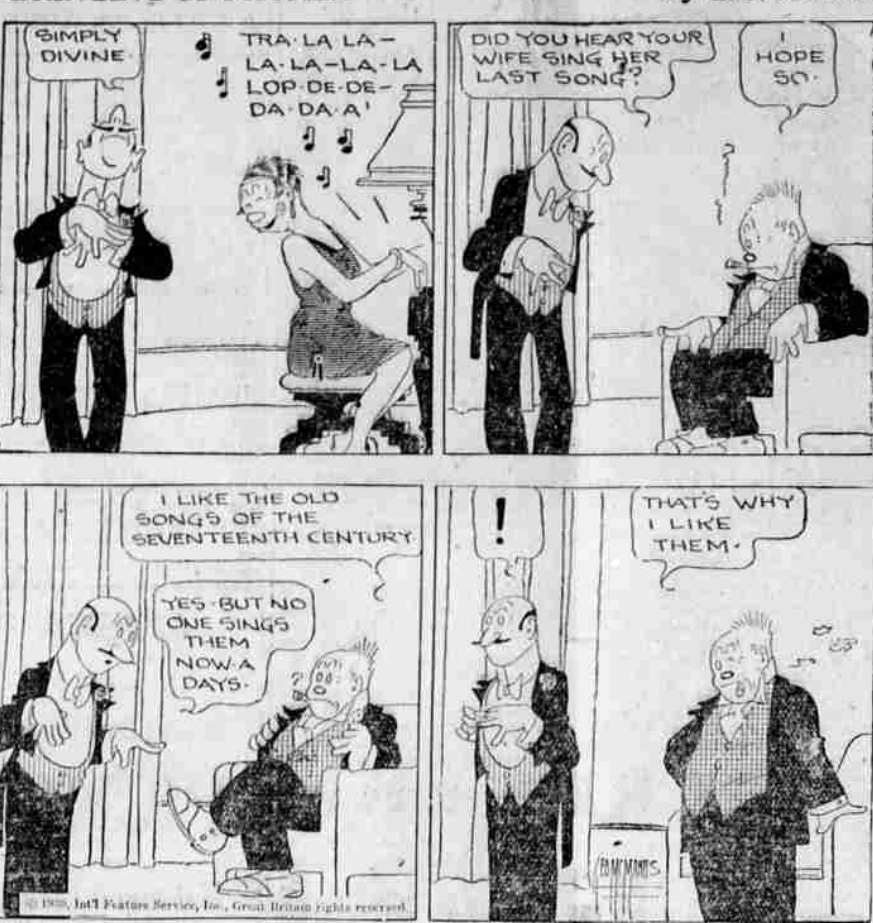

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

EAST LANSING, Mich., July 15.—Agricultural experts at Michigan state college offer a new form of farm relief to those who are worried about the price of wheat.

Feed it to livestock, says a statement issued by four department heads. At present prices, wheat is worth more for a feed than as a commercial cereal, the experts assert.

is good governorship material.

AS to the public service commission, which also has become a political issue, Ed says, in substance:

"DON'T ABOLISH the commission. Instead, get onto it men in whom the public will have complete confidence; men who will REGULATE the public utilities in such a way as to permit them to be soundly prosperous WITHOUT permitting them to gouge the public."

HERE is more sound thinking. Abolishing the public service commission would merely throw the whole subject of regulation of public utilities back into the legislative and the city councils, which DON'T WORK BEFORE and wouldn't work now.

And don't forget that here is something which the governor himself, who appoints the public service commissioners, can actually do.

HE proposes equalization of the tax burden through adoption of a state income tax and by "rigid enforcement and honest administration of the tax uniformity and equalization laws." Here again an understanding of the principles of sound and constructive leadership is displayed.

"ONE of my first acts as governor will be to find a means of IMMEDIATELY REDUCING unemployment in Oregon."

Candor compels this writer to say that here is another little touch of honesty. If abolishing unemployment were as simple as all that, unemployment, with all its long train of evils, would have been abolished long ago.

IMPROVEMENT of agriculture through lower freight rates, equalization of taxation and increase of industry and payrolls to provide a market; retention of the direct primary; law enforcement, education, highways and preservation of natural resources—these are all subjects in the Bailey platform whose discussion enables us to get a more accurate picture of Ed Bailey himself and the way his mind works.

Otherwise they don't mean much; for they are legislative, rather than executive problems. But they are intelligently discussed.

WHETHER or not Ed Bailey will be the next governor of Oregon is something that only time can tell. What the Republican central committee does when it finally meets to pick a Republican candidate will have a lot to do with it. If a GOOD MAN is picked, he will have the inside track, due to the normal heavy Republican majority in this state.

But his personal platform indicates pretty clearly that if Ed Bailey IS ELECTED, he will be a good governor.

Talks on Health

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

WE ALL hate to read accounts of persons who are accidental victims of poison. But such a regrettable occurrence may happen in your home if you keep unlabeled bottles in your medicine cabinet.

Under no circumstances should you permit a bottle or box to stand in your home without the proper label. If the contents are poisonous, have printed on it the word "POISON" in big letters.

Often when you want a drug you are in a hurry or are upset by the very accident or sudden illness which calls for the use of the drug. This makes it easy to forget the location of the particular bottle you want.

All drugs are more or less poisonous. Even though some parties after drug may seem mild to you it may be harmful to a susceptible person. For this reason if no other, it is unwise to take any drug unless it is prescribed by the doctor.

Medicines Must Be Fresh. Medicines to be of value must be fresh. If kept too long they get stale and germs multiply in the liquid. Ointments, particularly those made with an animal or vegetable oil, soon become rancid. Some drugs lose their medicinal value when exposed to light and air.

Many a housewife who is careful that her pantry shelves contain only fresh seasoning and flavoring will have on her medicine shelf stale and rancid drugs. These, too may be in unlabeled bottles or boxes.

I have seen terrible accidents happen from putting the wrong medicine in the eye. In the worst case I ever saw the victim was a doctor.

The average household needs very few drugs, especially drugs which can do harm. Have one place where all the household remedies are kept. This should be a dark and dry place. Some of the drugs are hygroscopic and are ruined by moisture.

Have every bottle and box plainly labeled, showing the ingredients, its strength and the date of purchase. Always, no matter what the hurry, read the label before applying the remedy. If you do this there will never be a mistake in your home.

ALASKAN CARIBOU BEGIN MIGRATION

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SKAGWAY, Alaska, July 15.—Obedient to a primal urge, thousands of caribou have begun their annual migration to the tundras of the Arctic region in the far north.

Like the freeze-up in the fall and the annual breakup of ice in the spring, the movements of the caribou in following the sun are great events in the Arctic. Word had reached here today that the little steamer White Horse picked its way carefully through herds of the caribou swimming across the Yukon at Thistle creek, above Dawson, on their way to the tundra grounds.

The migration began July 7, at the same place and on almost the same day as last year.
