Is a great need felt there for hydro-electric power. The residents of that district have been investigating the matter of connecting with existing power lines, but have become convinced that they can construct and operate their own generating plant at less cost, and are proceeding accordingly. Another meeting is to be called in the near future to make more definite organization plans and to arrange for starting construction.

The growth of poultry and dairy ranches, together with the diversified farming of the district, makes the use of electric power very necessary, and the residents of that section are determined to secure such a utility.

would not care to say a mother would know her child on second or third encounter.

Dr. Paddock said the mother at once knew features resembling her family's or her husband's. Thus the child to her has its father's eyes, its maternal grandmother's nose or its ears may set on the head at the angle of Uncle Bob's. To its father, other relatives and outsiders it may look like "just another baby."

"You can't fool a mother after she has seen her baby a few times," Dr. Hadden said. "In ten I have made tests to see if I have asked mothers to select their children from among several brought in from the hospital nursery and they did so correctly."

—Miss Anna Magallana, head nurse at the Presbyterian hospital, agreed with the doctors, and C. D. Martin, superintendent of St. Luke's hospital, declared if a mother did not know her own offspring after the first introduction he would think there was something wrong with her eyesight.

—Then this proposition was put to Dr. Gibson. "I wanted a mother to recognize a child on second encounter as the one given her at birth. But suppose she were given the wrong baby in the beginning, would her mother's instinct detect the error?"

—"Hm, hardly," he replied. "Grandparents take hand."

—CONSIDERABLE interest was shown in an effort to help straighten out the Chicago baby mix-up, the grandparents of one of the infants has sent to Chicago a picture of William Watkins, father of one of the babies, when he was four months old.

The grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Susan Watkins, have been residents of this place for many years.

The picture was found in the family album, and the grandmother considers it to be a striking likeness to published photographs of the "Hamberger baby." So she sent it to Chicago, she said, "in the hope the experts will now be able to see which child is which."

Mooney asked the governor in a pardon petition mailed from here, for a personal hearing. He requested the governor to hear John MacDonald, who will appear at a supreme court hearing tomorrow on a pardon application of Warren K. Billings, also serving life sentence for the bombing.

MacDonald is scheduled to tell the court he falsely identified Mooney and Billings and gave perjured testimony at their trials. This testimony helped convict them of the bombing which killed ten and injured 40 persons.

In his petition Mooney reviewed his case and denied any knowledge or connection with the crime. He asked his application be considered apart from Billings' petition. Mooney's request was sent to the governor by Attorney Frank P. Walsh.

The supreme court justices today decided not to hear Mooney and Billings tomorrow. They said they were concerned with MacDonald only.

METSCHAN BORN IN OREGON, SON OF STATE'S FORMER TREASURER. Republican Candidate For Governor Announces Himself Opposed to Abolition of Public Service Body And Conservative With Respect to Taxation. Phil Metschan, nominated republican candidate for governor Saturday by the state central committee, was born in Canyon City, Grant county, March 24, 1876, on the 39th birthday of his father, Phil Metschan Sr., who served as state treasurer of Oregon a number of years. The nominee attended the public schools in Canyon City and when he was 14 years old the family moved to Salem. Phil junior attended Willamette academy graduating in 1895. He continued at Willamette university for three years, then went to Stanford university. He found his first job as a bookkeeper in the Wells-Fargo Express company in Portland. The following year, on November 25, 1899, he was married to Mary Velone Kubil of Jacksonville. Barker and Hotel Man. In 1890 he returned to Canyon City and helped organize the Grant County bank. After managing this institution for two years he sold out and went to Heppner. He purchased the Palace hotel there and operated it four years. Then Metschan junior came back to Portland to help his father in the management of the Imperial hotel, which the senior founded in 1899. Upon the death of his father Phil became president and general manager of the hotel. Mr. Metschan was serving his second term as chairman of the republican state central committee when he resigned Friday to seek the nomination for governor. Besides managing his hotel he has found time to be treasurer of the state central committee and the chairman of the committee. Mr. and Mrs. Metschan have two daughters, Mrs. Willis P. Hawley Jr., and Miss Phyllis. Principles Stated. In announcing his platform, Mr. Metschan says: "I shall rigidly apply to the business of the state the same principles of efficiency and economy that I have applied to my own business. This pledge can be efficiently fulfilled only by basing appointments on merit, and exacting from employees the same character of service that is required of individuals subjected to the competition of private life. Merit shall be the controlling basis of my appointments and that merit must be consistently and continuously displayed as a condition of tenure of office. "The development of the resources of the state, its timber, its agriculture, its manufactures, its shipping, and its fish and game will have my earnest support and direction. There will be no favoritism displayed between localities, industries or individuals. "I shall vigorously enforce all the laws. "I am opposed to the abolition of the public service commission; its abolition would result in no effective regulation of public utilities and would be welcomed by the powerful corporations, which are better controlled by regulatory commissions, federal and state, than by any other method yet devised. "I am a progressive with respect to education, matters of public health and the acceptance by the public and by industry of the inevitable losses which arise from employment in hazardous occupations. I am a conservative with respect to matters of taxation, although it will be my effort to reduce the burden of taxation by removing it in part from those less able to bear it.
