

MORROW HAS NO INTENTION TO SEEK PRESIDENTIAL JOB

Senatorial Nominee Comes Out for Hoover in 1932, But Still Favoring Dry Act Repeal.

Pennsylvania's Republican Wet Leaders Bolting From Pinchot to Back Democrat.

By BRYON PRICE
WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Two of the "strong men" of the republican party, Dwight Morrow of New Jersey and William E. Borah of Idaho, have given the country an illuminating peep behind the scenes of the big political show in 1930.

It was the wet Morrow who declared last night he hoped to vote again for Herbert Hoover in 1932. It was the dry Borah who challenged those who are trying to remove from the picture a figure already hailed by his friends as a possible candidate against Hoover—Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Chooses Right Time
Morrow himself has been mentioned as a presidential possibility two years hence. His overwhelming nomination for the senate on a platform calling for repeal of prohibition put him into a position of conceded leadership among republican wets. His declaration for Hoover, however, in no wise surprised the president's circle of political advisers. They had expected such a pronouncement at the proper time, and Mr. Morrow picked a time when, within a few days, several dry leaders had forecast his nomination over Hoover in the next republican national convention.

Morrow repeatedly had labelled himself a regular. Although he disagreed with the Hoover platform on prohibition, he praised the president's economic policies.

Leaders Quit Pinchot
Borah's statement mentioned neither President Hoover for 1932, but it emphasized again the rift between the dry and the wet leaders and outstanding party leaders of the east.

Pinchot became the republican nominee for governor of Pennsylvania over the opposition of several of these leaders, and a considerable number have bolted the ticket. Among them is W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and until recently republican national committee man. A defeat for the governorship might conceivably remove Pinchot as a presidential possibility, and a victory in the present circumstances would hearten his friends to offer him as a leader of the insurgents everywhere.

Borah Issues Warning
Into this situation Borah fired a warning shot in the form of a suggestion that a senate committee might investigate whether the public utilities of Pennsylvania were spending money to defeat Pinchot. Thus he raised an issue often raised before by such western leaders as Senator Norris and the La Follette.

Further developments on the Pennsylvania front are expected by the politicians, whose attention is turned momentarily from the possibility of a wet eastern republican revolt to the activities of that ever-engaging group of which Senator Borah is a charter member.

Pinchot's Ex-Aide Bolts
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—William W. Roper, city councilman and Princeton university football coach, today joined the Philadelphia republican ward leaders who have bolted the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot, republican, and gone over to John H. Hemphill, the democratic-liberal party candidate for governor.

In a statement, Roper said he favored Hemphill because he is advocating the repeal of the national prohibition amendment and modification of the so-called Sunday blue laws. He referred to Pinchot as a "fanatical dry."

Roper directed Pinchot's campaign in Philadelphia in 1922 when Pinchot ran for governor.

Also, please remember that this committee receives no money, and little appreciation for its twelve months' work.

A full chest needs a two-dollar per capita offering. This means that the well-to-do must subscribe a goodly amount to take up the slack occasioned by the 2000 children who can give nothing, and the poor who can give little. State Needs Lake Title
Doubtless there will be a drive, instigated by the Klamath irrigation district, but aided by the public utility proponents in the state, to make the legislature memorialize congress to pass the bill permitting the government to be sued by the state to regain title to the waters of Upper Klamath lake and its tributaries. It is probable that a measure will be introduced empowering the state to lease water

CHILDREN ESCORT MOTOR KING TO PLAY

Surrounded by a band of smiling children of the village of Oberammergau, Bavaria, many of them actors in the great Passion Play, Henry Ford makes his way through the streets of this picturesque little village to the Passion Play theatre in order to witness a performance of the great spectacle. Notice the manner in which the young boys let their locks grow so that they will some day be equipped with the long hair necessary to depicting Biblical characters in future performances of the drama.

Ex-Kaiser Seeks Swiss Chateau

William Hohenzollern (right), Germany's imperial exile, finds the climate of Doorn too exciting for him. Latest reports indicate that the royal exile seeks the Chateau de Trevano, in Switzerland, as his residence. The famous chateau was last owned by Louis Lombard (left), born in France, who went early to America and made a fortune in Wall street. Lombard studied law in Columbia University.

motor car, while her mother was not.

Second Note Destroyed
After the car had become mired in the mud, the abductor and Mrs. McKinley walked along a road for several hours, during which time he instructed her to write a note saying she would be released upon payment of $30,000. Apparently fearful of capture, the abductor finally agreed to tear up the note if she would agree not to reveal where she was released.

She tried to keep her word and today had supplied little information that would aid officials in their search.

Mrs. McKinley, a graduate of the University of Missouri, married McKinley, a former university student, met Jan. 1, while a student at Greenfield high school. Dr. Forrest C. Allen, noted basketball authority, called her "the greatest woman basketball player."

fore the judiciary and lobby committees. Then much was made of the Literary Digest poll, which they claim as a victory. To us this poll proved at least three things: (1) That the people of the nation are not enough concerned in straw voting to return their ballots; (2) that the votes in the states claimed wet by them were with but few exceptions claimed by the dries, and (3) that the people of this country settle government policies at the ballot box rather than by straw votes.

"We will soon be given an opportunity to register our vote at a general election and we urge our members to emphasize principle rather than loyalty to party. You should investigate the past records of candidates for office, and where they claim to have changed their opinion and are favoring prohibition, we have a right to know if their daily life shows proof of it."

Better Than Saloon, Era
Mrs. Jolley quoted from the records of the Keeley Institutes as proof of a statement that while there may be some drunkards in Oregon and the United States, that it is not to be compared with the days of the open saloon. During saloon days, she declared, there were 84 of these institutes, and they treated an average of 25,000 patients every week. There is but one of these institutes existing today, she said, and it is caring for only 50 patients.

The opponents to prohibition, she said, are instituting a campaign for government control, similar to that in use in parts of Canada. Attacking the statement that American tourists are enriching Canada by taking out liquor permits, she reported that figures show $5,515,224 tourists entering the province of Ontario last year and that only 88,135, or about one out of 100, took out liquor permits. She further declared that of the three million people living in Ontario only 376,829 took out permits. She also stated that Canada, despite government control is troubled with bootlegging and making of home brew to as great extent as the United States.

Dry Era Fades Test
"These are testing days for prohibition," Mrs. Jolley said, in concluding her address, "and the enemy has never been more active than at the present time. There is no organization so well equipped to meet the needs of the day as the W. C. T. U. and the aggressiveness of the enemy is a challenge for renewed consecration to service."

"The address was the keynote of the convention which reached full swing today. With nearly 200 registered delegates and visitors, the convention is a great success, and is moving with much enthusiasm."

Banquet Program
The delegates met at the Methodist church last night at 6:15 o'clock for the public banquet, the basement of the church building being crowded to capacity.

Mrs. Jolley presided over the program which followed the delicious meal served by the ladies of the church. The program being introduced by two vocal solos given by Leroy Hatt, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. S. Heinline. Addresses of welcome were given by Maurice Newland, president of the chamber of commerce; C. A. Edwards, representing the ministerial union; W. M. Campbell, city superintendent of schools; Mrs. W. E. Ott, representing the women's clubs; Mrs. A. J. Geddes, speaking for missionary societies; Mrs. Elizabeth Willis,

Maybe You Can't Raise Prices

BUT YOU CAN LOWER COSTS.

Did you see the fuel demonstration Monday?

If you didn't, you missed something. You would have seen dry ground plowed seven to eight inches deep at the rate of less than thirty cents an acre for fuel. You would have seen a tractor costing less than $1200.00 walking right along in high gear with three 14-inch plows at the above depth, and burning a fuel so low grade the State of Oregon doesn't class it as a motor fuel. Anyway they haven't put a tax on it yet.

If you have to sell at low prices you must produce at low costs.

Home Manager Speaks
Following a violin solo played by Miss Naomi Scott, with Miss Gladys Strong as accompanist, C. L. Starr, manager of the Children's Farm Home at Corvallis, gave an interesting address.

There are now 140 children in the home, he reported, being housed in seven cottages. Each cottage is cared for by two women, a housemother and an assistant, who endeavor to give the children a home-like atmosphere.

He spoke of the financial arrangements, and of the pressing need for additional funds to meet the demands for expansion. He advocated the creation of an endowment fund.

The convention opened this morning at the Presbyterian church with an impressive devotional service. The ladies were delighted upon arrival at the convention hall to find a gift of beautiful roses presented by the Roseburg Garden club, a blossom being presented to each of the women present.

Grange Head Heard
Following the business session, at which reports of various state officers were presented, C. O. Hulst, master of the State Grange, made a very interesting talk. Mr. Hulst declared that the grange and W. C. T. U. have much in common in their efforts to promote more healthful environment for the people of the land. He spoke of the legislative matters that the grange is sponsoring at the coming election giving particular attention to the power measures.

His statements were challenged from the floor by C. R. Tyree of the Medford office of the California-Oregon Power company, who spoke briefly presenting the power company's side of the issue.

The chief feature of the afternoon program was the address given by the state president, with a presentation of departmental work slated for the concluding part of the afternoon program.

Tonight's meeting will feature a pageant at the Presbyterian church. The pageant will form a unique and very entertaining method for presentation of the work of the W. C. T. U. in the state of Oregon, as the county presidents will make their reports and departmental activities will be presented. The entire program is very unique in form and will prove very interesting. It is believed. All of the sessions of the convention are open to the public, and a special invitation is given for the evening meetings.

JONES SCHOOL NEAR MYRTLE CREEK OPENS

(News-Review Douglas County Special)
MYRTLE CREEK, Oct. 15.—The Jones school opened Monday, October 6, with 16 pupils enrolled, and Mrs. Ethel Chase teacher. Both pupils and teacher were highly gratified to find that during vacation the walls of the house had been freshly kalsomined and beautifully tinted. This school holds the distinction of being one of the nicest—if not the nicest country schools in the county.

When the Five Senses Went to Market

Seeing, tasting, touching, smelling, hearing. All of the five senses needed to be alert when your grandmother went to do her shopping. She poked at this, tasted that, lifted covers and sniffed, asked many questions of the harassed clerk behind the counter. She had to do it that way. For the most part, goods were not standard; there were few well-known names in merchandise—few names to invite confidence and trust.

Now the sense of sight plays the important role. You see a brand name on a package—a name you know—a name which immediately gives you confidence. You don't need to touch, taste or smell the contents. It's an old friend; you know it's always the same, wherever and whenever you buy it. It's an advertised product!

Remember that consistently advertised goods must be worthy, or they couldn't be consistently advertised. Take advantage of the modern way of shopping. Read the advertisements regularly. Learn how pleasant it is—how much time and trouble you save—to be able to buy on sight alone, with your mind all made up before you start.

The minutes you spend reading the advertisements are much more than made up by the minutes and steps you save in the regular routine of shopping.
