NAVAL AVIATION BIRTHDAY FALLS ON NOVEMBER 14

Development as Branch of U. S. Service Founded on Flight Made 20 Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Aviation as an arm of the navy will celebrate its twentieth birthday November 14.

Two decades ago Eugene Ely, an employe of the late Glenn Curtiss, successfully flew a land plane from a platform hastily built on the bow of the U. S. S. Birmingham at Hampton Roads.

It was the first demonstration in history of the use of aircraft with a man-of-war, leading now to the construction of the first ship designed exclusively as an aircraft carrier.

This ship, the first of the 13,800-ton "floating airports" to be ordered by the government, is constructed by the navy as a fulfillment of predictions made when Ely piloted his three-wheeled "pusher" from the boardwork of the Birmingham.

The test at the time was not taken as final until a plane had been landed on a warship and two months later, January 18, 1911, Ely successfully flew to the deck of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania lying in San Francisco harbor.

No Funds At First

After the first test, with no navy funds available to pay for aviation instruction, Curtiss' offer to teach several officers to fly was accepted and Lieut. T. G. Ellyson ordered out for training.

The two men worked on a hydroplane attachment to permit water landings and take-offs and the final link in the chain of demonstrations was welded January 26, 1911, when Curtiss flew from the water at his San Diego base, landed beside the Pennsylvania, was hoisted aboard, subsequently hoisted out again, and flew back to camp.

These feats centered the interest of the navy on the practical uses of aviation and the first appropriation of $25,000 for navy aeronautical work was passed with 1911-1912 naval appropriation act.

Future Warships

Now, with contract let for the 13,800-ton carrier which will be added to the fleet of three "floating airports," the Lexington, Saratoga, and Langley, the navy is pointing towards a new type of experimentation—a hybrid cruiser-carrier.

By the terms of the London treaty, 25 per cent of the light cruisers of the nation may be equipped with landing decks to form craft which Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, calls "the forerunner of the warship of the future."

CHAS. W. LONSDALE, GRAIN DEALER, DIES

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 12. — Charles W. Lonsdale, 59, well known Kansas City grain dealer and vice-president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, died yesterday at his home here.

Mr. Lonsdale, who took an active part in business and civic affairs was president of the Simmonds-Shields-Lonsdale grain company of Kansas. Nearly a year ago he declined to accept the general managership of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, a general marketing agency for the farm board.

MacDONALD ASSURES ON FAR EAST PLANS

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister MacDonald told the house of commons today the British government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

No ordinances on the basis of the recent White paper regarding the British attitude towards Jews and Arabs in Palestine will be framed before there has been discussion of the White paper in the house of commons, said the prime minister.

MELROSE VOTES 10 MILLS FOR ROAD

A ten-mill tax to be applied to the continuation of road improvements from the Busenbark lane to the Melrose store was voted Saturday by District No. 32 of Melrose. The district has been voting special taxes for several years to pave and improve the road, and a wonderful change has been effected. The road for two miles west of Roseburg has been paved and to the Busenbark lane it has been widened, straightened and gravelled and put on market road specifications. The county court cooperates with the district by applying market road funds to match the district special tax.

MACLEAY ATTACKS GAME COMMISSION ON FISH STATUS

PORTLAND, Nov. 11 — Laxity of administration was charged to the state game commission at its meeting here late yesterday by Roderick L. Macleay, member of the legislative interim fish committee. Macleay declared the commission is ruled "by the mandates of less than 5 per cent" of Oregon's sportsmen and that it ignores the other 95 per cent.

Macleay suggested the commission make a thorough study of fish life in the Rogue river, for, he said, "none of your men nor none of your employes can tell me when the winter steelhead run enters the river or whether these fish go into the upper parts of the river. They cannot even tell me whether the catches being made by commercial fishermen there are taken from the winter or summer runs."

He recommended tagging a quantity of Rogue fish, releasing them, and then checking on the number attaining the upper reaches of the river.

Macleay declared screens "which are not there and never have been there" should be placed at the entrance of every irrigation ditch.

He declared, too, that pollution from cities on the Rogue must stop before the fish life can be completely protected.

LOWRY MEETINGS PREPARATIONS GO ON IN THIS CITY

Preparations are being continued for the union evangelistic campaign, which is to begin December 28. Dr. Oscar Lowry of Chicago is to be the evangelist and the meetings are sponsored by a union of city and county churches. The Methodist circuits of Dillard and Sutherlin have recently been added to the campaign.

Dr. Lowry is one of the outstanding evangelists of the country. His methods are characterized by sanity and deep spirituality and those eccentricities, which are sometimes criticized in many other evangelists are said to be omitted from his work. The meetings are to be held in the armory, the preparations being in charge of a council of ministers, laymen and laywomen. An enthusiastic meeting of the council was held last night, at which there was a fine attendance and a spirit of unity and cooperation shown.

Five churches were represented by strong delegations and every member of the council was thoroughly committed to the work. Rev. J. B. Penhall, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, is general chairman of the prayer meeting committee, which is to be organized at once. Mr. Penhall is soliciting suggestions regarding this part of the preparation.

Marriage License Issued—A marriage license has been issued by County Clerk Roy Agee to Philetus A. Comstock and Jennie F. Slater, both of Sutherlin.

RULING STRIKES AT "BREEDING SCHOOL" DATED IN OREGON

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 12.—On the basis of information furnished Attorney General Van Winkle by Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, the attorney general has ruled that the veterinary medical examining board of Oregon has lawful authority to enjoin Frank R. Graham from conducting a "breeding school" in this state.

Lytle furnished the attorney general with a pamphlet advertising the Graham scientific breeding school, a Kansas City enterprise, in which appears the statement that "we guarantee to teach any average breeder or herdsman how to make barren cows breed." Graham has advertised to conduct a school in Portland from November 11 to 15, and Dr. Lytle says that Graham is giving instruction which is not provided for through the state schools or colleges of Oregon, and that he has no license to practice veterinary medicine or surgery in the state.

If the information furnished by Lytle is correct the attorney general holds that he may be enjoined.

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

INDIAN—Today, Richard Barthelmess in "Dawn Patrol"; Thursday and Friday, Maurice Chevalier in "The Big Pond"; Saturday, Gary Cooper and June Collyer in "A Man From Wyoming."

TAKE the advice of the capacity audiences which packed the Indian theatre yesterday and saw "Dawn Patrol" which shows again tonight. Richard Barthelmess, Neil Hamilton and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., are the featured players and they have made what this reviewer considers the best airplane picture to date.

"Dawn Patrol" is full of dramatic situations—in fact it is just one big dramatic vehicle from start to finish. It contains enough thrills for anyone and yet the thrills are secondary to the theme of the picture. See "Dawn Patrol" by all means.
