

STAGE CELEBRITY ALLEGED PARTY IN BANKRUPTCY PLOT

(Associated Press Leased Wire) NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Helen Kane, the hoop-a-whoop girl, is reported under a supreme court order from touching $40,000 in her account in the Plaza Trust company.

The order was issued at the instance of counsel for the creditors of the Bond Dress company, in bankruptcy proceedings, who charged Murray J. Posner, a partner in the firm, gave the money to Miss Kane out of funds which rightfully belonged to the creditors.

A process server, armed with a subpoena, left for Chicago, where she is appearing on the stage. The subpoena directs her to appear in court here to testify to the circumstances under which she received the $40,000 from Posner.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Helen Kane, who is hoop-a-whooping in a loop theatre, denied charges by creditors of the bankrupt Bond Dress company, in New York, that Murray J. Posner, a partner in the dress firm, had given her $40,000.

The creditors obtained an injunction in the New York state supreme court restraining Miss Kane from touching her account in a New York bank. They charged Posner gave Miss Kane the money out of funds which belonged to creditors.

"Mr. Posner is a friend of mine," said Miss Kane, "but I never heard of this money business. Maybe I've been more dooped against than dooping."

POOLE'S CHARGES IN CLIFFORD CASE FALSE, EVANS SAID

(Associated Press Leased Wire) EUGENE, Aug. 13.—David H. Evans, Lane county member of this state game commission, today branded as false charges Harry W. Poole, commission member, hurled in his counter attack with the intention of restoring Harold W. Clifford, ousted game warden, to his former official capacity.

Evans said the vote of the executive meeting would stand. He said papers were not prepared before the session but were dictated before the commission at the chairman's request. Poole charged the ouster of Clifford was a "cut and dried affair."

"Findings of the executive committee were based on facts," Evans said, "and not on charges or evidence."

Evans said E. H. Clark, assistant state game warden, was removed by a vote of three to two on Evan's motion. Poole moved that Clifford be retained, Evans said, but the motion was defeated three to two.

YOUTH SUICIDES IN HOOD CANAL CABIN

(Associated Press Leased Wire) SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 13.—Word of the suicide of Philip Hagen, 24, of Alameda, Cal., at an isolated Hood canal cabin, reached here today. The youth, who recently underwent a major operation and was afflicted with a serious nervous disorder, Monday placed a rifle borrowed from a companion between his knees and shot himself to death through his chin.

While his mother, Mrs. Rose C. Hagen, is returning from Europe to her Alhambra, Calif., home, an aunt, Mrs. Hannah M. Bonshaw, La-Grande, Ore., requested the body be held here temporarily.

Hagen was a representative of an investment house.

ASHLAND WON'T VIE FOR VETS' HOME

ASHLAND, Ore., Aug. 13.—Efforts of an Ashland resident to bring about concerted community effort to encourage the selection of this city as the site for the proposed soldiers' home, to be constructed by the federal government, is not meeting with general approval here. The Ashland chamber of commerce, some city residents, and the selection of Roseburg as the logical site. The present move in interest of Ashland is based on the possibility that the home may not be located at Roseburg and in that event, Ashland would be the logical choice.

Songbird Still Clings to Kansas Farm Ignoring the Call of Fame, Marion Talley, Operatic Star, Continues Supervision of Her Wheat Fields Far From Lights of Broadway.

IN OPERATIC ROLE MARION TALLEY IN THE KITCHEN

COLBY, Kans., Aug. 6.—Marion Talley is still "back on the farm." When this famous American songbird announced that she was quitting the operatic stage, Broadway's sophisticates smirked, winked and whispered, "Publicity stunt!" But more than a year has since passed and America's famous young songbird is still on her 1,600-acre farm near here, feeding the chickens, baking pies and mowing the hay.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in talking pictures and concert contracts await Marion's signature the moment she decides to relinquish the management of her farm to a foreman. They have waited for more than a year now and seem destined to wait a good while longer.

For Marion Talley who crashed the operatic heavens like a sky-rocketing meteor prefers the peace of the Kansas plains to the bustling life of a celebrated songstress.

Marion was only 19 years old when her lovely voice first filled the vast interior of the New York Metropolitan Opera House. The country girl was the youngest debutante ever to sing a star part within the portals of that sacred altar of music.

Never since the glorious triumphs of Enrico Caruso had an audience cheered as they did for the Talley. For three years the chubby-faced Marion went on to gain triumph after triumph—in opera, concert and radio work.

When her golden voice had earned her $300,000 she stunned the artistic world by announcing that she was retiring and would spend her next few years on the farm she had purchased.

"She'll come back," declared the managers and agents who know their opera stars. "She won't quit. They never do until their public quits them, and Talley is on top right now."

Marion appears to have fooled them. "Life in the city," she said, "is unreal. It is not life at all. There is too much hurry and worry for real appreciation of life."

"Out upon the farms there is a chance to get at the real values of the world and life." To this simple creed, Miss Talley appears to have clung. In her middle twenties she has thrown away an opportunity for which other less gifted singers vainly strive all their lives.

There can be no criticism—Marion Talley is doing what she wishes to do.

sembled when the record was broken. As a burst of sirens, aerial bombs, automobile horns and cheers went up, Jackson and O'Brien dropped down low over the field and discharged a green flare. They came down to within a few hundred feet of the crowd and waved.

A crowd of about fifty airplane factory workers paraded across the field carrying a banner which read "again Red and Obie." Factory whistles in industrial St. Louis also heralded the return of the flight record to St. Louis with a chorus of shrieks.

The fliers' monoplane, the Greater St. Louis, a sister ship of the St. Louis Robin in which they set their record last year, appeared to the observers and the ground crew to be functioning perfectly.

Better Plane Used The Greater St. Louis is equipped with a Challenger motor of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing company, the same type of motor used last year. It is 170 horsepower. The plane's gasoline capacity is less than that of the St. Louis Robin, but it is so built as to give the fliers more room. The large fuselage tank holds 107 gallons and the two wing tanks 25 gallons each.

At the start of the flight, July 21, the plane used eight gallons of gasoline an hour, but it now is using about ten gallons an hour with about ten gallons of oil a day.

Today the endurance ship had made a total of 125 contacts with the refueler, had used about 5,055 gallons of gasoline and 25 gallons of oil. It had traveled approximately 33,000 miles and the propeller had made over 44,000,000 revolutions.

Hawks After Record. ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 13.—Captain Frank Hawks, attempting to set a new west to east transcontinental air record, landed here this morning three hours and 27 minutes after leaving Los Angeles.

He made no stop enroute here. He left for Wichita, Kans., his next stop.

Weather reports handed him here while he refueled were favorable and he said he expected to be in Wichita in three hours. "Everything looks favorable for breaking the record so far," he said as he looked over the weather charts showing a strong tail wind into and out of Wichita.

Wet sentiment in the Ohio cities was indicated at Toledo, where Representative W. W. Chalmers, a dry, who is serving his fourth term, was defeated for the republican nomination by Wilbur M. White, editor of the Toledo Times, who advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

South Rebels Against 1932 Hoover Boom

Open revolt by Southern Republicans against the renomination of President Hoover broke out on the eve of Claudius H. Huston's retirement through the announcement of Colonel Horace Mann (above) that his followers had banded together to send an "uninstructed" delegation to the 1932 convention, when, presumably, Hoover will be a candidate.
