POEM FOR THE DAY

By LOUIS ALBERT RANKS

OUR PICTURE GALLERIES

Here is an interesting news story:

"Hunted in by a collection of great masters, many of them four and five hundred years old and one of them, a Rubens, hanging above his bath tub, lives eighty-five-year-old James Cleghorn, former hardware man and art collector. Cleghorn and his collection of two hundred high priced masterpieces are housed in a humble five-room cottage.

"Every inch of the wall space is covered by a piece of canvas worth thousands of dollars. The finest art collection in Canada, this gallery of Rubens, Rembrandts, Turner, Reynolds, Constables, Corots, Guineboroughs and representatives of other masters, ancient and modern, is the result of forty years of careful buying in European markets."

Not all can purchase works of art
To hang upon the Lomey walls
To keep alive a cheerful heart
When evening twilight 'round us falls.
But no man needs to be so poor
He cannot gather in his room,
When memory calls its records o'er,
Rare pictures that again will bloom.

That first faint memory of life,
The kindness in his mother's eyes—
No hint it was a world of strife,
But only glad and sweet surprise;
When safely in his mother's arms
There was no dream of things to fear,
But, nestling 'neath her wondrous charms,
He had the sense of wordless cheer.

Another scene: When love was young
And boundless rapture thrilled his breast,
When first he gave new love its tongue
And glory seemed to ride the crest
As, flashing in the loved one's glance,
He saw the radiance of the skies,
Was pulsing with life's great romance
Which youth and love alone supplies.

Ah, yes, we have our pictures, too;
We would not sell for any gold;
To us they are the grandest view
The galleries of earth could hold;
They linger in our minds and hearts,
Grow dearer with the steps of age;
They are the climax of the arts,
And clinging thoughts of love engage.

PAIN IN YOUR SHOULDER?

Use Tylenol for Relief

Knife-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis, brought on by exposure to draughts or sudden changes of weather. In some cases neuritis is a symptom of arthritis, there is stiffness or soreness in the shoulder, making it difficult to raise the arm.

The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply a small quantity of Tylenol over the affected area. This soothing, healing preparation is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the throbbing, aching peripheral nerves. The pains usually stop at once, and in a very short time the last trace of soreness should disappear.

Tylenol is absolutely harmless—free from alcohol, recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Sold by leading druggists, always on hand at Nathan Fullerton's.—(Adv.)
