Opinions on Meier "Nomination"

BASED on the following conclusions upon what expression of opinion is found in other state newspapers regarding the Meier nomination, it seems there is no very hearty approval of it.

"Meier cannot supply the type of leadership which a movement of this kind needs," says the Salem Statesman.

"It will be Metchin against Meier, with the odds against the latter," remarks the Bend Bulletin.

Under the caption: "Prepare for the Greater Talkie Season" the Medford Mail-Tribune says "So the hills and valleys of Oregon are going to fairly shake with the din of the Meier political barrage, before many moons."

The spectacle of the Meier nomination looks "lucky" to the Baker Democrat-Herald which further indicates that it feels that Meier's heart does not actually bleed for the cause of the "common people."

Referring to the Meier nomination "convention" the Daily Chronicle at The Dalles thinks that: "Last night's gathering in the most ludicrous affair ever perpetrated in the name of democracy and representative government."

The Corvallis Gazette-Times jokingly remarks: "When my name was first mentioned in Klamath county," says the hair wearing candidate, "I thought it was a prank! Quite a natural thought, we think."

There were other and similar comments in the newspapers on our exchange table but the above will suffice to give an idea of the general attitude of Oregon's up-state press.

About the whole affair of Meier's nomination is an element of absurdity that defies serious comment. This is just about the craziest, most mixed-up year in the political history of Oregon. If the Willamette democrats and the Joseph Republicans are able to jump-ship the hurdles necessary to reaching a decision to bolt their regular parties and vote for Meier, then Mr. Meier will be elected. Stranger things have happened but the present situation strains even the remote possibility always allowed for by saying that.

Oregon Editors' Opinions

Another New Timber Product. COGS HAY TIMES: With a for and opening in St. Helens this week the new Fir-Flex Insulation Board plant not under way. The occasion was marked by quite a celebration with delegations from leading civic and other Oregon points. Mayor Geo. Baker spoke glowingly of friendship between Portland and industries outside of that city. Julius Meier congratulated the manager, A. E. Millington, and other organizers on their splendid accomplishment. In short, it seems that this new enterprise is well on its way.

Fir-Flex is a product well in keeping with the times. A few short years ago waste of any kind was thought to be of little value or importance. Lumber waste is still largely considered to be a total loss. Fir-Flex is made from the slabs made from chips of fir wood including bark, knots and other material usually classified as waste.

This material is first baked in huge cylindrical digesters for 21 hours for softening, and is then pressed out into enormous sheets which weigh 2 pounds. All ends or second grade are shredded and worked over again to produce nothing but first class product.

The plant, in which capitalists from all parts of the United States are interested, is located in Trout Point, St. Helens. This has been the history not only of the timber industry but every manufacturing enterprise dependent upon natural resources as the basis of their operations.

Waste from Port Oxford cedar has unusual value and will undoubtedly be put to good use within a few years. Local capitalists as well as outside moneyed men will do well to watch the progress of this development in the timber industry. The soviet officials are chuckling these days at the spectacle of this country sacrificing the welfare of the northwest to satisfy the greed of eastern manufacturers. They are finding capitalistic dollars an effective weapon in their own favor, when rightly handled.—Asterian.

We can see some sense in night baseball in summer when it is not and night football in California where it is hot, but can see no reason for night football in Corvallis where the sea-breeze blows every afternoon and cools things off even in summer. And when fall comes—the spectators generally need all the blankets they can carry and overcoats they can wear to keep from becoming refrigerated in the grandstand. Instead of sending three or four thousand dollars for lights, we have an idea the fans would feel better about it if the grandstand were "sided" up to keep the icy blasts from whizzing up one's lower extremities.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

"Ma" Ferguson won the Texas primary by a big lead and now enters the run-off primary with good chance of success. "Ma" is just the front for the old huffer Jim Ferguson who was kicked out of office and made ineligible to hold the governorship again. Primaries are bad, and we can't see that conventions are any better. How much longer have we got to live on this old earth anyhow, doc?—Salem Statesman.

Salem is winking up to the fact that miniature golf courses hold an attraction for the people and is trailing Albany and other valley cities in building one or more.—Albany Democrat-Herald.

Iowa State college scientists are reported to have developed a new local anesthetic from corn cobs, but that's nothing. We know of a pillowcase proprietor who produced general anesthesia with the butt end of billiard cues.—Bend Bulletin.

Senator Copeland, democrat from New York, declines to be a candidate for the presidency in 1932 and predicts that Mr. Hoover will be triumphantly re-elected. Senator Copeland is a physician and if he is as good a doctor as he is a predictor, he should have a large practice.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

Most any political campaign is a demonstration in itself that a fight over free speech is superfluous.—Harrisburg Bulletin.

Union in 1930, as compared with the population in 1929, you noted that Montana is the only state showing a decrease.

Travelers who cross Montana complain that her roads are terrible. By not building roads, Montana has saved money, but it is quite possible that by NOT building good roads she has LOST more than she has gained.

Good roads are essential to progress in these days.

HERE is something to think about: From 1929 to 1928, the number of kilowatt hours of electricity generated in this country increased over 100 per cent, and per capita consumption of electricity increased 50 per cent. Electricity is POWER. Power takes the place of muscle. The more power we use, the less muscle we require.

With increasing use of power coming down the demand for muscle, a question arises as to where muscle is to find jobs in the future.

Here is a plainly evident fact: If our own American muscle is to find adequate jobs in the future, in the face of increasing use of power and machinery, it is going to be necessary to cut down sharply the volume of muscle coming in from other countries.

"POLICE" Round Up Slot Machines. So reads a headline in a Portland newspaper. It is a headline that recurs from time to time.

Slot machines, banned in frequent raids, have a habit of creeping back and doing business at the same old stand.

THERE is a theory that petty gambling, such as that represented by slot machines helps business by attracting to the places where business is done people who like to take a chance.

It is a mistaken theory. Gambling never helped legitimate business ANYWHERE. It never will. Gambling, petty or otherwise, HURTS business in the long run, instead of helping it.

If you doubt that, hark back to last year when the biggest gambling game in the history of the world was going on unchecked in the stock exchanges. It was great while it lasted, but when the crash came it nearly ruined the country and we are just barely beginning now to get over the effects of it.

Maybe I'm Wrong

By J. P. MEDBURY THE three most trying aces in a woman's life are trying to get a man, trying to get rid of him and trying to get him back.

The Good Old Daze—You can't blame a man for going home intoxicated. When he's in that condition he's liable to go anywhere.

Talks on Health

By DR. R. S. COPELAND THERE is nothing to compare to radiant, vigorous health. So long as we have good health all things seem possible. The tasks and pleasures of the day appear interesting and profitable. But with poor health life takes on a very different aspect.

Now unthinking are we when we allow ourselves to deviate from right habits of living. Bad habits lead to all sorts of ills.

Harm is done when we overindulge in eating, and at the same time neglect our very necessary daily exercise. It is wrong to drive our bodies and minds in tasks and pleasures far beyond human endurance, with consequent loss of sleep and rest. When we mistreat ourselves in these ways poisons are produced within the body, poisons which may undermine the whole system.

We are sure to suffer, even though the quantity of poison developed within the body is very small. The seat of infection may be tiny, yet profound, and even serious symptoms result.

Just what harm may come depends upon the nature of the infection. Some infections are more serious than others. This may be because the infected person is particularly susceptible to the poison or because of the virulence of the poison.

The places where poisons may develop are many. The most likely cause of auto-intoxication is absorption from the intestinal tract. Constipation, or an alternation of constipation and diarrhea, is the first thing that warns the sufferer that his auto-intoxication comes from the intestinal tract. This condition is one of the most widespread troubles of our age.

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE DEAR NANCY LEE: Will you please give me your advice on this problem? I love a young man two years my senior. I have been keeping steady company with him for the last four months and then he told me he didn't love me as a sweetheart but as best friends. He also said that he will keep on going with me if I still wished it. We are still keeping steady company. Now I want you to tell me what to do. Does he love me? How can I make him love me? JUST PEGGIE G.

JUST PEGGIE G.: I would advise you to form other friendships. Since the young man has been so frank about things, just treat him as an ordinary friend. Don't let him guess your feelings, he probably thinks that he has been most sensible and honest about things. So set about making other friends, rather than spend your time discussing how you can make someone love you who has told you just definitely that he doesn't. Continue to keep this young man's friendship. No one can have too many true-blue friends.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am writing for your advice: 1.—Which is proper to write first—the girl or the boy. 2.—Is it proper to keep an everyday diary without your mother's knowledge. THE TWO MAES.

THE TWO MAES: 1. In all such things, the young man should take the initiative. 2.—I am sure that you would not write anything in your diary that you would not be perfectly willing for your mother to read, and so, there should be no reason to withhold knowledge of the diary from her.

PLEASE DOCTOR. Q.—I am very much bothered with an excess of saliva. What is the cause and what may be done for it? 2.—What causes colitis and how can it be cured? A.—This is due to an acid condition of the system. Correct your diet and see that the intestinal tract is kept clear. An alkaline mouth wash should give increased comfort.

2.—Indigestion in diet is the usual cause. Careful dieting and regular elimination should bring results. SALLY. Q.—How can I reduce? 2.—How can I get rid of a disagreeable taste in my mouth? 3.—What causes low blood pressure?

A.—By eliminating from your diet as far as possible sugars, starches and fats. Eat plenty of fresh fruit and green vegetables. Exercise in the open air daily is very essential.

2.—This may be due to diseased tonsils or teeth, constipation, auto-intoxication or nasal catarrh. 3.—This is a condition usually produced accompanying such diseases as infection fever, anaemia, diabetes, shock, general debility and auto-intoxication.

Mrs. M. M. Q.—What do you advise for chilblains? A.—Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars, and repeat your question.

Q.—Are raw potatoes fattening? A.—Yes.

Around... The County

By R. R. WOOD Although the prospect for a big yield of prunes is not flattering, Mr. H. F. Hebard, of Unquipp, who has a 18-acre orchard of big over-ripening work on a new, strictly modern prune drier, that he expects to have ready for business by the time fruit is ready. Not only will this drier take care of the fruit from the Hebard orchard, but the drier will dry a great deal of the fruit for neighbors. The new drier will be electrically equipped as the power lines serve the country around Unquipp and in Coles valley. This power line has been put in within a year or so, and the driers in the lower river country are, or will be, connected up with the wires. Just at present the usual fall drop of prunes is on, and a great deal of the fruit is falling. Mr. Hebard stated that in his opinion there will not be over a 40 per cent crop this fall.

Conditions were not good in the spring, and the dry summer has also added its quota in militating against a normal yield. However, he stated, the quality will be excellent, doubtless, and with a rise in the prices, which all growers are hoping will occur, the finale in the situation will not be so bad as many have feared.

General business conditions at Unquipp Mr. Hebard stated, are really good, the volume of business done at the business center there being practically normal on many farms in the vicinity material progress is noted, new modern farm homes, modern driers, commodious barns and other improvements being noted by the writer in his trip through that section.

WOMAN BANDIT AND CONSORT TO HANG

(Associated Press Leased Wire) NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, both of Wheeling, W. Va., Saturday were sentenced to die in the electric chair for the killing of highway patrol corporal Brady Paul near here last December 27.

Judge R. L. Hildebrand sentenced the pair after refusing to grant them a new trial. The date for their execution will be set by the governor.

With the passing of sentence, the fates of the woman bandit and the man who deserted his wife and children to accompany her on a career of crime passed from the hands of the Lawrence county courts. The two were convicted last spring after prolonged trials following their capture in Arizona in a gun battle in which a deputy sheriff was wounded fatally.

The condemned pair heard their doom pronounced without change of expression. Neither had a word to say.

HILLS BROS COFFEE is roasted as you would cook cereal. A little at a time is the way to add cereal to boiling water. Result—no lumps. A few pounds at a time, by their continuous process, is the way Hills Bros. roast their coffee. Result—an even roast and a delicious flavor no bulk-roasting process can produce.
