Baptist Ladies Aid Holds Fine Meeting on Thursday Afternoon

The Ladies Aid of the Baptist church of Roseburg held their regular business meeting on Thursday afternoon in the church parlors, with Mrs. Oliver Johnson, president, in charge. A membership drive is now on and Mrs. R. B. Shoun and Mrs. R. E. Crawford have been chosen as captains. They chose sides and also a color. Mrs. Shoun chose gold for her team and Mrs. Crawford chose rose color.

Plans were also made for two cooked food sales, one to be held on October 25th and the other on November 22nd. Both of these sales will be held in the Southern Oregon Gas company office windows on Cass street.

Mrs. Johnson also appointed a committee to take charge of a near future party to be given in honor of all those having birthdays during the past three months.

A fine attendance was present for this meeting.

United Spanish War Veterans and Auxiliary Hold Meeting Thursday

The United Spanish War Veterans and Auxiliary No. 18 met at the Armory on Thursday evening of this week for the first meeting of the season. The members found that the club rooms had been beautifully renovated and redecorated during their vacation.

A delicious six-thirty o'clock chicken dinner was served to both orders in the banquet hall.

The ladies were successful in securing some entertainers who happened to be passing through the city, who were invited to partake of the repast and in turn gave a delightful entertainment. Two short, comical playlets and several selections on stringed instruments were enjoyed. Joseph Dubinski, with his marvelous tenor voice and banjo, especially delighted the audience.

The ladies have outlined a very interesting and beneficial line of work for the coming season. Mrs. Elsie Wright and Mrs. Evangeline Hyde gave an interesting report of the state convention held at Bend, Oregon, during the summer.

The Auxiliary is planning a delightful reception for Mrs. Clara Starmer, who was elected department president at the state convention, and who attended the national convention at Denver and who is still in the east visiting relatives.

New Paris Frocks Are Even More Elaborate

In the new season's frocks we'll be wearing the soft feminine lines to which we are by now accustomed; but what astonishingly clever elaborations! Paris says we are to become more elegant, but there will be elegance to satisfy every different fancy. Here is the good news "translated from the French" by Eleanor O'Malley in McCall's for October:

"Now that French models for the coming season have actually arrived, there is no longer any doubt that all the preliminary news about a richer, more elegant mode had a good foundation on fact. Even though the past months have accustomed us to soft feminine lines, these new French frocks and coats reveal a very decided departure in the direction of still more elaboration.

"For the rare woman looking for severely practical straight lines, Paris offers sports clothes, to be worn for practical uses. But even among sports fashions, these form a type by themselves, the exceptions that prove the rule of more softness and femininity.

"Otherwise, even town costumes and street clothes interpret simple lines in flattering ways. The new suits are a striking illustration. In contrast to the suits of other years that combined simple skirts with jackets that varied only slightly in design, the new suits have all the variety of silhouette and individuality of detail possible in a dress, and the fabrics may be anything from serviceable tweeds to soft lustrous velvets. Street frocks and coats are also noteworthy for a new variety. Their general effect is simple and practical but invariably some clever feature of cut or of detail lifts them out of the commonplace.

"In afternoon frocks, most of the new variations take the form of accenting the natural figure, wrapping or draping or molding the waist into slender lines and making it appear more slender by wide shoulder treatments in capes and scarfs and wide hemlines produced by fullness.

"Soft heavy folds arranged in new ways that bring out all the grace of long sweeping lines form the favorite theme in evening frocks. Even where the silhouette is broken by a bolero or a peplum
