AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

Umpqua unit No. 16 has started on the 1931 membership drive, which in itself is a real job, having held first place in the state for a number of years. The task before the Umpqua unit this year is to reach the 300 quota.

The membership chairman, Mrs. C. E. Wimberly, has challenged the Legion chairman, Ralph Smith, to a race and although only started is already becoming exciting.

Among the outstanding social affairs encouraging the drive of members is an apron and overall party after the next regular meeting, Tuesday, October 21, at Umpqua park. Be there for a good time and bring your dues if possible.

Mrs. George Caskey, the new child welfare chairman, is going to sleep on her job. She, with her committee, has made arrangements for a small child in Roseburg to enter the Doerbecker hospital in Portland for an operation soon. One of the Legion boys is taking the child to Portland.

Warm bedding and other articles needed have also been supplied for another family with two small children.

If we are to keep up this good work we need your membership, now that winter is coming on with its many calls for help.

Our unit is also sponsoring two Camp Fire groups, one of which is giving a party tonight in honor of one of the members, who is moving away soon. Plans are also on foot for a Halloween frolic.

CHILDREN'S CORNER Jolly Coon and His Friends

By Florence Alkin Banks

This is the final installment of Jolly Coon and His Friends and we hope the children readers have enjoyed the story from beginning to end. It was through the courtesy of Mrs. Florence Alkin Banks, Roseburg poetess and authoress, that we were able to secure this story, which she had written, for the children's entertainment.

PART SEVEN
JOLLY COON THE HERO OF THE FOREST

Characters:
Jolly Coon.
Big Horn.
Lobo.
Long Slim.
Scratch Back.
Furry Foot—a mother deer.
Long Snout—a mother hog.
Chatterer.
Nettle Back—a porcupine.
All the other forest people.

As they passed the well, and recognized Hermit Grizzly, each showed his feelings in his own way. Swift Foot, the mother deer, looked in and sighed: "How well I remember my two dear baby fawns he destroyed!" and she wiped the tears from her eyes as she thought of her pretty spotted babies.

Long Snout, the wild hog, looked down and grunted: "Ugh, ugh! poor old Hermit! I am thankful he can eat no more of my dear little pigs."

Chatterer stopped for a minute and said in a gay little voice, "Hello, Hermit! I'm sorry enough for you, but I am glad too that my little babies are safe over there in our snug hole in the tree."

Nettle Back, the porcupine, rattled his quills and piped in his little voice, "Good-by, Hermit Grizzly! When I sleep up there on my big spreading limb, I shall not have such fearful dreams hereafter. And I shall not have to be so careful to keep close to my tree."

Everybody was happy. They were saying to one another, "We shall have a good time in the forest now."

When all had passed the well and taken a peep, Big Horn called: "Silence! Silence!"

All were quiet once more; he spoke in a loud voice, and with the confidence of one who knows he is loved and honored by his people as the true monarch of the forest. "After all, friends, it would seem cruel to rejoice too much in the misfortune of an enemy. Rather, we should exult in the valor of our little hero, Jolly Coon, who has made the forest a place where we may all live happily together."

Long Slim lighly reared on his hind feet, "May I speak?" he asked of Big Horn.

"What is it, Long Slim?"

"Can't we do something for Jolly Coon, who has done so much for us? Through his wit and courage, we have all been made safe from the greatest danger we have ever known. I am sure I speak for all the panther family when I say that we are very thankful to Jolly Coon."

"So are we!" "So are we!" shouted the forest people.

"Hurray for Jolly Coon!" cried the forest people.

The others took it up, and the woods rang with their shouts: "Hurray! Hurray! Hurray!"

Big Horn bellowed, "Silence! Silence! We must decide what we can do for Jolly Coon to show our appreciation."

Scratch Back spoke: "I move that Jolly Coon be given his choice among all the best hollow trees in the forest, and that all the forest people pledge their friendship to him for as long as he lives."

Long Slim jumped to his feet and said: "I second the motion."

"Vote! Vote!" "Vote!" shouted the forest people.

Big Horn said: "It has been moved and seconded that we give Jolly Coon his choice among the best hollow trees and pledge him our friendship for as long as he lives. All in favor stand up on their hind legs and shake their fore paws."

They all rose and shook their hind legs and shook their fore paws.

Then Lobo suggested: "Big Horn, let's give Jolly Coon the 'All Hands' Round."

"Very well," said Big Horn, "let all the little forest people form a circle around Jolly Coon. The big people form a circle back of the little people."

They quickly formed their circles and Big Horn called, "Now let us dance to other and give the forest yell for Jolly Coon."

Big Horn led them, and the forest rang with the yell: "Coon! Coon! Coon!"

What's the matter with Jolly Coon?

Nothing the matter with Jolly Coon!

Who's all right?

WHO'S ALL RIGHT? JOLLY COON'S ALL RIGHT!

Buffalo entertained the members and guests with several piano solos.

Those enjoying the day included, Mrs. Ward Ellis, Mrs. William Cook, Mrs. George Bickley, Mrs. Gaster, Mrs. Helen Bell, Mrs. George Powers, Mrs. Ridley, Mrs. Charles Mohr, Mrs. Harlan Moore, Mrs. Jacob Cloaks, Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Jacob Jones, Mrs. John Trevis, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. John Marks.
