Tropic Romance, Adventure Theme Of Carroll Film

Love in the balmy, alluring tropics where men fight boldly for wealth is the theme of the exciting melodrama which brings Nancy Carroll forward as Paramount's new star. The picture is "Dangerous Paradise" and it will show all talking, at the Liberty theatre, for two days, starting Monday, Richard Arlen is the popular leading man. Characters which have been vivid personalities for readers of Joseph Conrad's novels will live and act and talk from the screen in "Dangerous Paradise." The drama was adapted from incidents in the Conrad story by William Slavens McNutt, well-known Saturday Evening Post writer, and Grover Jones, veteran screen writer. William Wellman, director of "Wings," made the picture. Nancy Carroll has an especially able supporting cast for her first starring role in which she is seen as a girl musician in a South Sea hotel, a rendezvous for unsavory characters from the underworlds of all the great cities of the earth. Menaced by her ruthless employer, she seeks safety on a tiny island where Richard Arlen, an embittered recluse, is living and working alone. Friendship turns into hate, when Nancy resents Arlen's suspicious coldness. However,

U. S. PAYING FOR ECONOMIC SPREE, ROOSEVELT SAYS

DELHI, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an address here last night, said the country now was "paying the penalty for a wild spree based on uneconomic, unscientific and unbusinesslike foundations." "One reason," the governor said, "the country has passed through an economic crisis is that some people thought they discovered a new law, that the old law of supply and demand could be scrapped. They thought we could go on speeding up production and that in a little while we would all become as rich as the Rockefeller family as long as we did two things, paid high wages to everyone and continued high-speed selling campaigns. "It was said that instead of having one car, we would have two cars in every garage. And then I suppose the next step would be a new car for everyone in the family, including the baby. Now that is what I term the theory of lift-

WORKERS' BUREAU IN OREGON PLANNED

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 23.—A carefully planned employment service for the state of Oregon was urged by Francis L. Jones, director general of the United States employment service, in an address at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Jones said that if it were done the federal government would cooperate with the state in the appropriation of funds for maintenance of the work. The machine age and mass production, Jones said, make it more necessary than ever before, that state and national governments equip for labor placement. Jones characterized President Hoover as the "deepest student of economics in America" and lauded Senator McNary and Representative Hawley for the influence they exert in Washington. The speaker deplored the fact that Oregon hasn't more "booster" spirit. "Sometimes I think I haven't met a genuine booster in this state," he said.

Sleeves Run Wild Above The Elbow In Fall Fashions By DIANA MFRWIN PARIS, Aug. 23.—Sleeves have departed from the straight and narrow. On many of the autumn dresses for afternoon wear sleeves bear the brunt of dressmakers' innovations. Most of the change is above the elbow, foresleeves retaining their conservative, close-fitting lines which women have found most practical for general wear. Above the elbow things begin to happen. Paris dressmakers add narrow blaziers which recall the movement of tiered skirts. Or a flat band of fur, similar to trimming bands on the skirt, may simulate a cap-sleeve. Occasionally bodices are broadened at the shoulder to include caps which fall just over the top of the sleeve, reminding that not so long ago capes were smarter than they are today. These vestiges of departed cape sleeves appear also in coats, even fur coats, providing the fur is short and sleek like galliac or broadtail. Among the most sensational sleeve treatments is one which stuffs above the elbow and is tight below. The fullness disappears at the shoulder where the sleeve fits smoothly without shirring or pleats.

Manacled, Hurlled Into Sea by Racketeers

Police Officer M. T. Connolly, of the Portland police force, who was beaten into unconsciousness, manacled and thrown off a Portland, Me., pier to die by drowning, believed to have been a victim of bootleggers, Connolly was a new officer in the waterfront district and met his fate while patrolling his beat. Heavy balloting reported over the state today indicated a record vote would be brought out in the bitter run-off contest between Miriam A. Ferguson, former governor, and Ross S. Sterling, Houston publisher, for the democratic nomination for governor. Unofficial and incomplete returns were reported from scattered polling places while the voting was in progress, but the figures were insufficient to give any definite trend. Houston, the home of Sterling, early reported that partial returns from 21 city boxes gave Sterling 1128 votes, Mrs. Ferguson 396. Mineola, in East Texas, sent in an early report of 14 votes for Mrs. Ferguson and one for Sterling. San Antonio reported five precincts gave Sterling 187 and Mrs. Ferguson 148. In Dallas Sterling was reported leading by majorities of two and three to one, except in South Dallas, where the woman candidate had a lead in some boxes and was running close with Sterling in others. Plans Vacation—Mrs. May Pyron, chief operator in the local telephone and telegraph office, is preparing to leave the first of the week for a two weeks' vacation in Portland and in Donald, Oregon, where she will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. R. Ballard.
