TODAY'S MARKETS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

PORTLAND, Sept. 13.—Portland wholesale butter and egg markets remained unchanged Saturday in tone and price. Moderate volume of early day business was reported for each. Butter receipts continued greater than a week ago.

Highlights of the fruit and vegetable trade were given by the government market news service as follows:

Potatoes are very firm, as the result of the recently released crop estimate figures, which showed a tentative reduction of 25 million bushels in the nation's production. Sharp advances are entirely possible, within the next few days. Yakima growers are refusing offers of $20.00 per ton for No. 1s.

Dillard cantaloupes continue to realize a premium over competitive stock in eastern markets, but in most markets, there are still liberal supplies of homegrown cantaloupes.

Local demand for head lettuce is improving, with light receipts of home-grown stock. Seattle is shipping considerable volume of lettuce peas and cauliflower to Portland.

Cut Grape Shipments

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Drastic curtailment of fresh grape shipments from California will be effective next week under a recommendation of the clearing house committee of the grape control board.

The volume of juice grape shipments is to be cut 50 per cent and table grape movements 25 per cent for the week. The curtailment was decided upon to stabilize the eastern grape market.

Wool More Active

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

"Interest in wool is more widespread among the mills and better diversified than for some time, woolen mills showing more buying interest. All qualities of wool are in demand to a fair extent, at prices which keep very steady.

"The trade evidently awaits the opening of the London colonial, the Liverpool Kiwi lots and Sydney, Australia, sales the first of next week that Merinos will hold about steady as compared with last sales at London, but crossbreds are expected to decline 5 per cent or more. Offerings are 172,000 bales.

"Manufacturers evidently do not feel too sure of the trend of piece goods demand, but have been preparing themselves to take advantage of whatever developments may quickly arise.

"Mohair is dull and prices nominal."

The Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Dear Mrs. Heinline:

Hubert and Victoria have been anxiously awaiting the time to start with their music lessons again.

The work has been so interesting and I feel they have benefited so much in taking the "Melody Way." I never have to urge them to practice, they enjoy their music so much that it is always a pleasure to practice and play.

I am indeed very enthusiastic over the "Melody Way."

Sincerely yours,
(Adv.) Mrs. G. H. Newport.

Dear Mrs. Heinline:

We would like Wilma to continue her "Melody Way" training with you this year, as we are very pleased with the progress she made last year.

This system of teaching music is so interesting and attractive to the child and also teaches the fundamentals so necessary for a thorough knowledge of music in a manner interesting to the child from the very beginning.

Yours truly,
(Adv.) Mrs. O. J. Feldkamp.

POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT BANKS

AN INVASION OF PEACE

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Christian Endeavor union, placed a wreath of large white lilies and red roses at the grave of Dr. Gustav Stresemann this morning and gave high praise to the late foreign minister in an address.

"Seven hundred Christian Endeavor members from North America, representing more than 2,500,000 of their associates, place this wreath," Dr. Poling said. "Ours is a pilgrimage of friendship. We have journeyed to the eighth world's Christian Endeavor convention in Berlin. We are part of a gathering bringing together young men and women from sixty-three nations and islands of the sea. We are representatives of an army of young people 4,000,000 strong, an army of peace, we are of all languages, all colors, all conditions. We are many, but we are one. Our divisions are the divisions of geography, race and condition, but our unity is in Christ the Prince of Peace, and 'He shall reign wherever the sun doth his successive courses run.'

"It is altogether fitting that we should place our wreath upon this memorial, which is sacred to the memory of one who gave his life for his fatherland and world peace. He laid his life upon the altar of his country and for international good-will.

"His unfinished task is ours. To be worthy of the memory of those who are worthy of being remembered we must emulate their devotion. To win the peace for which they perished, the peace of the world promised to her youth, the peace of which Christ Himself is the Prince and Captain, we too must be willing to suffer and eager to dare.

"This peace will not come by might nor power, by fleets nor armies, but by the spirit. The spirit of Him at whose shrine we stand was the spirit of sacrifice and of good-will, the spirit of One who called on men to be brothers and who gave His life as a 'ransom for all.'"—By wireless to The New York Times, Aug. 9, 1930.

Proud Berlin's streets we now invade
With hosts of youth all unafraid,
And on great Stresemann's honored tomb
We lay our wreath of fragrant bloom.
Dan Poling speaks for all our youth.
In pealing forth these words of truth.
On radio waves they carry far,
And sound the knell of cruel war.

A sweeter world is in the dawn,
For Christian youth will carry on.
Already they're a world-wide band,
A source of hope in every land.
They'll break the barriers of the past;
A better world their songs forecast;
They'll leaven twentieth century meal,
And help the wounds of hate to heal.

Great Stresemann's son and his compeers,
Who'll have their say these coming years,
Will well remember this bright scene.
And in their memory fresh and green
Will live each gracious Poling word
And help to friendship undergird.
Their warm young hearts will quick respond
And strengthen every friendly bond.

We hail Dan Poling with a cheer;
God opes to him a great career.
In this momentous glorious time
He helps the race of man to climb.
More strength, O God, to his right arm
To spread abroad the Christlike charm
Till men shall crown the Prince of Peace,
And fear of war forever cease!

DEMOCRATS STILL IN DISPUTE OVER FAVORITE SONS

Brough Maintains, Despite Denials, Joe Robinson Second Choice of Gov. Roosevelt.

Qualified Endorsement Also Claimed From Ritchie's Backer—Statements Cause "Regret."

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 13.—Despite denials of the accuracy of his remarks, former Governor Charles M. Brough today maintained his statement that Franklin D. Roosevelt preferred Senator Joe T. Robinson for the presidency if he could not obtain the democratic nomination himself was based on impressions gained in a conversation with the New York governor.

Addressing an Arkansas democratic convention which unanimously endorsed Robinson for president in 1932, Brough also said Chief Justice Samuel K. Dennis of the Maryland supreme court assured him Robinson would be Maryland's first choice after Governor Albert C. Ritchie. Dennis, in Baltimore, said he did not know Brough and termed the quotation "an absurd untruth." Brough answered by naming luncheon guests, whom he said heard Dennis' views.

Roosevelt Quoted

Brough quoted Governor Roosevelt as saying:

"My hat may be in the ring. I am having trouble with Tammany over appointive matters. I assure you as governor of New York that if I cannot obtain t he nomination, there is no man I had rather support than Senator Robinson."

James J. Mahoney, secretary to Governor Roosevelt, made a statement in which he said Governor Roosevelt "regretted the very serious inaccuracies that have evidently crept into remarks" uttered by the former Arkansas chief executive. Mahoney added that Roosevelt did express warm regard for Robinson.

Brough then issued a statement in his own right, in which he said, "I do not care to engage in a controversy with such eminent gentlemen as Mr. Mahoney and Judge Dennis, as it would be unseemly of me * * *."

Prunes

By SALLY SMITH

Dear People: I am afraid we do not properly appreciate prunes, because they are so plentiful. They are really very palatable and most wholesome besides. They can be made into such delicious foods. Such as:

Prune Conserve

6 cupfuls chopped date prunes.
4 cupfuls sugar
Juice and grated rind of one large or two small lemons
½ cupfuls seedless raisins or chopped seeded ones.
½ cupful chopped walnut meats.

Mix all ingredients except nuts, and bring slowly to a boil. Boil rapidly until thick enough. Add the nuts immediately when taken from the stove, pour into jelly glasses and seal with paraffine. The nut meats may be omitted, in which case use more raisins.

Prune Whip

One cup cooked prune pulp
3 egg whites
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup chopped nuts
Flavoring

Beat egg-whites until quite stiff. Add sugar and flavoring, fold in prune pulp and nut meats. Pour into ungreased baking-dish. Set dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm in the middle. Serve hot or cold with whipped cream.

The two above recipes are both good, for I have tried them. The Sunset magazine for September gives several good prune recipes, among which the following sounds good.

Prune Salad

16 large prunes (fresh or cooked dry ones)
1 four-ounce pkg. cream cheese
1 teaspoonful grated orange rind
Lettuce-leaves
½ cupful French dressing

Mix the cream cheese with orange rind. Remove seeds from prunes and fill cavities with the cheese mixture. Arrange on lettuce leaves, allowing four whole prunes for each serving. Accompany this with the French dressing.

Let me quote the following, also from the Sunset. "Until a few years ago the dried prune was looked upon as a sort of poor relation in the fruit world. An entire change has now taken place. The prune has become an aristocrat. The fruit itself has become improved and so has the drying method. Regulated temperature, accurate supervision to prevent too much drying and equally accurate storage conditions are responsible for the deliciously juicy fruit that is preserved, but almost misnamed when we call it dry." Since prunes are so plentiful in Douglas county, everyone has a chance to preserve and make some of the many delicious recipes that call for this fruit.
