Attractions AT THE MOVIES

IRISHAN—Today and Saturday, Richard Arlen in "Santa Fe Trail."

LIBERTY—Today and Saturday, Foot Gibson in "Roaring Ranch," all talking western.

First Gibson will gallop onto the screen of the Liberty the- atre tonight in "Roaring Ranch," one of the fastest and most excit- ing pictures of his thrilling career. It is all-talking.

"Roaring Ranch" deals with the adventures of a cowboy on the height of his scaling speed. There are fights and conspiracies, and through it all runs Gibson's own particular brand of humor.

From it was the lowlife herd, "The Virginian" thrilled an audience with its thousands of cut- ting cries as they thundered along.

Then it was the storking herd, "The Light of Western Stars" con- tained the might of a horde of stampeding horses with the "moan" of cattle.

The sunrise of a daybreak was an important comedy motif in "Old Arizona."

Now it is the hearing herd, "The Stampede Trail," which Paramount has adapted from Hal- lowell's novel, "Spanish Arroyo," which opens at Hoot's Indian the- atre today for two days in the first live production to cover the en- tire range of thousands of sheep- ers over movie before the cam- eras and microphone.
