THREE RIVAL CANDIDATES CLAIM VICTORY

Editorials on the Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

HERE it is only three days before election. At such a moment, the writer of editorials OUGHT to be serious and solemn, all weighed down with heavy responsibility.

He shouldn't permit a single frivolous thought to cross his mind, but instead should spend his time ladling out priceless advice to the voters as to what to do when the great day comes.

That, obviously, is what OUG"T to be.

BUT how can ANYONE who is gifted with even a reasonable sense of humor, as an editor should be, if he is to amount to much, remain serious and solemn and free from frivolous thoughts in the face of the issues and the antics of this particular campaign in Oregon?

We ask you. Answer if you can.

HERE is the biggest merchant and one of the richest men in Oregon, for example, waving the red flag of discontent and shouting the motto: "Us common people must stick together!"

THIS same rich merchant, whose close associate and strongest supporter is the biggest power baron on the Pacific coast, is whooping it up all over the state for public ownership of power, and he and his friends are yelling, "Down with the power trust," when the HEAD of the power trust out here in the West is this same close associate and chief backer of the rich merchant who wants to be governor.

HERE we are getting all hot and bothered over the power problem, when the only power problem we have in Oregon is getting industries enough to provide a MARKET for the illimitably vast power that is now running to waste in our streams, so that this power may be developed, thus providing JOBS for the people in Oregon who need jobs.

AND here we are all steamed up about power, which isn't a problem and CAN'T be a problem until we get industries enough to consume at least a reasonable part of our abundant power that is going utterly to waste, and all the while we are IGNORING the very real and vital problem of adequate and fair taxation, which IS a problem that must be solved before Oregon can go ahead as we want her to go ahead.

WITH all this going on, how can anyone who has even a rudimentary sense of humor remain serious and solemn and all weighed down with responsibilities?

He can't. So let's turn in and discuss frivolous subjects with a free mind.

ELMER F. REMMER, manager of the resort where Clara Bow recently got into the gambling scrape that netted her so much publicity, is high-hatting his wife. He is alleged to have told her: "I no longer need you, because now I am hobnobbing with the elite of the country." So Mrs. Remmer wants a divorce and ALIMONY.

Here's hoping she gets both. Although it must be admitted that getting rid of a pinhead like Elmer really ought to be good fortune enough.

UNANIMOUS 'YES' ON BOND ISSUE SOUGHT

United Roseburg Sentiment Would Carry Weight in Choice of Site for Vets Home.

Another Flotation Needed to Meet $35,000 Debt; Only One Contest for City Job.

Roseburg voters, in addition to the regular state and county ticket at Tuesday's election, will have a city ballot to mark, together with the election of seven trustees for the North Umpqua - Diamond Lake highway improvement district.

The greatest item of interest on the city ballot is the bond amendment providing money to secure the site for a branch of the national soldiers' home, if Roseburg is officially designated as the place for such institution.

A great deal has been done in the past few days to stimulate the vote on this project. It is not believed there is any danger of the bond issue losing, but it is almost as important, supporters feel, to secure a unanimous vote on this measure, as it is to pass it. If any material opposition to the bond issue should develop, the federal board upon whom develops selection of the site may not give Roseburg as much consideration as would be shown if the city unanimously approves the bond issue. A unanimous vote would show that Roseburg is a unit for the project and willing to do everything within its power to aid the federal government in establishing the institution here. For this reason the supporters are urging that every legal voter of the city vote for this amendment.

Two Contingencies

The measure is in the nature of a charter amendment which gives the city council authority to issue bonds to buy the site for the home, if Roseburg is selected. If the committee decides to put the

Coast Crown in Balance as Cougars and Beavers Clash

Washington State Doped to Win Over O. S. C. Gridders for First Time in History of Their Battles—Crowd of 30,000 Watches Game for Benefit of Shrine.

By FRANK G. GORRIE
Associated Press Sports Writer

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 1—Washington State's great opportunity to cop the 1930 Pacific coast conference football championship hung in the balance today with the undefeated Cougars meeting a hopped-up Oregon State college grid eleven in a shrine benefit game here.

A defeat for Washington State would set the Cougars back in line with the rest of the warring teams of the conference with the exception of the Oregon university clan.

A victory for Oregon State would make Coach Paul Schissler's season very much of a success despite the fact that the Oregon eleven has already suffered two defeats.

Should Hollingbery's eleven conquer the Beavers — and it should without too much trouble, according to all dope and figures — only Idaho and Washington would be left standing in the way of the Cougars' chances for the coveted crown.

Beavers Cause Worry

But in spite of the odds in his favor, Hollingbery has been worrying about the Beavers as he did over California and Southern California which, teams put Washington State on the map by bowing before the rugged Cougars. Schissler's eleven has always put up a brilliant battle with the eastern Washington squad and holds a threatening jinx over W. S. C.

HOLDUPS IN QUEST OF FOOD LOSE OUT

Marlow Christopherson, an employe of the News-Review office, was held up in his home on South Mill street last night by two unknown men, who demanded food, although it later developed that they had eaten at a restaurant a few minutes before.

Christopherson, alone in the house at the time heard someone on the back porch and upon investigation found one man at the back door and another standing just at the edge of the porch.

The man at the door demanded food and when Christopherson refused, the second man drew a gun and the two started to force their way into the house. Christopherson shut and locked the door, then turned off the lights and secured a gun from another part of the house. He attempted to call officers, but as he could not immediately get in touch with the city night officer, he left the house and drove downtown. After securing help from the officials he returned and a search of the neighborhood was made, but the men were not located. It was then learned that they had eaten at a restaurant down town and were later seen going south.

REED AND NEWTON STAGE HOT DEBATE

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—Missouri's foremost champion of democracy, former Senator James A. Reed and former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, staunch exponent of republicanism, have enlivened the closing days of the Missouri congressional campaign with an impromptu debate—Reed on the stump and Newton at the microphone.

Senator Reed in speeches here, and at Benton, Mo., directed his powers of invective at the republican national administration for what he termed its blame for business depression in the United States.

Former Congressman Newton, speaking over the radio here last night, took issue with Reed and pointed to economic disturbances in foreign countris, particularly England, Germany, Japan, and a number of South American republics.

"Do our adversaries think they can convince the American people President Hoover is responsible for the distress, unemployment and suffering in the rest of the world?" Newton asked.

Reed charged that the president did nothing to head off stock speculation. Mr. Newton replied that President Hoover and Secretary Mellon issued statements, when the speculation was in full swing, to warn people that savings accounts, fixed investment securities and life insurance policies were "still the safest and best form of investment."

The democratic champion asserted that the money of the federal reserve system was poured into New York and that no steps were taken by the federal reserve board to restrict it during the heavy speculation period. Mr. Newton continued by saying the federal reserve board raised the rate of interest "in a desperate but vain attempt to stem the tide of speculation."

"Oregon Boots," Solitary Confinement, Lashings, Poor Food Figure in Recital.

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 1 — Vernon Levey, 16 former inmate of the state training school for boys, sat in the witness chair at a hearing before the state board of control today and told how officers of the school compelled him to work at grubbing stumps for 13 days with a 23-pound "Oregon Boot" on one leg and a 17-pound boot on the other; and how on the 13th day the heavier boot was removed with an acetylene torch that caused molten metal to drop on his leg and make a burn from which he still suffers.

Just how much of the boy's testimony will be denied or admitted by witnesses in defense of W. H. Baillie, superintendent of the school, remains to be seen, since no defense witnesses have yet appeared.

The hearing is for the purpose of investigating charges of cruelty made by the boy and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Levey, against Superintendent Baillie.

Physician Testifies

Removal of bandages from the boy's leg by his mother before the board today revealed a deep wound the diameter of a dollar. Dr. J. J. Enkelis of Portland, who examined the wound at the school on October 21, after one steel boot had been removed, testified that the wound was not infected at that time. He said he saw him again October 25 the day he was released from the school, and the wound then showed infection. Commenting on the small boot that the boy still wore on October 21, the physician said it didn't fit snugly, and could have caused lacerations. The boy showed an infectious social disease, Dr. Enkelis said, and his general condition was such that he told the school authorities that the boy should have been in bed.

Levy Boy Testifies

Vernon Levey, when called to the stand, frankly admitted his six escapes from the school and the methods he used in making

G. O. P. COMMITTEE SCORES MR. RASKOB

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.— The republican national committee has circulated a full page poster throughout the country enttiled "Who caused the stock market crash?" and following this with a subtitle "Read John J. Raskob's statement."

The statement by Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee,was an interview given Samuel Crowther and published in the Ladies' Home Journal in August, 1929. The heading of the magazine article was "everybody ought to be rich."

Another question asked on the republican poster is "did Raskob sell short?" The poster's answer to this is: "Mr. Raskob, as chairman of the democratic national committee and as an operator in the stock market, was in a position to wield a tremendous influence."

After quoting from Raskob's interview on the growth in value of stocks, the republican poster quotes from an interview with Secretary Mellon in March, 1929, "urging investment in bonds."

Senator Robinson, republican of Indiana, has blamed Raskob for the stock market crash in public speeches during the campaign, but the national republican organization had never before made the same claim.

Ordeal Doesn't Make Big Bill Forget Battle

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Mayor William Hale Thompson was declared as "mentally cheerful" after an operation for appendicitis, and reacting as well as could be expected physically in bulletins issued at Passavant hospital today. He slept 11 hours and awoke in a jovial mood. Doctors said no complications had arisen, the temperature and pulse were within the range ordinarily seen in such cases and while he was not out of danger he was reacting as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

The mayor's first question after he awoke was about the speech which he had hoped to deliver on behalf of J. Hamilton Lewis, democratic candidate for senator, at a political mass meeting yesterday, but which was read to the audience for him.

He wanted to know how his speech was received and if any of the papers printed it. When told they did not publish the talk he said "I didn't think they would."

The speech was a bitter attack on the Chicago Tribune and its present and past publishers as well as against Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican senatorial candidate. The mayor, a republican, said he had decided to support the democratic aspirant because he was a wet.

OKLAHOMA GUSHER MENACE REDUCED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 1 — Roaring defiance to experts seeking to curb it, a wild gusher at the city's edge continued today its threat of fire disaster as it showered black clouds of oil on abandoned homes.

As workmen rushed to completion the forging of a huge steel bonnet to drop over the mouth of the spouting well, firemen announced the danger of explosion had lessened due to dissipation of low hanging clouds of gas.

As a result of their tests firemen reduced to an area 36 blocks square the fire zone which has been maintained since the well broke through its mastergate last Thursday night.

Nine units of national guardsmen, together with civilians, guarded the city against the outbreak of fire. John Gordon, who conquered the "Wild Mary" Sudik well after it ran wild eleven days, has been placed in charge of control attempts.

The geyser of oil has caused the abandonment of homes by some three hundred residents of the district, the closing of six schools, and the suspension of all automobile and railroad traffic in the district affected.

Workmen in shifts of thirty, wearing helmets and clothed in oil-skins, were slowly removing the twisted steel from about the mouth of the well.

They were deliberate in their efforts to avoid striking sparks as they hadled the broken strips of the mastergate, and other debris.

The well has an estimated daily flow of 60,000 barrels of oil and 100,000,000 feet of gas.

METSCHAN'S GUIDE SEES BIG MARGIN

25,000 Plurality Forecast by Cook; Says Candidate Aided by Attitude of Journal.

Bailey's Manager Sure of Triumph, While Holman Predicts Landslide for Meier.

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

PORTLAND, Nov. 1.—The three leading candidates for governor are full yconfident of victory at the are fully confident of victory at the the Associated Press from the camps of the political parties indicated today. Predictions on the margin of victory ranged from a safe lead to pluralities of 25,000 votes upwards.

Floyd Cook, chairman of the Phil Metschan republican campaign, said the republican nominee will be elected by a plurality of 25,000 votes. He stated further that Metschan will carry eastern Oregon by 12,000 to 15,000 votes, would pick up another 12,000 to 15,000 west of the mountains, and would carry Multnomah county, the bone of contention in this campaign, by a narrow lead of 2,000 to 4,000.

Bailey Guide "Positive"

"Sentiment throughout the state is rapidly crystallizing in favor of Edward F. Bailey, democratic nominee from upstate," said Carl C. Donaugh, chairman of the democratic campaign. Donaugh said he was "positive" Bailey would win the election, though he did not predict his margin of victory. Donaugh's statement indicated Bailey would carry six counties strong, was assured of one other, would break even in six more, and would run stronger in Klamath and Multnomah than credited at the present time.

Meier Claims Strong

Julius L. Meier, independent candidate, will be carried into office by a vote as large as that of all his opponents, is the opinion expressed by Rufus C. Holman, chairman of the Meier campaign. Holman goes further in predicting Meier will carry multnomah county by a minimum of 30,000 votes over his nearest opponent. He said a study of campaign developments outside Multnomah county indicates the independent candidate will sweep 18 counties by "handsome pluralities," that nine more will give him a comfortable lead, and only seven might be placed in the doubtful column.

"The action of the Oregon Journal in throwing over the democratic candidate, has solidified anti-Meier sentiment in favor of the republican nominee," the statement of Floyd Cook, continued. "The further action of the Journal in opposing the grange power bill has lost the support of farmers for the independent candidate, who abandoned his campaign in behalf of the measure."

Swing to Bailey Seen

From the democratic camp comes the statement that "there is much more Bailey talk on the streets of Portland than a month ago. "In fact," the statement of Chairman Donaugh continues, "the trend of republican votes in Multnomah county and throughout the state is John Edward Belieu, 72, a well toward Bailey; he is the beneficiary of the switch from both the independent and republican candidates. The silent vote is already solid for Senator Bailey because of his pronounced and consistent stand on prohibition."

Camp predictions of Donaugh state "Bailey will carry Lane county by 10,000, and will carry Linn, Marion, Benton, Polk and Yamhill. In the coast counties he will run strong, with a victory in Clatsop assured. East of the mountains is definitely Bailey. He will break even in Washington, Clackamas, Coos, Columbia, Jackson and Deschutes, with much stronger vote in Klamath and Multnomah than opponents are willing to admit."

Douglas on Meier List

Omitting Jefferson county, all of the other 36 counties in the state are mentioned in the strong, sure and doubtful lists for Meier by Chairman Holman. His prediction states "that the counties where I am confident Meier will lead the field beyond question are Clackamas, Clatsop, Columbia, Deschutes, Coos, Douglas, Gillam, Hood River, Jackson, Josephine, Lincoln, Linn, Marion Sherman, Tillamook, Union, Washington and
