A "Bed-Time" Story

U. S. HAND HEAVIER ON BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Federal punishment fell more heavily on the bootlegger and the rum runner in the last fiscal year. Congress received the tidings today through the annual report of Attorney General Mitchell, which said enforcement as reflected in prosecutions improved over 1929. "Evidently the commercial violator was having more of his day in court," it continued, "and prison sentences were imposed in 27,799 cases in 1930—5,107 more than in 1929. The average length of sentences increased in greater proportion than did the number." Moreover, 29 vessels were seized for participating in a revival of the liquor smuggling business as conducted on the high seas and in our territorial waters. All but four were British. Of the 52,437 prohibition cases terminated, nearly 78 per cent brought guilty pleas, about 15 per cent were dismissed, and the remainder had jury trials. Assistant Attorney General Youngquist in charge of enforcement, said the work had been embarrassed "by some state and municipal officers, who, under the color of their offices, are actively violating the law themselves." Such officers convicted numbered 95, and 85 cases were pending when the present fiscal year began. The year's padlockings numbered 3,801, a gain of 2,498 over the previous year. A total of 11,532 such cases were commenced.

NAILS IN WOODEN BLOCK RECORD HALF CENTURY

Walter Toller of Hoaglin brought a very interesting block of wood to the chamber of commerce office Saturday. The block contains two, square, iron nails that were apparently driven into the tree when it was only a few inches in diameter. The tree, in its growth, covered the nails and they were preserved near the heart of the tree. The age rings would indicate that they were driven into the wood about 53 years ago. The nails were discovered by C. A. Williams, who was cleaning up around a cable recently built on the Tolles place. He cut into the block with a saw.

Attractions AT THE MOVIES

INDIAN—Today and Tuesday, "The Big House" with Wallace Beery, Chester Morris, Lella Hyams, Lewis Stone, George Marion, Karl Dane and J. C. Nugent. More than 3000 extras were used to play the parts of convicts.

Benefit week tickets being sold by Umpqua Post, American Legion auxiliary, are good for any of the fine shows being offered at Hunt's Indian theatre this week. The management of the theatre has donated 100 tickets to the auxiliary and the entire proceeds from the sale will be used for child welfare and hospital work sponsored by the auxiliary. The tickets are being sold at the regular box office price and will be honored at any program.

WHAT is said to be one of the most sensational and startling pictures ever filmed opens at Hunt's Indian today for two days. It is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacle of prison life, "The Big House," and presents a cast of notables in the film world.

There is romance woven into the stark realities and humor, too. The story in brief concerns the lives of several of the convicts beginning with Kent, a young man serving his first term. A weak character to begin with, he is bewildered by the intrigues and counter plots of the prisoners and guards and through fear and association with the older and harder criminals completely loses his sense of honor and fair play. A huge scheme is under way to overpower the guards and make a break for freedom. "Butch" and Morgan, Kent's cell mates, are ringleaders, but Kent tips off the guards and a terrific riot results when the break is made.

In addition to the sensational nature of the story itself, the picture has a cast of film notables headed by Wallace Beery. This is the famous character actor's first talkie and it is said that fans are due for a thrill when they see his vivid portrayal as a childishly minded but intensely cruel
