Attractions AT THE MOVIES

LIBERTY — Today and Saturday, "The Lone Rider," featuring Buck Jones.

THRILL after thrill, and then some, are incorporated in "The Lone Rider," the all-talking "western" starring Buck Jones, which opens at the Liberty tonight.

If there is one hair-raising riding stunt that this famous cowboy and his horse Silver do not perform, it is not on record. It all happened in the days of '49. Jim Lanning, the "Hell's River Kid," having quarreled with his rival, started out to rob a stage-coach single handed. His old gang got there first, and when Jim appeared and drove them away, Mary Stearns, the only passenger, mistook him for her rescuer. There was nothing for Jim to do but keep up the deception. He did and took Mary to her father, Judge Stevens in Gold City. Now the judge rewarded Jim by making him a member of the Vigilantes, and how, after a good many stirring battles with his former gang, Jim proved himself an honest man and won the girl, are all depicted in a series of thrilling and dramatic scenes.

Besides performing a number of hair raising riding stunts that fairly take one's breath away, Buck Jones proves himself a capable and convincing actor. Dainty Vera Reynolds supplies an excellent foil for the cowboy star, and Harry Woods scores as the heavy handed villain who insists on making trouble for the two. George Pearce contributes a nice bit of character work as the judge. The story underlying the action has real dramatic interest, and there is plenty of romance to set off the daredevil horsemanship of the star. Louis King has directed the production with skill.
