AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

TO A SOLDIER IN HOSPITAL Courage came to you with your boyhood's grace
 Of ardent life and limb.
 Each day new dangers stealed you to the test.
 To ride, to climb, to swim.
 Your hot blood taught you carelessness of death
 With every breath.

So when you went to play another game
 You could not but be brave;
 An Empire's team, a rougher football field.
 The end—perhaps your grave.
 What matter? On the winning of a goal
 You staked your soul.

Yes, you wore courage as you wore your youth
 With carelessness and joy.
 But in what Spartan school of discipline
 Did you get patience, boy?
 How did you learn to bear this long-drawn pain
 And not complain?

Restless with throbbing hopes,
 Impulsive as a colt, How do you lie here month by weary month
 Helpless, and not revolt?
 What joys can these monotonous days afford
 Here in a ward?

Yet you are merry as the birds in spring.
 Or feign the gaiety.
 Lest those who dress and tend your wound each day
 Should guess the agony Lest they should suffer—this the only fear
 You let draw near.

Greybeard philosophy has sought in books
 And argument this truth.
 That man is greater than his pain,
 but you
 Have learnt it in your youth.
 You know the wisdom taught by and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Kitt Ackert.

 Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Turner and daughter, Miss Barbara Ann and

Calvary
 At thirty-three,
 Death would have found you brave, but braver still
 You face each lagging day.
 A merry Stole, patient, chivalrous, Divinely kind and gay.
 You bear your knowledge lightly,
 graduate
 Of unkind Fate.

Careless philosopher, the first to laugh,
 The latest to complain, Unmindful that you teach, you taught me this
 In your long fight with pain:
 Since God made man so good—here stands my creed—
 God's good indeed.

During the Christmas season is the custom and happy privilege for Auxiliary units all over America to turn their special attention to the ex-service men for whom the war has not yet ended—those men who are fighting their way back to health. Empqua unit has endeavored to "brighten her corner" each year at the holiday season and has found the veterans in the Soldiers' home most appreciative of her efforts.

Bob Clark Presents Unit With Xmas Gift

Empqua unit was surprised and overjoyed by a beautiful Christmas gift from one of these disabled men. The donor was no other than our own Bob Clark of the Soldiers' home who has been such a help and inspiration to both the Legion and the Auxiliary. The gift was a lovely reed flower basket fashioned in the Auxiliary colors, blue and gold.

Mr. Clark is a master craftsman in reed work and spent many hours in making this beautiful gift. The basket will be used in the Auxiliary rooms and is highly prized for its actual beauty and workmanship but primarily because it represents the thoughtfulness of Bob Clark whose philosophy of life seems to be "This more blessed to give than to receive."
