'The SEA BRIDE'

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Faith Kilcup had visions of a happy married life with Noll Wing, captain of the whaler, Sally Sims, but dissipation had changed him from a strong master to a complaining, old man, constantly gripped by the fear of revenge for having kicked out the eye of Mauger, one of the crew. Dan'l Tobey, a mate, is in love with Faith. When the Sally stops at an island, Faith meets an ex-sailor, named Brander, who joins Noll's crew. Dan'l is jealous of Brander, and also instills in Faith's brother, Roy, a dislike of him. When Noll rebukes Brander for assisting Mauger, Brander's pluck in defying him wins Noll's admiration. Later in a battle with a whale, the first mate loses his life. Dan'l fills the vacancy, Brander is made fourth mate. The enmity between Dan'l and Brander grows. Faith rebukes Dan'l for saying Noll is master in name only. He is about to sweep her into his arms when Brander interrupts. Later, Dan'l calls Noll's attention to Brander talking with the crew.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII.

Brander smiled.

"The man Hatch tripped on a coil of line and fell. That minded me of a thing like that happened on the Thomas Morgan, and I told them of it. A fat greeny caught his foot in the rigging and dived thirty feet overside into the sea. It was a comical thing, sir; and they laughed at it."

"I do not want my mates consorting with the crew," said Noll sulkily; and there was more complaint than accusation in his voice. "It does no harm to be friendly with the men, sir." Brander replied. "Liking is as good a handle as fear to hold them with."

Old Noll tried to beat down Brander's eyes with his own; but his own were the first to shift. He shrank, the vigor of his anger passed; he was an old man again.

"Damn it, if you'd rather be forward, go there and stay!" he fretted. "Do you want to go back to the fo'c's'le, man?"

"No, sir," Brander said respectfully. "I'll do as yor say."

"For God's sake, do." Noll whined. He turned back to the cabin, brushing past Dan'l. "And you, Mr. Tobey—don't bother me with such matters."

Dan'l darted a look at Brander, his eyes glinting.

"I thought it important, sir" he said.

Noll grunted and went below. Dan'l, with a triumphant grin at Brander, followed him. Faith was in the main cabin; she looked at the two seriously.

"What was it, Noll?" she asked.

Noll shook his head fretfully; he cabin.

stumped past her towards his own

"The man, Brander, carrying favor forward," he said. "I guess I put a bee in his bonnet!"

"He meant no harm, sir," Dan'l said. "I'm sure of it."

Noll whirled on him.

"Then why did you run to me?"

"So that you might set him right and put an end to't." said Dan'l. "He's a bit too friendly with the men. It was time he was told."

"Oh, ay!" said Noll, wearily. "Come, Faith!"

The door of the after cabin shut behind them; and Dan'l, left alone, smiled at his own thoughts and was content.

There was one circumstance that counted against Brander in the eyes of James Tichel of Mr. Cox, and of some of the crew. This was the fact that for close on a month after he was made an officer the Sally Sims sighted not one loose whale.

During the interval they raised There were fish all about them three other whaling craft, and stopped to gam with them. Two of the three were cutting in when the Sally sighted them; the third had just finished trying out the blubber of a ninety-barrel bull; but the Sally saw not so much as a spout. Old Tichel, who had the superstitious of the sea in his blood, began to look sidewise at Brander and whispered that he was a Jonah.

That new moon in whose light Dan'l tried to plead with Faith was another ill omen. Noll Wing coming on deck the first night the moon appeared, saw it first over his left shoulder when Faith's called to him to look. He swung his head to the left, saw the moon, and old Tichel's cry was too late to stop him. Faith laughed at the second mate; Noll grumbled at him. But Tichel clung to his doubts and superstitions; and Willie Cox was converted to belief in them by the indisputable fact that the Sally sighted no whales.

The men on a whaling vessel have an interest in the cruise They are not paid for the work they do, nor for the time they spend, but according to the earnings of the vessel. Their salary or wage, is called a "lay." This ranges from the captain's lay down to that of the greeny. The captain's is one-twelfth; or at least this was Noll Wing's lay. The greenies on the Sally Sims were on a hundred and seventy-fifth lay. Which, being interpreted, means that out of every twelve barrels of oil the Sally brought home, one would belong to the captain; out of every hundred and seventy-five, one would belong to the green hands. The captain got one in twelve, the mate one in eighteen, the second mate got one in twenty-eight and so the shares ran down the scale.

The lays were so arranged that out of every hundred and seventy-five barrels, some fifty-five went to the officers and crew, while the remainder went to the owner to pay the expenses of the voyage and give him his profits—three per cent, or six, or a hundred, as the luck of the cruise might decide. The men of the crew were sure of their money, such as it was, before the owner got his; for it was the custom of old Jonathan Felt to pay off his men at the current price of oil before figuring his own profit or loss.

The effect of this arrangement was to give the mates and the men an incentive to effort. They were acutely interested in the success of the cruise. And by the same token, the ill luck which now beset the Sally tended to fret their tempers and set them growling about their tasks. Some blamed Brander; some blamed Noll Wing; some blamed their luck.

Brander felt the strain as much as any of them. He was, in addition, an untried man; he had not yet had his chance to strike a whale, and that is the final test of a whaler's officers. When he was taken into the cabin and given a boat, he was forced to be content with the poorest material aboard. That is the fourth mate's luck. He had Mauger, the one-eyed man; he had Loum as his harpooner; and to fill out the crew he had three others who were weak hands at the oars and slack at every task.

He set himself to whipping his crew into shape. In the luckless days when the Sally idled with double watches at the mastheads he used to take his boat off and push the men to their work, training steadily, striving to put pith into them. He was not a man given to the use of his fists; neither had his tongue the acid bite of Dan'l Tobey's; but he had a way of rallying at the men good naturedly, abusing them with a smile, that made them laugh and tug the harder at their oars. He won from them more than they had ever given before. He inspired in them a distinct loyalty, which gave birth, in time, to a pride in their boat that pleased Brander and promised well.

Mauger, in particular, was Brander's shadow and slave. The one-eyed man, who had been turned into a chuckling and harmless nonentity by the captain's blows and kicks, found Brander kindly; and he repaid this kindliness with a devotion that was marked by every man aboard.

Mauger's devotion was marked above all, by Noll Wing; and the captain, in whom fear of the one-eyed man was growing like a cancer, dreaded Brander all the more because of it.

One night Noll and Faith were playing cribbage in the after cabin, and the door into the main cabin was open. Faith sat on the seat across the stern, while Noll was in a chair, his back to the door, his knees supporting the board they used as a table. Brander came down from the deck with word that one of the men had cut himself with his clasp-knife; he wanted to go to the medicine-chest in the after cabin for materials to care for the wound.

The sea was turbulent; the Sally was rocking on it; the rigging was creaking, and the timbers of the old craft groaned aloud. This tumult drowned the noise of Brander's footsteps as he came down the ladder and across the main cabin. When he appeared in the doorway behind Noll, Faith saw him. Noll neither saw nor heard till Brander said quietly:

"Sorry to bother you, sir, but—"

Noll, whose nerves were shaky, whirled up from his chair. The board slid from his knees, the cards were spilled. His face was ghastly with fright. When he saw Brander, his fright turned to rage.

"Damn you, Brander!" he cried. "Don't you sneak up on me like that again!"

"I'm sorry," Brander said, respectfully. "I should have—"

"What do you want?" Noll barked. "Get out of here! Get out of my sight! Don't stand there gawping!"

"I want to get some—"

"I don't give a damn what you want!" Noll cried. "Get up on deck, where you belong—sharp!"

Brander stood his ground.

"One of my men has cut his hand pretty badly, sir," he said. "I want some stuff to fix it up."

Noll wavered. He threw up his hands.

"All right! Get what you want. I can't get rid of you any other way. But don't come sneaking up behind me again. I don't like it, Mr. Brander!"

Brander made no reply; he crossed to the medicine-chest and found what he needed. Faith had picked up the fallen board and the cards.

"Sit down, Noll," she said quietly. "We'll deal that hand over again."

Big Noll sat down, watching Brander sidewise. When Brander was gone, Faith asked:

"Why were you startled?"

"I don't like that man," Noll said. "He's too thick with Mauger for me. Mauger'll stick a knife in me some night. He will, Faith!"

Faith shook her head.

"Don't be foolish, Noll! Mauger's not worth being afraid of."

Noll laughed mirthlessly.

"I tell you there's murder in that man," he protested; "and Brander's with him I've a mind."

"It's your crib," said Faith, and played a card. "Three!"

Noll mechanically took up the game; but Faith, watching, saw that his eyes were furtively alert for half an hour thereafter.

I ADVISE EVERYONE WITH GRAY HAIR TO USE LEA'S HAIR TONIC

Brings Back Youthful Color and Beauty and Makes One Look Younger

IT IS EASY TO USE AND WORKS LIKE MAGIC

"My hair first began turning gray when I was only 25 years old and it made me seem much older than I was so I used several preparations but none were satisfactory until I tried Lea's Hair Tonic. It is positively wonderful," declares Margaret Valinchus, well known photographer, room 32 Veitzenhorn Bldg., Wilkes Barre, Pa.

"After using Lea's about four days I began noticing a change in my hair and so I kept it up for four weeks every night and it was just like magic the way it gradually changed right back to my old youthful color. I certainly advise anyone who is gray to use Lea's Hair Tonic. You look so much younger and better groomed," continued Miss Valinchus.

Thousands of men and women prematurely gray have found that Lea's Hair Tonic quickly stimulates and revives a vigorous growth and healthy condition to the scalp and hair. It is a clear, stainless preparation one may use at home.

If the reader's hair is thin, full of dandruff or of uneven color or gray in spots, let them obtain a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic at the drug store and use per directions. Results are absolutely guaranteed or money refunded by the nationally known Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md., who will mail you a bottle on receipt of dollar bill, or check or stamps, if your druggist hasn't it

SENSIBLE WAY TO LOSE FAT

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel so urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the spicy-ade Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—then be fearless that way, and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 82 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Nathan Fullerton's or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world. —Adv.

Ends Piles Quick

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. Cutting and external remedies can't do this—an internal medicine must be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, succeeds, because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success right in this city that Chapman's Drug Store says to every Pile sufferer, try HEM-ROID at my risk. It must end all Pile agony or you get your money back. —Adv.
