NEW HIGHWAY ON COLUMBIA OPENED

(Associated Press Local Wire)

VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 16.—The newly opened highway on the north bank of the Columbia river was opened to traffic between Vancouver and Stevenson, Wash. An informal meeting between representatives of the two states marked the opening of the new route, which pierces the Columbia river gorge and gives Washington an all-year east and west artery from the coast to the inland empire and the east.

Although the highway was constructed through rugged mountains the maximum grade is 5 per cent and the sharpest curve but 20 degrees. Ultimate plans call for construction to Kennewick with connections leading into the rich Yakima valley, the Mount Adams reserve and the grain growing regions of eastern Washington.

The meeting of the representatives of the teams affiliated with the newly organized city basketball league has been postponed until Wednesday evening, owing to the inability of several members to attend tonight. The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday at the office of Attorney Carl E. Wimberly.

WHAT DR. CARROLL DOESN'T TELL

girls that if all of them are going to be as particular as all that when it comes to picking husbands, a lot of them will remain unmarried.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO, there were less than 25,000 automobiles in the United States. Today there are more than 26 million.

A quarter of a century ago we had only 135,000 miles of improved road in this country, of which 14 miles—outside the cities of course—were paved. Today we have more than 600,000 miles of highly improved highways.

BACK IN 1905, the entire country, city, states and counties, was spending only 100 million dollars a year in highway improvements. Today we are spending more than FIFTY HUNDRED MILLIONS annually.

This is a big country. It is growing very rapidly. And our HEAVENS are growing as rapidly as our achievements. What looked big a few years ago DOESN'T look big any more.

AND don't forget this: We are going to go right on growing. The achievements of the present, which look so big to us now, will seem trifling and insignificant a quarter of a century hence.

ENTERTAINMENT IS GIVEN BY SCHOOL AT SMITH RIVER

(News-Review Douglas County Special)

SMITH RIVER, Dec. 16.—Misses Alice Jaquet and Marion Padlock of Smith River school gave a very delightful entertainment Saturday evening, which was attended by almost the entire population of the district and many from outside points.

The program consisted of three one-act plays, with musical numbers between. "The Rainbow Dream," featuring Miss Georgina Morris, was very beautiful. The comedy-drama, "Neighbors," was well received, the audience being particularly pleased with Miss Ernestine Koepke's interpretation of the lead. Two boys gave a dialect skit, "Burnt Crackers," very creditably. The closing number, "Lima Beans," played by Miss Padlock and Miss Vivian Abbott was charmingly given.

Following the program, shadows were auctioned by Jim Roberts, the ladies selling their shadows to the highest bidder, who received in addition a substantial box of food. The money from the evening will be applied on athletic equipment.

Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE:

We are two girls in our middle teens, who wonder if the age of chivalry is over. Does constant "wine-cracking" on the part of a girl's escort reflect on the girl or her escort himself?

When two couples attend the theatre is it proper for the boys to sit on the outside, especially if the girls desire it? Is a constant reference of a boy to young girls as "women" a vulgarity?

CLAIRE AND GUINEVERE.

CLAIRE AND GUINEVERE: You seem to have very few illusions left. At your age, you already are wondering if the age of chivalry is passed. We have not, of course, so much time for the niceties and refinements of life, but there are certain essentials that still obtain. Wine-cracking reflects only on the breeding of the person who is guilty of it. When two couples attend the theatre together, it is generally arranged that the two girls sit together, much flanked by one of the young men. Yes, a definite vulgarity and a clear clue to the mentality and make-up of the person using the term, marking the person as a callow youth of doubtful refinement, who wants to appear a man of the world.

DEAR NANCY LEE:

I am a girl in my teens and for about six months I have been going with a young man twice every week. As has always seemed me with respect, and we have been the best of friends.

His cousin has come into for a visit and when riding with her recently he had his arms around her as they passed me, and several times in my presence, he has flirted with other girls. I think me that this is a little bit of a nuisance, as you know, this is the proper conduct for him? Now would I treat him after these things have happened?

BROWN EYES: How should you treat him? With contempt, why try to construe his conduct as you do? Why should he do things to try to make you jealous? The average man is glad that no accident occurs that would arouse jealousy on the part of someone of whom he is fond. I would advise you to treat the boy as a casual friend in the future. Don't take the affair to heart, it isn't worth it. He is just a blither—the worst type of all.

DEAR NANCY LEE:

Is it probable that a girl of fourteen could know when she is really in love or not? I would appreciate your advice on my question. I understand that you cannot tell with certainty not knowing the girl or the person she believes herself in love with. I am only fourteen, but I have had several "crushes" on boys before and never felt this way with any of them. He is seventeen and imagines himself to be in love with me. We plan to get married within eight years, or as soon as he is making enough money. We are both still in high school. Are our ages too young to know if we are in real love with each other? Thanking you again, I am,

JUST BETS.

JUST BETS: The saving clause in your letter is the use of the word "imagines." Come down to earth, child, and learn that a girl of fourteen should be a healthy, happy child and not a lovesick creature. Enjoy a pleasant friendship certainly, but don't weave to it strands of a sentiment about which you as yet know nothing. Love means many things, it means sacrifice, it means tolerance, it means service, it means facing all hardships and troubles together, and problems and hardships that a youngster fortunately knows nothing of. If in time the friendship ripens into love, it should be a wonderful thing. But for the present, live, don't dream.

Arundel, piano tuner. Phone 132-1.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

(News-Review Douglas County Special)

REEDSPORT, Dec. 16.—What is considered one of the most successful plays given in the local high school was staged Friday evening at a capacity house. The class selected "The Rainbow Dream," and their best work, and that of their director, Miss Selma Tentz, was shown by their manner of presentation.

Opinions differ as to who did the best work in the play, but most of the audience agreed that William Taylor and Juanita Harrison were among the best. Summaries between the acts included tap dancing by Gertrude Patterson and Thelma Ricks, which pleased the spectators.

Anemia may be brought about by an excessive loss of blood. This loss may be accidental or it may follow some surgical procedure. The bleeding may result from hemorrhoids or be due to a stomach ulcer.

Anemia may be caused too by lack of fresh air, overwork, severe nervous strain, lack of proper food and unhygienic surroundings are other important factors.

Anemia is often cured by rest, fresh air and plenty of good nourishing food. The rest serves as the necessary tonic, giving the body a chance to build up its energies. Fresh air in large doses supplies sufficient oxygen to thoroughly revive and stimulate the production of new, red blood cells. Nourishing food builds up the blood cells and strengthens the body.

It happens often in anemia that the digestion is impaired. On this account it is necessary to give digestible foods. Milk and eggs are the most important in this respect and can be given unadorned. It is advisable to have at least one quart of milk each day. Abundant bread toast with butter, preserved fruits and cereals with cream are also recommended.

If you are anemic sit down by yourself and try to figure out why. What are you doing that you should not do? What are you leaving undone?

There is no great mystery about anemia. Most of our ailments can be traced to causes within our knowledge. The trouble is we think too little about these matters. In fact we try to fool ourselves, as well as the family. We are unwilling to admit anything is wrong.

Even though we make no confessions to others let us be sensible enough to study our own needs. An hour spent this way may put us on our way to perfect health.

Answers to Health Queries

MISS A. S. Q.—What will touch the skin on the face so that it will be less susceptible to blemishes and skin eruptions? I have tried going out in all kinds of weather but without results. Soap seems to cause irritation.

A.—You probably have a tender, delicate skin and nothing can be done to change it. Watch your diet and elimination and avoid the use of hard soaps and excessive powder. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

R. L. S. Q.—What causes enlarged veins in the hands? I have a goitre operation and have been told that my heart is not quite normal. Would these disturbances have any bearing on the condition in question?

A.—They may. Have your doctor advise you, since he is familiar with the underlying conditions.

MISS A. O. Q.—What causes a twenty-month-old baby to belch after each meal?

A.—Are two teaspoonsful of cod liver oil daily sufficient for a baby of this age?

A.—How many solid meals, in addition to his daily quart of milk, should a baby of this age have?

A.—It is possible that he eats too quickly or that his diet is not quite suitable. He should have simple, easily-digested foods avoiding too much sugar and starch.

A.—Yes.

A.—A baby of this age should have three meals daily, in addition to his milk.
