

TWO RANCH DEALS ARE COMPLETED IN GREEN DISTRICT

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
GREEN, July 17.—(Gene Fowler, foreman of the mechanical department of the Lockwood Motor company at Roseburg, has purchased the Kate Fry ranch near the Happy Valley bridge. He has installed an electric light and water system and has added other modern improvements. The ranch embraces 10 acres of apples and peaches besides pasture and farm land.

Thomas Owen Tiller and family, formerly of Bend, Oregon, have arrived in Green valley and have purchased the St. Smith ranch beside the South Umpqua river opposite the Marsters ranch. The place consists of about 80 acres with 20 acres of nice bottom land on which he plans to raise tomatoes, corn and melons. The Tiller family is delighted with Douglas county and will be a valuable addition to the Green community. They are all members of Evergreen church.

AZALEA

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
AZALEA, July 17.—Miss Vera Jones has returned to her home here after several weeks' visit with relatives at Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Harry Cool and children of Drain, and her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Olsen, of Glendale, spent Thursday visiting with their friend, Mrs. Harry L. Cooke.

Mrs. F. A. Farnum and daughter, Mrs. Chester Johns, stopped and visited friends at Glendale Friday.

Haying is in full swing in this valley, and all the farmers report excellent crops. Owing to the inactivity of the sawmills it is very easy to find help this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Corrigan, owners of the Corrigan Auto camp and fox farm near Canyonville, made a business trip to Azalea Thursday.

Mrs. Charles Jantzer and baby son, who have been visiting with her sister, Mrs. Lester Wertz, of Climax, came over Sunday to John Mr. Jantzer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Johnson and daughter, Wilma, of Mt. Angel, Oregon, visited over the week-end with Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Jenke. Their other daughter visited with friends until her parents returned on Sunday.

Two families of Wygella from Montana, relatives of Mrs. L. E. Damewood, spent a few days of last week at the Damewood home on the Rosehill ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cooke met a party of friends from Oakland at the Myrtle Grove camp, and they enjoyed an all-day picnic together Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Beck, and family, of Medford, visited over Sunday with Mr. Beck's brother, Commodore Beck, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Jenke returned from Yoncalla Saturday after spending several days with their son, Jimmie Jenke, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barnstow and Miss Mona Hunsicker, of Anchor, stopped and visited friends here Saturday.

How Rust, who has been quite ill with tonsillitis for the past week, is improving.

Miss Louise Lesh, of Glendale, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Blanchard.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holmgren attended to business matters in Glendale Wednesday. Mr. Holmgren has just about recovered from his recent fall.

Neil Tripp, who has been at the White Rock lookout station, near Myrtle Creek, is staying home on his parents for a few days on account of illness. He plans on coming back to the lookout station within a few days.

Jim Gould moved to Kirby last week, where he has a logging contract.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis, of Holister, California, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert St. John.

Mr. and Mrs. Oris Brooks, Mrs. Hazel Adkins and daughter, of Los Angeles, visited their cousin, Lowell Curtis, Wednesday. They were enroute home after visiting relatives in the northern part of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan and children moved to Kirby Wednesday, where Mr. Ryan has employment in a logging camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Williams of Grants Pass, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelley on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were married last month, and before her marriage she was Miss Beulah Hapsey.

Baldin Curtis, of Blachley, an old-time resident, is visiting friends here.

Charlie Olinhouse drove the Anchor to Azalea mall stage Saturday, during the absence of Ed Thorne, who with Mrs. Thorne, went to Portland to take the Roseburg band boys to take part in the band contest. The Thornes returned Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jantzer and sons and Charles Jantzer visited friends at Climax Sunday. They returned by the way of Trail, Drew and Tiller and down the South Umpqua.

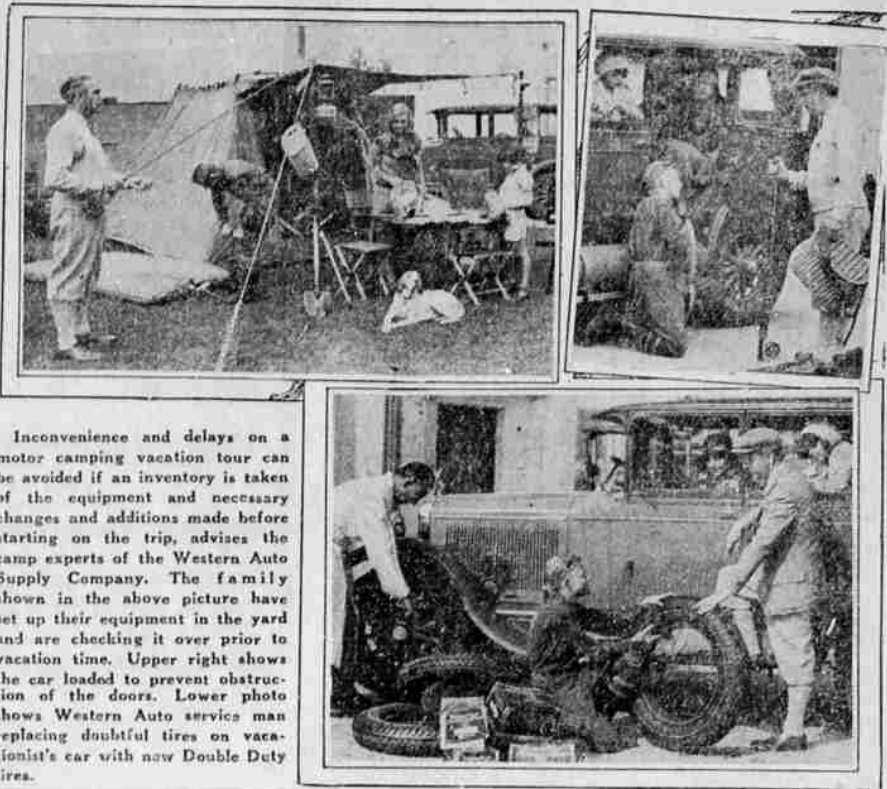

Garrett Zudersone of Orland, California, is visiting with his cousins, the Oldenburg brothers, this week.

Mrs. Ralph Stark of Klamath Falls, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Clure.

We wish to correct an error of one of last week's news items. It was not Noel Tripp that worked his way at Lehman falls, but was four boys from Days Creek and Canyonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Gilham and children spent Monday in Roseburg

Proper Equipment Adds To Vacation Joys

Inconvenience and delays on a motor camping vacation tour can be avoided if an inventory is taken of the equipment and necessary changes and additions made before starting on the trip, advises the camp experts of the Western Auto Supply Company. The family shown in the above picture have set up their equipment in the yard and are checking it over prior to vacation time. Upper right shows the car loaded to prevent obstruction of the doors. Lower photo shows Western Auto service men replacing doubtful tires on vacationist's car with new Double Duty tires.

War Ace Gives Life for Girl

In an attempt to save the life of Miss Mary Fahrney, inset, Oak Park, Ill., girl, when her parachute became tangled in her first jump from a plane, at Chicago, Bruno Schastek, above, German war ace, met death while climbing down a knotted rope from another plane.

REEDSPORT

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
REEDSPORT, July 17.—Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Couden left Wednesday for Eugene, where they will attend the session of the Presbyterian Synod, returning Monday.

Mrs. H. E. Kennedy returned Sunday from a month's trip to New York, where she went to attend the wedding of her daughter, Margaret, to John Tolman Small, which occurred June 14. She reported a delightful though warm trip.

Mrs. C. A. Lee, who has been receiving treatment at the Keizer hospital, returned home Sunday. Complete rest, the doctors told her will insure recovery.

Ten boats from Seattle and Astoria discharged 14 tons of salmon at the Anderson Packing company's dock Monday.

The American Legion furnished food for the members at a large picnic held at Mussel reef, below Sunset beach Sunday. About 40 persons attended.

A large attendance of members and friends enjoyed the annual garden club picnic held at Hoagland's Friday. The weather was a little chilly, but a large bonfire and generous picnic dinner made up for that.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Simpson and daughter of Shore Acres were dinner guests of Ed and Jane Ford Sunday.

Considerable interest is being shown in the contest over who shall be queen over the Lower Umpqua Fair, September 12 and 13. The merchants give votes with merchandise, and discussions are held as to the likeliest contestant.

The fair board is still receiving letters of approbation relative to the fair broadcast made recently over KOOS by Jane Ford and Carmen Allen. The last contained a request that the girls go to Eugene and broadcast.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burt left Monday to visit their son-in-law, and daughter while the Umpqua mill is down for repairs. Their daughter and sons accompanied them.

Reedport is producing some real flowers. Mrs. A. Bottal tells of sweet peas with stems 152 inches long, and 4 flowers to a stalk. They are dark red, but Mrs. Bottal doesn't know the name of the variety.

Miss Lucille Maupin is visiting her parents and sisters. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Maupin and daughters of Thorp. She has been employed in Portland the past 2 years, and is planning to accompany expected relatives from Hollywood on their return and enter business college in Los Angeles this fall. She and her mother stopped in Reedport Monday.

Fishing parties are having luck and sport at Winchester Bay now. "Bill" Lloyd, Paul Bernhardt, and Norman Morris caught 2 huge salmon between them Sunday. Accompanied by Mrs. Bernhardt, Mrs. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thacker of Portland, Mrs. A. M. Purker and the Morris children they picnicked on the beach Sunday.

Another party consisting of J. A. Ellis, Rev. W. A. Couden, and A. W. Burton caught four silversides and a steelhead Saturday. Two weighed 25 pounds each, and one weighed 15 pounds.

GREEN

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
GREEN, July 17.—Miss Elizabeth Renner, who was expected home last Sunday, was unable to return when planned and is expected to arrive tonight. She will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Renner of Happy Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton and children and Fred M. Van Horn spent the past few days vacationing at Steamboat.

George Holm and family have moved into their new home in Happy valley.

John Howard, formerly a resident of Green, visited his father, Joe Howard, last week. Mr. Howard is now connected with the Oregon State college at Corvallis.

Fred Van Horn of Milwaukee, Wis., son of the late M. M. Van Horn, and a brother of Mrs. Fred Hamilton of Roseburg, visited friends in Green for several days. He is here looking after his pear and apple orchard. Mr. Van Horn is employed by the Wisconsin state college.

Harry Hoffman, who recently purchased the Rudeen ranch, is installing a large colony of Italian bees. He finds a good market for the honey.

The Happy valley swimming hole is being well patronized by large delegations from Roseburg as well as the younger people of the immediate vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burt left Monday to visit their son-in-law, and daughter while the Umpqua mill is down for repairs. Their daughter and sons accompanied them.

Reedport is producing some real flowers. Mrs. A. Bottal tells of sweet peas with stems 152 inches long, and 4 flowers to a stalk. They are dark red, but Mrs. Bottal doesn't know the name of the variety.

Miss Lucille Maupin is visiting her parents and sisters. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Maupin and daughters of Thorp. She has been employed in Portland the past 2 years, and is planning to accompany expected relatives from Hollywood on their

GLENDALE MAN DIES IN EUGENE

(News-Review Douglas County Special)

GLENDALE, July 17.—Joel D. Harper, 69, well known Glendale resident, better known as "Sobe" to his many friends, died at the Pacific Christian hospital at Eugene, where he had been for two weeks, Monday, July 14. The body was shipped to Glendale for burial.

Funeral services were conducted by Azalea lodge No. 119, A. F. & A. M., of which he had been a member for 27 years, Tuesday afternoon. The interment was made in the Glendale Masonic cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dora Harper; his son, Carl L. Harper, Glendale; two daughters, Mrs. Arthur H. (Ruby) Hage, Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. C. W. (Belle) Brooks, Eugene; a brother, C. C. Harper, Klamath Falls and a nephew, Homer Harper, Eugene. A son, Milton J. Harper, was killed in the marines in France during the World war; another son, Harry, was killed a number of years ago in a logging accident; and two sons, David and Joe, died during childhood.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work occasioned their moving to southeastern Washington where they resided for about two years before moving to Glendale in January of 1901 where they have made their home ever since. He continued working for the Southern Pacific company for a number of years and then worked for the Glendale Lumber company until recent years when he retired because of his health.

Mr. Harper was born in Smith county, Texas, June 19, 1861, where he spent his boyhood. As a young man he served as deputy U. S. marshal in the Panhandle section of Texas and along the border between Texas and the Indian territory, as it was then known, where he had many interesting and exciting experiences. He afterwards took up railroading. He married Miss Dora Peters, his widow, near Whitesboro, Texas, September 11, 1889. His railroad work